HEINZE'S SECRETARY JAILED FOR CONTEMPT

LAWYER ROBINSON CITED

Baglin Tells Grand Jury He Heard Lawyer and A. P. Heinze Talking About Making Way with the Books.

George Baglin, Vice President of the United Copper Company and F. A. Heinze's secretary, was committed to the Tombs yesterday afternoon in contempt proceedings for his failure to produce the missing books of the company. Sanford Robinson, a Director of the company, one of Heinze's personal counsel and counsel for the United Copper Company itself, will follow Baglin unless he has the books of the company before Judge Lacombe of the United States Circuit Court by 11 o'clock this morning.

Attorney Robinson, although he has been connected closely with the affairs of the United Copper Company for years, professed entire ignorance of the missing books, or even of the fact that they had disappeared, when he was haled before Judge Lacombe last Friday. In fact, Mr. Robinson submitted an affidavit to this effect at that time, and also voted that afternoon with the other Directors of the company, who took the first steps looking to the removal of F. A. Heinze from the Presidency of the corporation.

When Baglin was summoned before the Grand Jury yesterday he testified that he heard Robinson and A. P. Heinze, F. A. Heinze's brother, talking together in the offices of the United Copper Company about getting the books out of the way, back on May 19, which was the day on which United States District Attorney Wise put the screws on several of the officers of the company to get the volumes which had disappeared. Mr. Robinson tried to get himself off yesterday on the plea that both he and A. P. Heinze were lawyers and that their conversation was privileged, but Judge Lacombe wouldn't accept the plea.

This will be a busy day for the Directors of the United Copper Company. There is scheduled for the afternoon a meeting of the stockholders, at which, in all probability, F. A. Heinze, controlling one-third of the stock of the company, will throw out the present Board of Directors in a body and elect new Directors of his own. At the same time the Directors are due to meet, pursuant to a resolution of last Friday, to take action on the ousting of President F. A. Heinze and Secretary-Treasurer Stanley Gifford from their offices in the company.

That Heinze will be able to throw out the Directors who are seeking to have him produce the books, is not questioned by those who know how the United Copper stock is placed. But how much he will gain thereby remains to be seen. District Attorney Wise is convinced that he can force any new board that Heinze may name into the same position that the present directors are in of either compelling the President of the company by replevin to turn over the books, or else being committed for contempt.

Mr. Wise went before Judge Lacombe at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and reported the unavailing search of the safe in the offices of the United Copper Company, where the books used to be kept. Then he said that the testimony before the Grand Jury in the matter had disclosed matter tending to reflect upon the name of a member of the bar who had previously borne a good reputation and in this connection wanted to call Judge Lacombe's attention to testimony which Baglin had given to the Grand Jury.

Baglin testified yesterday morning that on May 19 he was in the offices of the United Copper Company and heard a conversation between Robinson and A. P. Heinze, in which the removal of the books wanted by Mr. Wise was the principal subject of discussion. Shortly, Baglin said, he was told to step out of the room and did so. Later on two empty trunks were received at the United Copper offices, and these disappeared again the following morning, despite the fact that Baglin himself cautioned the janitor not to let them go out of the building without permission.

Mr. Wise suggested that he thought Baglin's knowledge of these facts put him in contempt as an officer of the United Copper Company, and argued that Baglin's telling the janitor not to have the trunks moved showed that he knew what they were there for. Baglin still insisted that he did not know the books were in the offices of the company at the time, but this failed to impress Judge Lacombe, who replied that a Vice President and Director of a corporation could not thus escape responsibility when he had taken no action to protect the books after he overheard a conversation between two other Directors in which it was suggested that they should be abstracted from the company's offices.

So Baglin was ordered to be committed to the Tombs, and in half an hour was on his way, accompanied by Marshal Henkel. Meantime Mr. Wise, during an adjournment of the court, took Robinson before the Grand Jury and tried to make him tell the conversation he had with A. P. Heinze, of which Baglin spoke. Robinson refused on the ground that it was a privileged communication between two attorneys of the United Copper Company, and Mr. Wise took him back before Judge Lacombe.

"He refuses to give the Grand Jury the information it desires," remarked Mr. Wise, who then went on to state that A. P. Heinze, who claimed to be a lawyer, was formerly a member of a brokerage firm and before that in the knit goods business. Mr. Wise doubted if A. P. Heinze had ever acted in a legal capacity in any matter connected with the United Copper Company, and as for Robinson, he declared that a Director could not evade his responsibility in such a matter merely because he was a Director.

"Members of the bar who choose to have themselves made officers or Directors of companies, when accused as Directors of being concerned in a plot to spirit the books away, cannot evade challenge by claiming to be members of the bar," remarked Judge Lacombe.

Joseph Cotton, Jr., counsel for Robinson, next took a hand, arguing that until it was shown that Robinson knew that a subpoena had been issued for the production of these books and until the Grand Jury minutes were before Judge Lacombe, Robinson should not be committed for contempt. Mr. Wise declared that Robinson had told him he knew of the subpoena for the books on May 19, but Judge Lacombe consented to let the matter stand over to this morning, saying incidentally that at the adjourned session of the court, if the facts appear from the Grand Jury minutes as stated by Mr. Wise, he would surely commit Robinson to jail until the books were produced.

CANNON LANDS WITH FIST.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Speaker Cannon, who sparred recently with "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien at the latter's training camp, demonstrated his pugilistic ability again to-day. "Uncle Joe" was sitting in his office in the Capitol smoking a long black cigar, when Alexander McDowell, Clerk of House, entered.

"What's all this I hear about your prowess with the mitts?" said McDowell tauntingly. "The only way you can fight is with a gavel."

"Is that so?" drawled the Speaker, without removing his cigar. "D'ye want a personal demonstration. Put up your dukes right now and I'll show you a trick or two."

"Oh! come come," said the Speaker. "Get in proper position. You don't know anything about the game. You look like an elderly lady trying to shoo chickens out of a garden patch. Put your left foot forward and guard with your left arm. That's better. Now, look out."

With the warning "Uncle Joe" made a few feints that had the effect of completely demoralizing McDowell. Sidestepping quickly he feinted wickedly with his left for the McDowell chin, and, as the Clerk threw up both guards, drove a hard one into the official's ribs.

"Ugh!" said McDowell, and a look of pained surprise crept over his face.

"It was a shame to do it," said "Uncle Joe," picking up his cigar and starting for the door.

"Come back," challenged McDowell vociferously. "Come back and make it a finish fight. I dare you."

"Aw, go and get a reputation first," was the Speaker's retort, as he vanished in a curling cloud of smoke.

GIVES LIFE TO SAVE ANOTHER.

Motorman Swings Girl Off Tracks, but Is Crushed to Death in Crash.

Motorman John McElive, who lived in Logan Street, Brooklyn, was crushed to death on Memorial Day while in the act of saving a little girl from death between two trolley cars. McElive leaves a widow and five children.

Elsie Baird, 9 years old, was a passenger on the New York and Queens County car run by McElive when it became blocked just outside College Point. She left the car to pick some violets by the tracks. Seeing a bunch growing between the rails she stepped in front of the car to get them. She did not see the other car that was backing rapidly down upon the stalled car and continued picking violets.

Motorman McElive saw the car and that its brake was out of order. He reached far over the dashboard and seized her by the shoulder. Swinging her with all his strength, for there was but a second to spare, he got her free from the rails just as the other car, with increasing momentum, reached his fender, which was crumpled up like paper.

McElive had all but lost his balance when he swung the little girl free from the track, and could not recover his poise soon enough to escape. He was caught between the two cars as they crashed together, and was badly crushed. He died as he was being lifted into the hospital ambulance.

BOY SAVES SCHOOL CHILDREN.

10-Year-Old Stops Runaway Horse That Was Bearing Down on Them.

Joseph Crilly, the 10-year-old son of Peter Crilly, Inspector of Highways of Richmond Borough, risked his life yesterday to save a group of his school playmates from being run down by a runaway horse on First Avenue, Tompkinsville.

Young Crilly saw the horse, drawing a wagon belonging to the Taylor Milk Company of Tompkinsville, dashing down First Avenue. The driver tugged at the reins, but was powerless to stop the animal. The Crilly boy was half a block above Westervelt Avenue when he saw the horse coming. The street runs at a sharp decline, and at Sherman Avenue, a block below Westervelt, is a schoolhouse. Crilly realized that the runaway horse must be stopped to save the school children, who were just then leaving the schoolhouse. He ran to the middle of the street and, leaping into the air, seized the horse's reins as the animal passed.

The boy was lifted from his feet and dragged along, but he clung on and swung the horse into Sherman Avenue, where it ran against the curb. Crilly was thrown to the pavement, but was only slightly hurt.

SAVED HER LITTLE BROTHER

But Five-Year-Old Herself Was Run Down and Seriously Injured.

With every childish thought set on saving her little brother from peril, five-year-old Angelina Melahdy ran from her grandmother's side and into the middle of Lexington Avenue, last night, in time to push the boy out of the way of a heavy coach that had just rolled around the corner of 116th Street.

The little heroine, scarcely more than a baby, accomplished the deed her courage and love had prompted her to, but herself became the victim, for the vehicle passed over her shoulder. She was also injured internally. Before the child's parents, who live at 106 East 116th Street, had learned of the accident the little girl was being removed to the Harlem Hospital in a critical condition.

Sergt. England of the East 104th Street Station was in the vicinity when the accident occurred, and he hastily summoned an ambulance. He then carried the little girl from the street, and did all he could to relieve her sufferings until the arrival of Dr. Smith. At the hospital it was said the girl might die.

The grandmother of the child said that the accident was not the fault of the driver, and declined to make any complaint against him. He said he was Dennis Ambrose of 206 East 126th Street, and in the employ of Louis Kahn, also of that address.

IRISH COOK LEAVES $30,000 TO A NEGRO

Bridget Torpy Worked 27 Years for One Family and Saved Every Cent She Earned.

MADE HER MARK TO WILL

Bridget Torpy, an Irishwoman, who had been for twenty-seven years cook in the family of Mrs. N. B. Taft of 46 West Twenty-fifth Street, died at the age of 70 of cancer in a house tenanted by negroes, at 221 West Eighteenth Street, on May 13 last. Some time previously she had left Mrs. Taft's employ, and was succeeded as cook by James Edward Johnson, a negro, who had been her assistant. Johnson lives in the house where Miss Torpy died.

Yesterday a will was produced and filed for probate with the Surrogate, which bequeaths the woman's entire estate to Johnson. The document was attested by the testatrix's mark, as she was unable to write her name. The petition accompanying the will gives the value of the estate as "more than $10,000" in personal property, but, according to her former employer, Miss Torpy left at least $30,000. The will contains this paragraph:

> I give and bequeath all my property of whatsoever kind and nature and wheresoever situated to James Edward Johnson as a token of regard for his kindness.

Across the face of the petition were written a few words to the effect that the decedent had said she had no relatives.

At her home last night Mrs. Taft said: "I employed Bridget Torpy for twenty-seven years. I understood that her birthplace was Galway, Ireland, and I think she told me she had cousins living there. I believe she left at least $30,000, as I paid her more than $11,000 in wages during her service with me, and I understood she had quite a fortune when she came to me.

"She was what you might call a miser, I suppose. She never spent a cent of her earnings, so far as I know, and I believe she had money in almost every savings bank in the city.

"Some time ago I learned the nature of her illness and prevailed upon her to go away for a time. She grew discontented, however, and later asked me to get her a room in this neighborhood. I did so, and she remained there for some time, but the next thing I knew she was living among the negroes in the house where she died. At her funeral were three white people—the others were negroes."

AEROPLANE IN TIMES SQUARE.

Beach Brings His New Model to the Times Building.

The latest designer of an airship, Stanley Y. Beach, aeronautical editor of The Scientific American, who with C. F. Willard has invented a monoplane, appeared last night in Broadway with it slung along the top of an automobile. It was only finished early yesterday at Morris Park, and it was hurried across country to the aeronautical festival at Arlington to compete for the $500 prize for construction and design. The contest was closed before it had accomplished its twenty-five-mile run, and Mr. Beach brought it on to New York to exhibit it to THE TIMES.

It is, he explained, a combination of the Bleriot monoplane, which has flown eighteen miles in France, and the Antoinette monoplane, which has stayed in the air for thirty-seven minutes and has attained a speed of forty-five miles an hour. Consequently the forward part of its thirty-two-foot wooden framework is square like the former machine and the after half triangular like the Antoinette.

The operator will take his seat in the middle, and have spread out at right angles to himself on either hand a plane thirty feet long. At the extremity of each plane is fixed a triangular wing, which is regulated by wires attached to the body of the aviator. When the machine turns a corner it will naturally tip over sideways, as the operator automatically inclines his body, and these tips will assist this movement and keep it within bounds.

The power is supplied by a 50 horse power, four-cylinder water-cooled engine, and it is hoped that a speed of thirty-five miles an hour will be attained. The propeller is in front, and is seven feet in diameter. Toward the rear is a small lifting plane, 5 feet by 6, fitted with triangular wing tips. A vertical rudder of polygon shape is at the end, and below it is an ordinary bicycle wheel, with which the necessary run along the ground at the start will be made.

VANDERBILT FIGHTS A LEASE.

George W. Says His Forestry Manager Had No Right to Make It.

Special to The New York Times.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., June 1.—Declaring that the head of his forestry department, Dr. C. A. Schenck, had no rightful authority to execute the ten-year lease on 80,000 acres of his Pysgah forest, which he gave in April at a rental of $5,000 a year to H. F. Addicks, Jr., of this city, who, in turn, assigned it to James A. Pugh and J. M. Chiles of Chicago, George W. Vanderbilt has notified Mr. Pugh and Mr. Chiles to confer with his attorneys in New York.

The Chicago men insist that the lease, which has been duly recorded in two counties in which the land lies, is a perfectly valid one, but they are willing to modify it in unimportant particulars. They insist, however, that Dr. Schenck had a perfect right to execute it, since Mr. Vanderbilt has in the past ratified leases made by Dr. Schenck in his name.

Dr. Schenck made the lease in April, and the Chicago men paid the two years' rental required in advance. Then they formed a hunting and fishing club with several hundred prospective members, and leased the game rights on 50,000 acres adjoining. Mr. Vanderbilt arrived here last month, soon after the fight in his office between Dr. Schenck and C. D. Beadle, head of the nursery department, which is said to have been over the matter of the lease.

Upon hearing that the Chicago men were to charge an initiation fee of $250 and annual dues of $100 to each member of the club, and thus make a net profit of $50,000 a year, Mr. Vanderbilt consulted with his attorneys here, and then went last week to New York to consult with counsel there. The Chicago men will fight to the last, if necessary, for their rights.

LAWYER GONE OFF LINER?

Wireless Received Here Says Isaac Moss Is Missing from Prinzess Alice.

A private message, received by wireless in this city yesterday, announced to friends of Isaac Moss, a lawyer at 35 Nassau Street, who was booked as a passenger on the outgoing steamer Prinzess Alice, that he was missing from the steamer. She sailed last Thursday, but going aground off Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island, got away on Friday afternoon.

At Mr. Moss's home, 71 East Ninety-sixth Street, last night, his wife was ill and unable to confirm the report that an accident had happened to him.

Benjamin F. Feiner, Mr. Moss's partner in the law firm of Moss & Feiner, said at his apartments, 27 East Ninety-fifth Street, last night that he had received a confidential message on Monday—from what source he refused to tell, though he implied that it was not "official" and left him somewhat in doubt—intimating that some mishap had occurred to his associate aboard the Prinzess Alice. It did not come by Marconi wireless, Mr. Feiner said, and he had been unable to confirm it since.

The Prinzess Alice carries only Marconi wireless, and it was said at the office of that company last night that messages from her could come through no other source. The Alice was out of touch yesterday with the Marconi stations on this side of the ocean. She will next communicate through the European stations.

Mr. Moss had intended to spend the Summer traveling in Germany to recover his health, and had planned to stop at various watering places there. He was not alone. Mr. Feiner, however, declined last night to say who accompanied him. He has been married only about two years, and has one child, an infant.

PARIS BANKS BUY STEEL.

Negotiations for Listing Concluded—J. P. Morgan Brought It About.

PARIS, June 1.—The negotiations for the listing of the shares of the United States Steel Corporation on the Paris Bourse were officially concluded to-day. Six influential banking institutions have bought outright a large block of the stock and will offer it to the public.

The credit for the listing of Steel common, which opens the door to other American stocks, belongs primarily to J. P. Morgan, who has been in Paris personally directing the campaign which finally convinced the French bankers, the Governors of the Stock Exchange, and the Ministry of Finance that the time had arrived when the bars should be let down.

The circumstances were propitious. Those French credit institutions which had been hostile to American stocks have been astounded at the rapid recovery since the recent financial depression in the United States, which French financiers predicted would end in complete collapse. Latterly, also, the threat of increased taxation, such as the income tax, has had the effect of driving much French money to seek investment abroad, and the attractiveness of American stocks proved irresistible, resulting in a great deal of curb speculation and investment, to the detriment of the French Treasury.

Both the Stock Exchange Governors and the French Government, therefore, decided that the time had come to give American stocks a legal standing.

STEEL TRUST TO DROP UNIONS

Last Subsidiary to Deal with Them Gives Notice of Discontinuance.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, June 1.—Notices were posted to-day at the various plants of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company that on and after June 30 the company will refuse to deal with the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, Sheet and Tin Plate Workers. The company is the last of the subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation to deal with union labor, and it is asserted that the corporation has now decided to drop the union altogether.

It is in the tin-plate plants that the union workmen have held their own. The American Sheet and Tin Plate Company has 252 mills, employing 15,120 men when running full. Of the 202 mills now in operation 131 are operated by union men and 71 by non-union men.

On July 1 of each year a new wage scale is signed between the Amalgamated Association and the various plate plants. The Amalgamated Association will not give up without a stubborn fight, and a strike will probably be ordered on July 1. This will effect about 10,000 men.

COOPER UNION ASKS $600,000.

Call for That Sum for a New Building to Accommodate Students.

Cooper Union, in its fiftieth annual report, which was given out last night at an exhibition of the work performed by its technical classes, asks for $600,000. Last year it had 6,084 new applications for admission. There were also 1,789 promotions from the classes of the previous year, so that it needed room for 7,873 individuals in all. It could accommodate less than half that number.

The city has granted to the union the old Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory in Cooper Square, between Sixth and Seventh Streets, in which accommodation could be provided for 5,000 students. It was hoped when this grant was made that the expenditure of a comparatively small sum of money would be sufficient to convert the armory to its new purpose. Since then it has been found that a new building is necessary, and if the good work of the union is not to be hampered, $600,000, a sum quite beyond its own powers, must be raised.

DR. H. C. KEENAN KILLED.

Dr. Henry C. Keenan, a Police Surgeon of 1,144 Dean Street, Brooklyn, was killed by being thrown from his carriage at Carlton and Flushing Avenues yesterday while his horse was running away. He sustained internal injuries and a fractured skull, and died an hour later in the Cumberland Street Hospital.

Dr. Keenan was returning from a professional call when his horse bolted and dashed along Carlton Avenue. Near Flushing Avenue the carriage collided with a baker's wagon and overturned, Dr. Keenan striking on his head in the street.

Dr. Keenan was a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons. He was appointed a police surgeon in 1908 by Commissioner Bingham.

BOY KILLED BY AUTO; YALE STUDENT HELD

MANSLAUGHTER THE CHARGE

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 1.—Speeding out Stratford Avenue to-day in an effort to reach New Haven in time for their recitations, Harold Hartwell and Joel Ellis Fisher, Yale juniors, ran down and killed ten-year-old Morris Christianson, near the new car barns at Surf Avenue, in Stratford.

Young Fisher, whose home is in New York and who lives at 22 College Street, New Haven, is the owner of the automobile and was driving the car at the time of the fatality. He was at once arrested by Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Stagg. Fisher and Hartwell would say nothing in regard to the accident, saying they wished to consult with counsel.

Bystanders say that at the time of the accident the men were letting out their car at a fast rate of speed when they passed Surf Avenue. As they did so the Christianson boy started to cross the road. Fisher, who is said to be an expert driver, threw his machine far to the right in an effort to go around the boy.

The car swung upon the low sidewalk, but in so doing the rear wheels struck the fleeing boy and hurled him twenty-five feet through the air. He struck on the back of his head, and when picked up it was found that his skull was crushed at the base of the brain.

As the rear wheels struck the boy one of the forward wheels ran with a crash into a large telephone pole. Fisher and Hartwell were thrown out and the machine turned completely over and landed next to the wall of the car barns. Neither Fisher nor Hartwell was injured, and the machine when righted did not appear to be damaged in the slightest.

Immediately after the accident a call was sent for an ambulance, and Dr. Kraus responded. The boy seemed to be in a dying condition. The ambulance started for the Bridgeport Hospital, but as the boy became steadily weaker it was stopped at the office of Dr. Blackman at 1119 Stratford Avenue. The lad was immediately placed upon the operating table, but died within five minutes.

Fisher and Hartwell left New Haven Saturday in Fisher's car to spend Sunday and Memorial Day with their parents in New York. In starting from New York this morning on their return they were delayed by tire troubles, but hoped to reach the university in time for their afternoon recitations. The two or three men who saw the accident say that Fisher took his own life in his hand and did all in his power to prevent the accident.

Late this afternoon Fisher was arraigned before Judge Charles H. Peck of Stratford and held in $3,000 bonds, on the charge of manslaughter, for a hearing on Saturday. Bail was later furnished by Major J. J. Hurley.

Joel Ellis Fisher is the son of Mrs. Joel Ellis Fisher of 34 West Seventy-sixth Street, this city.

LIED ABOUT WIFE'S DEATH.

Dr. Cleminson, Held for Murder, Admits Burglar Story Was Untrue.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 1.—"The story of my wife and I being chloroformed by burglars is a fake. I invented it, and feigned illness to save the honor of my children."

This admission by Dr. Haldane Cleminson, held for the murder of his wife, is taken by the police as the forerunner of a full confession as to how his wife met her death at the family residence early Sunday morning.

Dr. Cleminson made the above admission after a two hours' sweating to-night by Capt. Thomas C. Kane, and later reiterated it in the presence of a group of newspaper men. The suspect made no direct statement, but cast insinuations that his wife committed suicide.

Capt. Kane laughed at this suggestion, and again repeated that he believed Cleminson was guilty of murder. The motive, the one thing that seemed to have been missing, is now believed to be asserting itself, and the police declare it will develop into the discovery of another woman.

FORCED TO QUIT HARVARD.

Ex-Quarter Back Cutler and S. M. Fish of New York Punished.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 1.—Following their conviction in the District Court to-day of disturbing the peace, John W. Cutler of Brookline and Sydney M. Fish of New York, students at Harvard University, received "leave to withdraw from the university" from the Governing Board of the institution. The charge, which resulted in a fine of $10, arose from a disturbance in the college yard at 3 o'clock this morning. Two policemen arrested the students.

Cutler is 21 years old, a senior, and was quarter back of last year's football team. He is on the Class Day Committee, and expected to take a prominent part in the festivities. His brother is Captain of the 'Varsity crew.

Fish is at present on parole as the result of an escapade about this time last year. He was suspended from the crew of which he was a member, after he had admitted to surreptitiously taking a book from the college library. This year he took a course in the Law School in an attempt to receive the degree which his act of last year cost him.

Deschanel Commends His Efforts at Alliance Francaise Meeting.

PARIS, June 1.—The Alliance Française celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary to-day at the Sorbonne. M. Loubet, the former President of France, presided.

Paul Deschanel, ex-President of the Chamber of Deputies and President of the French Parliamentary Committee on Foreign and Colonial Affairs, reviewed the work of the association in the propagation of the French language and ideals abroad. He eulogized the work of the exchange professors in the United States, giving credit to James Hazen Hyde for the initiative in this direction. At the same time he deprecated the fact that of 15,000 teachers of French in America only 500 were French.

Mr. Hyde was elected a member of the Board of Administration.

Burglars in Seattle Suburb Hit Upon Hiding Place for Treasure.

SEATTLE, Wash., June 1.—Mrs. George Shea of Duluth, Minn., who is visiting her sister, Mrs. John English, at Alki Point, a suburb of Seattle, has reported to the police that she has been robbed of $20,000 in currency.

Mrs. Shea's husband, who intended to follow her from Duluth, and buy property here, shipped the money to her by the Great Northern Express Company, which delivered the package to her on Thursday. She intended to put the money in a bank at once, but for various reasons put it off. Yesterday she and her sister decided to visit Seattle to see the decorations. She hid the $20,000 between the sheets of a bed. On returning home at night she found that burglars had ransacked the house and stolen the treasure.

TRIED SUICIDE IN A CELL.

Trenton Filipino Objected to Being Locked Up with a Negro.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 1.—C. Conundo Heato, a Filipino, arrested for larceny here, attempted suicide to-day when placed in the same cell with a negro.

The negro said to Heato when he objected to them being in such close proximity: "You are as much a nigger as I am."

The Filipino resented this and tried to hang himself. While the negro was asleep the Filipino noosed a towel about his throat, then tied it to the top bar of his cell door, and jumped off the bunk.

Guards cut him down and revived him. He said he felt it a disgrace to be put in the cell with a negro.

A "METEOR" FROM THE BRIDGE

As the bark Daisy Read was passing under the central arch of Brooklyn Bridge, in tow of the tug Robert McAllister, at 3 P. M. yesterday, on her way to the lumber yard of Cross & Austin, 150th Street and Harlem River, her skipper, L. Walle, was startled by a chunk of iron crashing upon the deck with great force about three feet from where he was standing. The piece of iron made a dent two inches deep in the deck.

The missile was a chunk of angle iron, painted red, and weighing nine pounds.

The owners of the bark will ask the Public Service Commission this morning whether there is any likelihood of more "meteors" falling from aloft on the decks of vessels passing under the bridge.

NEW BLOW FOR CONEY ISLAND.

Concert Hall Owners Forbidden to Sell Liquor Except at the Bar.

The proprietors of concert halls in Coney Island faced a new form of what they call police persecution yesterday when they received word from Capt. Palmor of the Coney Island Police Station that they must not sell liquor in the lobbies or auditoriums of their show places under an order sent out by Police Commissioner Bingham yesterday morning. They could continue to sell liquor over their bars, but this concession amounted to practically nothing so far as retaining the trade went, and last night saw the concert halls practically deserted.

Harry Conners, proprietor of the Imperial Music Hall in the Bowery, had evidently received work of what was coming, for he had obtained an injunction from Supreme Court Justice Stapleton preventing the police from interfering with him. He did a big business in consequence.

MRS. JOHNSON'S WILL UPHELD

Her Daughter, Mrs. J. W. Taylor, Fails in Fight Over $2,000,000 Estate.

BOSTON, June 1.—The will of Mrs. Caroline E. Johnson of 416 Fifth Avenue, New York, disposing of an estate of $2,000,000, and which is being contested by a daughter, Mrs. Joseph W. Taylor of New York, was upheld by Judge George in the Suffolk County Probate Court to-day. It is understood the contestant will carry the case to the Supreme Court.

The bulk of the estate was left to Ellerton P. Whitney of Milton, a nephew, who also acted as executor, and to two of three daughters, Mrs. Taylor receiving the smallest part. Mrs. Taylor contested the will on the ground of unsound mind and undue influence on the part of Whitney and her sisters.

As much of the property owned by Mrs. Johnson was in Boston, the will was offered for probate here.

LANDIS ON HARRIMAN.

Not Concerned About Statements "Against Enforcement of Law."

CHICAGO, June 1.—When Judge Kenesaw M. Landis of the United States District Court picked up his newspaper at breakfast this morning his eyes fell on an interview with E. H. Harriman, and as he glanced down the column he was interested to read that Mr. Harriman had laid the financial panic of 1907 directly at his door.

Having read what Mr. Harriman had to say about his $29,000,000 fine against the Standard Oil Company, Judge Landis was asked what he thought about Mr. Harriman. He replied:

"I am not concerned about what any one says in opposition to the enforcement of the criminal law."

OUST BINGHAM, GAYNOR URGES

Writes to the Mayor Charging That the Commissioner Backs Oppression

AND IS DEFIANT OF LAW

BINGHAM QUICKLY RETORTS

Supreme Court Justice William J. Gaynor of Brooklyn addressed to Mayor McClellan last night a letter demanding the removal of Police Commissioner Bingham.

Justice Gaynor, in this letter, charges the police under Gen. Bingham's administration with oppressing innocent persons, accuses the Police Commissioner himself of open defiance of the ruling of the courts forbidding the placing in the Rogues' Gallery of the photographs of persons who have not been convicted of crime, and cites in detail a case of what he regards as police persecution which he shows has been brought to his personal notice and which in turn he called to the attention of the Police Commissioner without obtaining redress.

"He is possessed," writes Justice Gaynor, "of the most dangerous and destructive delusion that officials can entertain in a free Government, namely, that he is under no legal restraint whatever, but may do as he wills, instead of only what the law permits, and that only in the manner it prescribes."

The Justice intimated that while he wrote to the Mayor, his first impulse had been to write to Gov. Hughes, requesting him to remove Gen. Bingham, but he desired first to give the Mayor an opportunity to act.

Justice Gaynor declined, after giving out his letter, to comment further upon it. He was particularly averse to discussing any possible significance it might have in view of his statement in it that he had wished he had power even for a short time to right some of the things of which he complained.

"The letter," he said, "speaks for itself. I have nothing to add to it."

Gen. Bingham, through his secretary, gave out late last night a long statement, including the correspondence between himself and Justice Gaynor in regard to the particular case of alleged police oppression his letter cited.

This statement made plain that the Commissioner believes he was right in refusing to take the Justice's view of the case of the boy over whom the controversy arose, and that apparently he will continue to keep the boy's picture in the Rogues' Gallery unless he is compelled to take it out.

It was impossible for reporters to reach the Mayor last night.

Here is Justice Gaynor's letter:

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 29, 1909.

Sir: I had written a letter to the Governor of the State to get redress for the scoundrelism hereinafter mentioned, through the power of removal of city officials which he possesses, but on second thought I conclude to withhold it, and first ask for such redress through you.

On June 16, 1907, George B. Duffy, 19 years old, son of George E. Duffy of 237 Wyckoff Street, Brooklyn, was arrested near his home by a police officer without a warrant and locked up overnight. No charge of any criminal offense was made against him, but only that he was "a suspicious person." He had never been arrested before. He had lived at home in the neighborhood all his life, and could be found or identified at any hour.

The next morning he was taken to Police Headquarters, or Central Office, and subjected to the routine and indignities of a felon. He was stripped, measured, and photographed, and his picture was hung up in the Rogues' Gallery and his name entered in the index of felons. The next day he was taken before a Magistrate and discharged. No complaint of any kind was made against him. It seems that the glass window of a saloon had been broken some days before and some whisky taken out. The saloon keeper, who was brought to court by the police to look at him, could make no complaint against him, and disavowed having anything to do with the arrest.

It was not long before it spread abroad that his picture was in the Rogues' Gallery, and he was gibed and twitted of it in the streets. His father tried every way to have the picture taken down and the record destroyed, and failing he came to me. I wrote several friendly letters to the Police Commissioner calling his attention to the illegality of the matter and asking that he cause the picture to be taken down and the record to be erased, but he finally refused. Instead of helping the boy my efforts only hurt him, as you will see presently.

What It Means to be Marked by Police.

The object of putting a person in the "Rogues' Gallery" and recording him as a criminal is to have the police force familiarized with his personal appearance, name, and residence, in order to watch and hunt him as one who has settled on a life of crime, and become a pest to society. The natural result follows, and followed in this boy's case. He was marked by the police. After being put in the "Rogues' Gallery" and indexed as a felon, he was arrested again and again on sight and without warrant or cause, except that he was in the "Rogues' Gallery," and therefore to be hunted.

On November 26, 1907, he was arrested on the street near his home of an evening and locked up over night in a cell with filthy persons. When taken before the Magistrate next day no criminal charge could be made against him. He was, therefore, charged by the police with violating an ordinance by obstructing the street, and discharged with a suspended sentence. He did not obstruct the street except by being on it. The charge is a stock one, used for lack of a truthful one. It is neither a felony nor a misdemeanor, but one of those small things not included among crimes at all which magistrates are allowed to summarily dispose of, and the boy felt it was useless to contest it. After being locked up all night he was glad to get away without any dispute.

Just think of the boys of the city being locked up, and brought into court with felons on such a charge, and trumped up at that! What effect must such an experience have on the future of an average boy?

On Sept. 22, 1908, he was again arrested in the street and locked up over night [illegible] the terrible charge by the police of [illegible] and highway robbery. His parents were shocked. Two days later he was brought before a Magistrate. The man who claimed to have been assaulted and robbed was brought there to identify him, but immediately said on seeing him that he was not the culprit; that he was robbed by a man, not by a boy, and he was discharged.

The fact was then revealed there that the police had taken the complainant through the "Rogues' Gallery" and pointed out this boy's picture to him, and got from him that the photograph resembled the person who had robbed him, and on that alone, without taking the complainant to see this boy or going before a Magistrate or using any precaution whatever, they arrested him and locked him up with felons. He was again arrested in a similar way and discharged.

On last Sunday morning he got home from his work at about 7 o'clock. He works on a milk route delivering milk, which is night and early morning work as you know. He washed and dressed and went to church. Afterward he went to bed, as he has to sleep some part of the day on account of his night occupation. In the evening he went out to visit a young lady.

He was arrested at 8 o'clock P. M. on the street in the sight of many by a Headquarters detective in plain clothes, who told him his picture was in the "Rogues' Gallery," and who took him to the police station and locked him up in a cell over night. The false and malicious charge of vagrancy was entered on the station blotter against this boy, who works every day of his life, and has a refined and good home with his parents.

Monday morning he was taken to Police Headquarters, or Central Office. A squad of about fifteen detectives, with their faces masked, were called in to look at him. They yelled at him and shoved him about. The officer at the desk told them his name, and that he was a well-known thief, and added, with a sneer, that "he thought he had pull enough to get his picture out of the 'Rogues' Gallery,'" and turning to the boy, told him he might as well get that idea out of his head at once.

This had reference to my poor efforts with the Police Commissioner which I have already stated. I am fully conscious of my lack of power to put a stop to the outrageous violations of our laws and system of free government which occur unchecked in this city daily and are fast debasing us. Such occurrences often make me wish that I had the power even for a month or two. In that time official lawlessness could be stopped and Anglo-Saxon government restored to the city, at all events.

I give the words as the boy gives them to me. After this outrageous treatment he was taken to court before Magistrate Furlong at 10 o'clock. No charge whatever was made against him there and he was discharged. Meanwhile he had been absent from his work. A messenger came to his father's house for him from his employer at 3 o'clock in the morning. He should have been at work at 2 o'clock. He could not be found, and was unable to send any word home.

Making It Impossible to be Honest.

Need I say that this boy must get redress from this criminal official wrongdoing and oppression or be ruined for life? He has a position in which he earns $18 a week, but he and his parents have lived in daily dread of the day his employer would learn that his picture is in the "Rogues' Gallery," and discharge him. Do you not know how hard life is, and how most of the people of this great city, over which in God's providence you rule, have to struggle to live or make both ends meet?

This boy's family is a most excellent one, and the anxiety of his father and mother for his future, pilloried and disgraced as he now is, can be understood by every good father and mother. The Police Commissioner is doing all he can to make it impossible for him to lead an honest life and make an honest living, and to force him instead to a life of crime.

Many thousands of false arrests are being made here annually and many boys begin their downward career from the humiliation and debasement of being locked up in a cell over night without any cause or for some trifle. The men on the police force do not want to do these and like things, but are forced to by the incompetents, corruptionists, and sometimes buffoons who are put in rulership over them and suffered to run their course unchecked.

No free people can be ruled in a lawless manner. Those put into office and authority should first of all obey the laws which regulate and limit their official conduct and powers. In that way only can they effectively enforce the laws against others. Ours is a government of laws and not of men. But it depends on freedom from unlawful official interference and freedom of lawful speech, which are guaranteed by our Constitutions and cannot exist without both.

Courts Openly Disobeyed.

"May I remind you of some pertinent things which you already know, but which have, it would seem, escaped your attention. In November, 1907, the police authorities lawlessly seized persons who were at large under bail on indictment in Kings County and had them photographed and measured and their pictures hung in the Rogues' Gallery. There was a wide protest against this open and defiant assault and violation of law. A citizen, Mr. Charles H. Hyde, wrote a letter to your Honor, pointing out its illegality except in the case of convicted persons, and asked you to stop the Police Commissioner, as you have ample power to do. May I remind you that you only acknowledged receipt of his letter and stated that it had been referred to the Police Commissioner, who was the offender, and that the same illegal conduct has gone on openly and notoriously from day to day to this hour.

Moreover, the next month (in December, 1907,) our Supreme Court here, Mr. Justice Burr presiding, decided that the police officials have no authority to measure and photograph persons and put their pictures in the Rogues' Gallery, unless on conviction of crime and sentence to prison, as the statutes expressly provide, (Laws of 1896, Chapter 440; Laws of 1889, Chapter 382, Section 40.) The case is Gow vs. Bingham, reported in 57 Miscellaneous Reports at Page 66.

The matter was thus put beyond dispute, for the police and all executive officers have to conform to the decisions of the courts. But it is an ordinary thing for the Police Commissioner to refuse to obey the decisions of the courts and compel the police force to disobey them. Many instances can be cited. In this case he openly and ostentatiously set himself above the law. The next day after the decision he made public announcement that he would not obey it, and he has continued to this hour to disobey it, without reprimand or check, much less removal.

He is possessed of the most dangerous and destructive delusion that officials can entertain in a free government, namely, that he is under no legal restraint whatever, but may do as he wills, instead of only what the law permits, and that only in the manner it prescribes. Respectfully yours,

W. J. GAYNOR.

Gen. Bingham's Reply.

News of the circulation of Justice Gaynor's letter reached Police Headquarters soon after 9 o'clock last night. Immediately afterward Secretary Slattery appeared there, and soon afterward this statement was issued by Mr. Slattery:

"Commissioner Bingham dropped into Police Headquarters last night and heard about Justice Gaynor's letter to the Mayor. It did not seem to surprise him very much, and when he asked if the Justice had made public all the correspondence in relation to the Duffy case and was informed that he had not, the Commissioner remarked: 'I didn't think he would.'

"The first I ever heard of the case of George Duffy [the statement, evidently quoting Gen. Bingham, continued] was on March 15, when I received a letter from Judge Gaynor telling me how the boy's picture was in the Rogues' Gallery and ought to be removed. I wrote Judge Gaynor the next day, telling him I would look into the matter. I demanded a report on the arrest of George Duffy, and as a result of the report I received I wrote Judge Gaynor on March 22:

> My Dear Mr. Justice—In further replying to your letter of March 15 and my answer of March 16, I have the honor to inform you as follows:
> Duffy was discharged by the Magistrate upon the complaint upon which his photograph was taken. The Police Department is not, however, required by law to remove his photographs from its records, because Duffy was discharged on June 19, 1907, before the new law went into effect, (Sept. 1, 1907,) which law has been declared, I believe, by the courts not to be retroactive.
>
> In addition to this your attention is called to the record below of three subsequent arrests of Duffy, on the first of which he was convicted and sentence suspended. The police report to me that Duffy is a very disorderly person, with a bad reputation, and that some of his associates are degenerates.
>
> 1. June 16, 1907—George B. Duffy of 237 Wyckoff Street, Brooklyn, was arrested by Patrolman Hynes of the One Hundred and Forty-sixth Precinct, charged with being a suspicious person, and discharged in the police court. (Photograph taken then.)
>
> 2. Nov. 26, 1907—George B. Duffy was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct by Patrolmen Elwood and Ruff of the One Hundred and Forty-ninth Precinct. Sentence suspended by Judge Tighe.
>
> 3. March 22, 1908—George B. Duffy arrested with one James Duncan, Charles Collier, and Lewis Byrne, charged with assault and robbery. Duffy was discharged by Magistrate Dooley. (No notice taken, apparently, of the previous suspended sentence.)
>
> 4. Sept. 22, 1908—George B. Duffy arrested by Detective Clark and Tunney, charged with assault and robbery. James Duncan was also arrested at this time. Both were discharged in the police court.
>
> Duffy was also an associate of Alfred Collier, who was arrested in Brooklyn charged with assaulting and robbing one Charles O'Neil, and who was sentenced to twenty years in Sing Sing by Judge Norman S. Dike. Collier was also indicted for robbing one Robert W. Hains of 407 Washington Avenue, Brooklyn, on Feb. 27, 1908, of $25. Collier was assisted in this robbery by an unknown man.
>
> Information has come to me that during the trial of Alfred Collier, George B. Duffy stood up in court and had himself identified as a witness for the defense, and upon whom the complainant against Collier had committed several attacks. Michael Moran, a pal of Duffy and Collier, testified at the same trial to the same effect.
>
> Lewis Byrne, who was arrested with Duffy on March 22, 1908, has pleaded guilty to burglary and is awaiting sentence. James Duncan, who was arrested with Duffy on March 22, 1908, has since been arrested in Boston, Mass., on a charge of highway robbery, and is now serving eight years in that State. Michael Moran, who was a witness with Duffy for the defense of Alfred Collier, was also arrested in Boston with Duncan on the same charge, and is now serving nine years in the Massachusetts State Prison.
>
> Considering the foregoing, my personal opinion is that no injustice has been done Duffy by having his picture in the Rogues' Gallery. Do you think that the Police Department would be justified in giving up this boy's record? If you think so, I will comply with your request, but you will observe that in spite of what his parents say his record is bad. Very truly yours,
>
> THEODORE A. BINGHAM,
> Police Commissioner.

Gaynor Wouldn't Ask.

"In reply to the foregoing letter I received a note from Judge Gaynor on April 2, in which he thanked me for the trouble I had taken, and in which he said he would send after the parents of Duffy and demand an explanation from them. On April 19 I received the following letter from Judge Gaynor:

> Dear Gen. Bingham: I have further carefully examined into the case of George B. Duffy, in pursuance of your letter of March 22. The case before Tighe was not for any crime, whether misdemeanor or felony, but only for one of those minor infractions under the Charter with which Magistrates are permitted to summarily deal. The other arrest seems to have been founded on no evidence whatever. The other charge of enormity seems to have nothing back of it, and he denies it. This boy is at work in a responsible place, but, of course, he can never get along with his picture in the Rogues' Gallery. You are very kind, my dear General, in saying you will take down the picture if I ask it, but I am averse to asking it outright, for I would prefer that if it be done you should get the credit of it yourself. No law is in the way, that I can see, and I hope you will do it. It may save this young chap. He has good parents and a good home, and is not so bad himself. He is like many boys brought up in this city, subject to many bad influences.
> Sincerely yours,
> W. J. GAYNOR.

"I was out of town when the above letter was received, and it was held over to await action on my return. On May 12 I received this letter from Judge Gaynor:

> My Dear Gen. Bingham:
>
> I did not know you were back again until I saw your very frank speech concerning the restoration of dismissed police officers, which I hope will have a good effect. You are already aware of my opinion on that subject. I hope you have read my last letter about young Duffy, and that you can send me over a word about it soon, as his father called to see me last night.
>
> Sincerely yours,

Bingham Wouldn't Relent.

"I answered that letter on May 14 as follows:

> May 14, 1909.
> Hon. W. J. Gaynor, Supreme Court, Appellate Division, Brooklyn, N. Y.:
>
> My Dear Judge Gaynor—Yours of May 12 received. For the kind words in which please accept my thanks. In regard to the Duffy case let me repeat that:
>
> 1. The law requiring the removal of photographs did not go into effect until after the date of the taking of the photograph.
>
> 2. This young man had been arrested three times subsequently, on the first of which occasions he was convicted and is still under suspended sentence.
>
> 3. The police reports on this young man are that he is a very disorderly person and has a bad character.
>
> 4. Nevertheless I was inclined to yield to your representations in the matter, and have sent over word twice to have the young man call and see me. This he has failed to do, and the last word is that the family will not let him come and has consulted an eminent lawyer, who advised against this. Under the circumstances, my dear Judge, my duty is clear to take no further steps in this matter.
>
> Regretting the circumstances, I am, very truly yours, THEODORE A. BINGHAM,
> Police Commissioner.

Here followed an affidavit from Thomas J. Tunney, a Brooklyn Detective Sergeant, in which he tells of visiting the Duffys' home and requesting that the boy be sent to see the Fourth Deputy Police Commissioner, and of being informed later that on the advice of "an eminent lawyer" he did not go. Gen. Bingham's statement continued:

Angry Letter Ended Encounter.

"I was not surprised when I received the following letter, under date of May 17, from Justice Gaynor, a letter which I thought did not require an answer:

> Dear Sir: Yours of May 14, in the case of young Duffy, is at hand. I have done all I can to see this poor boy righted. Nothing seems to be left for him but to submit to absolute ruin for life at your hands, or else proceed to teach you in the ample ways open to him that autocrats are not suffered under our system of Government.
>
> Let me say to you that your repeated statement that this boy has been convicted of a crime is known to you to be untruthful and is a libel. The thing you mention on which he was before Judge Tighe was neither a felony nor a misdemeanor, as you are fully informed. You speak about some law, but there is no law permitting you to hang this boy's picture among murderers and thieves, and it is a scoundrelly thing to do. I may as well speak plainly, for such lawless treatment of people needs plain speech. Nor do I believe that you ever sent for him to come and see you. I would have brought him to you myself if you asked. I am fully assured that he never received a word of any kind purporting to be from you.
>
> Yours, &c.,

Secretary Slattery had nothing to add to this statement.

STEVENS QUITS NEW HAVEN.

Company's Vice President Said to Have Gone with J. J. Hill.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 1.—It was announced officially at the offices of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company to-day that Vice President John F. Stevens has resigned. The official circular, which bears the date of May 29, says:

> Mr. John F. Stevens, Vice President, in charge of operation, has resigned to accept service elsewhere. The position is abolished. The General Manager will report to the President.

At the New Haven Railroad office nothing is known as to the position that Mr. Stevens will assume, but it is generally believed that he will go with James J. Hill's lines.

Mr. Stevens, after giving up his place on the Panama Canal, came to the New Haven Road in April, 1907, and immediately began making a valuation of all the company's property, a task lasting for about a year. Though the valuation has never been printed, it is understood that it showed an appraisal of about $600,000,000, as compared with assets of somewhat more than $368,000,000 as scheduled in the last annual balance sheet of the company.

Under Mr. Stevens's supervision the road has brought about many economies in the transportation department. In the last year he has also done considerable outside work, in the way of valuation of the Hill properties, and to some extent those of the Erie Railroad. It has not been generally known that one reason for Mr. Stevens's continued connection with the New Haven Company was a plan that he should become President of the Boston & Maine Railroad, as a successor to Lucius Tuttle, but this plan fell through, partly owing to the complexities of the Boston & Maine merger.

Mr. Stevens left New Haven yesterday for Chicago.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 1.—Nothing definite could be learned at either the Great Northern or Northern Pacific Railroad offices to-day as to the position John F. Stevens will hold with the Hill lines except that he will not come to the Great Northern.

While J. J. Hill, Chairman of the Great Northern Railway, is in Seattle and Louis W. Lewis, the President, is at his farm north of this city, no official statement could be obtained. An official of the Great Northern said he was positive that Mr. Stevens was not coming to the Great Northern.

BAR MIDDIES FROM MARRYING.

Meyer Says They Must First Serve Six Years of Apprenticeship.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Midshipmen in the United States Navy cannot marry now until they have completed their full six years of apprenticeship. This order was issued by Secretary Meyer and approved by the President to-day.

Heretofore the Naval Academy regulations ruled that no midshipman could marry during his cadet days. There have been instances, however, where members of the graduating class have insisted that when they completed their course of studies at the Academy the rules did not extend to them while on the required sea cruise of two years. There was nothing in the regulations of the navy that governed the middies in this regard while they were undertaking the sea duty necessary for them to qualify, and Secretary Meyer decided it would simplify matters to put in such an inhibition.

"The order is issued for the good of the service and for the welfare of the young men," said the Secretary to-day. "The young officers are educated for four years at the expense of the Government, and they have no opportunity to earn a competence. For the last-named reason they cannot support wives, and, besides, they would be in continual service at sea and away from their brides for at least twenty-three months."

This is the second blow given Cupid by the military establishment within the week. Gen. J. Franklin Bell, Chief of Staff of the army, warned the new Lieutenants entering the Medical Corps that marriage while they were young in the service was fatal.

SHERIFF SHIPP GETS DELAY.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Sentence was not pronounced to-day in the cases of ex-Sheriff J. F. Shipp and the five other Chattanooga men held guilty of contempt of the Supreme Court for either aiding in or not preventing the lynching of the negro Ed Johnson in Chattanooga in March, 1906. The men were all present, in accordance with the order issued last Monday, when the decision holding them for punishment was handed down.

The Chief Justice announced that the court had decided to allow thirty days in which the lawyers might prepare and present a petition for a rehearing. Meantime the defendants are to remain under bail of $1,000 each to be given in the District Court at Chattanooga. Inasmuch as the Supreme Court adjourned to-day until the October term this means that the defendants have at least till then before sentence is passed on them, if their petition for rehearing fails.

SENATE WRANGLES ON COTTON TEXTILES

Aldrich Charges That Importers, by Ingenious Rulings, Tried to Destroy Tariff Law.

ROOT DEFENDS APPRAISERS

Senator Cummins Introduces Amendment to Tax Incomes of More Than $5,000 a Year—Talk of Night Sessions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The big fight on cotton textiles began to-day with a show of temper on both sides. Senator Aldrich protested against the reading of an importers' brief by Senator Dolliver on the ground that the importers had sought by ingenious rulings to destroy the tariff law. Mr. Dolliver replied that the rulings were made not by the importers, but by Marion de Vries, whom the committee had called to Washington to advise it how to draft its bill, and later in the afternoon Mr. Root defended the appraisers, of whom Mr. De Vries is one, in a spirited speech.

Mr. Aldrich began the final consideration of the schedule with two slight reductions. The proviso inserted by the Senate amendment in the paragraph fixing specific rates on cotton thread and carded yarn to prevent the specific rates falling below 20 per cent. was changed to read 15 per cent., and a similar proviso in regard to colored or dyed yarns and threads was changed from 25 per cent. to 20 per cent.

In regard to the effect of the general Senate textile provisions which Senator La Follette said had been estimated to effect increases of from 12 to 400 per cent. Mr. Dolliver read a statement from importers as to the hardships the proposed rates and classifications would work if enacted.

"Shall we yield?" said Mr. Aldrich, interrupting, "to the importunities of these gentlemen who are reading the briefs of those interested only in destroying the law?"

Mr. Dolliver protested against the use of such language. After it was all over Mr. Aldrich offered to withdraw any offensive language he might have used, but while the tilt lasted it was bitter on both sides.

"And I repeat," persisted Mr. Aldrich, "that the effect of the decisions on this cotton schedule has been to allow the British manufacturers, whose brief is being read in the Senate, to get into this market at ridiculously low rates. This question might as well be thrashed out here as anywhere. The effect of giving this advantage to the foreign manufacturers has been an increase from $2,000,000 to $8,000,000 per annum in our imports of these goods. The questions is not of the duty, but of making it enforcible."

It was late in the afternoon, after long speeches by Senators Smoot and Lodge, when Mr. Root got the floor in the defense of the Appraisers. He said he was moved to take up their case, partly out of a feeling of loyalty to a set of men with whom he had for several years worked in close association as District Attorney for the Southern District of New York. Often, he said, he had to rely in pushing his cases on the testimony of the Appraisers, and he had always found them creditable men.

Senator Smoot's speech was an argument that lasted three hours, explaining and defending the intricate classification proposed by the Senate amendments.

Mr. Smoot, like Mr. Lodge, who followed him, declared that the Senate amendments affect practically no increases.

The average rate under the cotton schedule proposed by the committee, Senator Lodge said, remains about 38 per cent., just as it is in the Dinkley act. He defended the added duty of one cent on mercerized fabrics and quoted figures to show that the added cost to the manufacturer varied from three-quarters of a cent to 12 cents a yard.

The fight on the cotton schedule will be continued to-morrow with several speeches from insurgents.

Senator Cummins to-day introduced his income tax amendment to the tariff bill. It provides for a tax of 2 per cent. on all incomes of individuals or corporations over $5,000 a year. A feature is included which is intended to eliminate double taxation by allowing a rebate to the individual stockholders of a corporation whose dividend assessment has been paid through the corporation itself.

Senator Aldrich gave notice to-day that to-morrow he would insist upon consideration of the Hale resolution calling for night sessions of the Senate. Several insurgents supported the demand, while Mr. Bailey opposed it on the ground that such an order of business did not leave Senators with time sufficient for their correspondence.

GERMANY RESENTS CRITICISM.

Figures on Wages Were Sent by Request of State Department.

BERLIN, June 1.—The charges made at Washington by various American Senators that the German Government was endeavoring to influence tariff legislation in the United States by supplying official information regarding wages which, upon examination, proved to be much higher than the wages attributed to German manufacturers in the hearings before the Ways and Means Committee of the House, have caused a disagreeable impression in Governmental offices here. This is especially the case at the Ministry of the Interior and the Foreign Office, where the information in question was prepared in reply to a request from the American State Department.

The German Government has been subjected during the last two months to attacks by German trade journals for having supplied America with German trade secrets. This knowledge of German wages, it is alleged, made it possible to adjust the new tariff to a level where German goods could not be exported to the United States.

The abstract of the Foreign Office's communication through Ambassador Hill to the State Department appeared in these dispatches on March 29, and was later reproduced in the German newspapers. It brought out savage attacks on the Government for yielding to the "impudent demands of the Yankees" for official reports on wages, thus arming Germany's competitors with vital information.

WASHINGTON NEEDS HOMES.

Benjamin Marsh Tells Congress Committee of Capital's Bad Conditions.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Some of the economic aspects of city planning were pointed out to-day to the House and Senate Committees on the District of Columbia by Benjamin Marsh of New York, Secretary of the Committee on Congestion of Population in New York.

As a result of a study of conditions in Washington, Mr. Marsh declared that in this city there is an appalling lack of houses within reach of the workingman, and he urged that Congress take some action toward the restriction of large areas for detached houses with yards, for occupancy by men of small incomes.

He urged the need of a progressive tax upon increases of land values as one of the things necessary to check the evils of land speculation.

PHILADELPHIA CAR STRIKE SOON TO END

Mayor Reyburn Predicts It Will Be Over To-day — Strikebreakers Run 707 Cars.

ASK CITIZENS TO ARBITRATE

Peace Union Wants Archbishop Ryan to be One of Committee—75,000 Union Men to Parade.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 1.—So great was the improvement in the operation of cars and in the increase of number of employes to-day, according to statements by officials of the Rapid Transit Company, that Mayor Reyburn expressed the belief that the trolley strike would virtually end to-morrow.

John B. Parsons, President, and Charles O. Kruger, General Manager, of the company were highly optimistic.

The Universal Peace Union will make appeals to-morrow to the company and the strikers to submit their difference to arbitration. An arbitration committee of eighteen citizens is suggested in the appeal, which was formulated to-night. The peace union asks that each party to the controversy appoint six men and suggests that to the twelve thus chosen six others be added, to be named by an organization acceptable to the contestants.

The appeal asks that, pending negotiations, if opened, the trolleymen be allowed to return to work.

Archbishop Ryan has already been asked to serve as an arbitrator.

Officials of the company were non-committal on the subject of arbitration. Definite statements were made, however, that the company would enter into no negotiations which might directly or indirectly involve recognition of the union.

The company operated 707 cars throughout the fourth day of the strike; under normal conditions it operates about 2,000. It was the first day an attempt had been made to maintain schedule time, and an announcement said that on principal lines success has rewarded the company's effort. The company said that it had 2,300 men who could be relied upon to man the cars to-morrow, though no promise was made that all would be put to work.

The elevated service still remains intact, not a man having broken the ranks, the management announces.

Believing that it would be unwise to attempt to inaugurate a night line service at the present stage of the strike, the company again ordered the suspension of all surface service at 8 o'clock to-night.

The strikers were as optimistic as the corporation's officials. President Brennan of their union said that nearly all of the regular employes of the road were out, and the cars were being run by strike breakers.

Following the announcement by James J. Murphy, President of the Central Labor Union, that the 75,000 members of that body will march in Broad Street to-morrow to show the extent of organized labor's sympathy with the strikers, came the declaration that the Building Trades Councils and the Textile Trade Association, whose combined membership is about 95,000, would contribute sufficient strength to the proposed demonstration to remove all doubt in the minds of the authorities concerning the temper of the industrial element of the city.

Financial and moral support continues to be pledged by the labor unions to the trolley men's cause.

The order to close the saloons at night was modified by Director Clay. He extended the time during which liquors might be sold to 8 o'clock in the evening. The closing order has incensed the saloon men and it was said that at a secret conference between some of their representatives and several brewers it was decided to try to effect a strong boycott against the Rapid Transit Company.

Rumors that 900 strike breakers had left New York for this city under contract with the transit company were denied by the officers. The company declared that its denial was supported by its refusal to accept the proffered service of 300 strike breakers who arrived at the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Station from Georgia, where they had taken hand in a railroad strike.

More than 1,000 applicants for places as strikebreakers on the trolley lines of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, in response to advertisements, applied yesterday at 103 East Twenty-sixth Street, which has been used in the past as a place for hiring strikebreakers by strikebreaker James Farley. Throngs of men filled the block from 8 A. M. until about 3:30 P. M., when the place was closed down for the day.

The longest term lease remembered by real estate experts in this city was recorded yesterday. The lease affects a lot on the west side of Nelson Avenue, between 166th and 167th Streets. It was leased by the city to Daniel Eichner for a term of 1,000 years. The lease expires in 2,909. The annual rental is to be $129.71. The city originally acquired the lot, it is understood, under an abandoned tax sale.

It is pure!

That is the one thing about Ivory Soap that is of paramount importance.

It floats; it is free from that unpleasant odor which so many soaps have; it is available for use not only in the bath and toilet but also for fine laundry purposes—these things are important, but, after all, they are secondary to the one great fact that Ivory Soap is pure soap; and nothing else.

There is no "free" (uncombined) alkali in Ivory Soap. That is why it will not injure the finest fabric or the most delicate skin.

TAFT TOUCHES KEY; OPENS SEATTLE FAIR

From the White House He Sets the Machinery of the Big Pacific Exposition in Motion.

ALL EXHIBITS IN READINESS

Buildings in a Forest of Giant Firs Amid Mountain Scenery—Cost $10,000,000—Two Years Building.

SEATTLE, Wash., June 1.—President Taft, in the White House, at 3:15 o'clock, Eastern time, this afternoon pressed a telegraph key of Alaska gold and sent a spark across the continent that put in motion the wheels of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition.

Just before noon, Western time, word was flashed to the White House that all was ready, and President Taft's response set loose the flags, bells, machinery, curious Japanese fireworks, and noise. When the message was announced a huge gong struck five strokes and an enormous American flag was unfurled and thousands of small flags were scattered in the breeze. A mountain battery fired a salute of twenty-one guns, and the Japanese and American fleets in the harbor several miles away crashed out their tributes.

Preceding President Taft's signal the exercises at the World's Fair Grounds were carried out with military precision. The gates were opened at 8:30 o'clock. At 9:30 troops from the United States Army and Navy, the Japanese cruisers Aso and Soya, and the State militia paraded under command of Col. T. C. Woodbury, U. S. A., and were reviewed at the head of the Court of Honor by exposition officials, visiting Governors, and Admirals H. Ijichi and Uriel Sebree.

The ceremonial exercises were held in a vast natural amphitheatre sloping to Lake Washington. The stage of this theatre seats 1,500 persons.

The programme included music, invocation by Catholic Bishop O'Day, brief addresses by Director I. A. Nadeau and President J. F. Chilberg, a long address by James J. Hill, Chairman of the Great Northern Board, and benediction by Episcopal Bishop F. W. Keator.

J. J. Hill Praises the Fair.

In opening his address Mr. Hill said:

"The idea of a federation of the world comes nearest realization in the great expositions that assemble actual evidences of man's progress in self-development and toward his development of the earth. The people who furnish exhibits standing side by side could not always live in peace in close personal contact. Men in our day move toward their material advances principally through the struggle for wealth. The comforts and luxuries that have been won from the earth are symbols of greater things behind. An exhibit of the works of industry, science, and art is, therefore, a human document of high and convincing value.

"Most of the expositions of the past had a historic motive. It is a sign of development when we move away from dependence on some past fact and celebrate instead the general sweep of such forces as make for future progress. The Nation to-day faces forward, not backward. Such is the genius of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition. It is expressed in its very name; beginning with the furthest, newest, and least developed district of our National domain, covering a coast that reaches from well within the Arctic circle to near the tropics, and embracing all the mystery and might that have been suggested by the word "Pacific" for nearly 400 years.

"You have learned more of your own powers by carrying to successful completion an enterprise so ambitious. The outer world, by which Alaska and the Pacific Coast are still largely unknown and unappreciated, will carry away from here information as well as delight. It is, perhaps, a small episode in the march of human events, and the unfolding of a Nation's history; but in some ways, also, it may mark an epoch."

Reviewing the development on the Pacific Coast, Mr. Hill said:

"When capital can be enticed back into railway investments by assurances of proper protection and a reasonable return, the progress of construction will do more for the Pacific Northwest than for any other part of the country."

How the Fair Looks To-day.

The fair as thrown open to-day was finished, and carpenters and painters were nowhere to be seen. The few delayed exhibits were installed at night. The only serious deficit is in the Hawaiian and Philippine displays, but the transport Dix is speeding hither with them, and should arrive next Thursday.

The Exposition cost $10,000,000, and was built in two years. The grouping of buildings is much different than at other expositions. The structures are compactly placed; there is no long, tiresome walk from one exhibit to another. After entering the main gates, two buildings in a cluster of trees to the left first meet the eye. One is where the administratiin of the Exposition is centred and the other the Auditorium.

To the right and across Puget Plaza is the Fine Arts Palace, which contains a valuable art display loaned from famous collections all over the world. A few steps lead to "Pay Streak," the exposition amusement way.

Crossing Olympic Place, the beautiful picture of the fair is unfolded. To the right the Alaska Building, to the left the Hawaiian Building, and on either side of the Cascades the Oriental, Foreign, Manufactures, and Agricultural Palaces. In the distance are the Music Pavilion, the buildings of Canada and Japan, and, completing this picture, Mount Ranier, the highest mountain peak in the United States. The general scheme of architecture is in the French Renaissance.

In the main Government Building are the exhibits of the various departments at Washington. In a separate building is the wonderful display of live fish, and in another wing is the biograph room, where moving pictures illustrate how the United States mails are handled, the rural free delivery, and many other things of interest.

Many counties of the State have separate buildings, and many of the States, too. The Arctic Brotherhood, an Alaskan fraternal organization, has erected a log cabin. In the rear of the California Building, and facing on Seward Avenue, is the New York State Building, a copy of William H. Seward's old home, near Auburn, N. Y. The structure is one of the most imposing at the fair.

Largest Log House in the World.

The Forestry Building, with its colonnade of fir logs from Washington forests, is the largest log house in the world, and after the Exposition will be used as the School of Forestry of the University of Washington. In the rear of the Forestry Building, and on a hill overlooking Lake Washington, is the Hoo Hoo House, the home of visiting lumbermen. Large black cats with sparkling eyes guard the entrance gates.

Other buildings are the Dairy and Good Roads Buildings, Machinery Hall, the Model Foundry, the Music Pavilion, almost hidden by a hedge of Douglas firs, and the Canada Building adjoining the Grand Trunk Railway Building.

A few steps from the Canadian Building leads to the heart of the gardens and Rainier Vista. Straight ahead is a magnificent view of Mount Rainier, and to the rear is a view across Geyser Basin and Cascade Court to the central government building.

On both sides of the main court are the big exhibit palaces, including the Manufacturers' Palace, the Agricultural Building, the Oriental Palace, containing exhibits from Turkey, Greece, and Syria; the Foreign Palace, where Germany, France, Great Britain, and other countries have exhibits; the Japanese Building, with exhibits from almost every province in Japan; the Swedish Building, the Young Men's Christian Association Building, and the Mines Building. In all of these buildings the exhibits are in place.

Off from the main exposition streets are the athletic stadium and the stock exhibit, the miles of woodland paths, natural parks, and restaurants set in among the trees and shrubbery. Drinking fountains have been provided, the water supply coming direct from a glacier lake on Cedar Mountain.

Lakes Union and Washington, adjoining the exposition, permit of aquatic sports of every nature. Balloon and airship races are among the big events scheduled for the Summer, and aeroplane tests will be conducted by the Seattle Aero Club.

The landscaping of the grounds has been carried out on an elaborate plan. In the illumination thousands of incandescent lamps have been strung along the buildings. The Alaska shaft is made a tower of light and the cascades are broken into rainbows. The Geyser Basin at the foot of the falls is also made beautiful by hundreds of submerged colored lights.

When the exposition work was begun it was necessary to remove a large part of a 250-acre forest of towering fir trees. Many of them were left, and to-day they lift their tops 250 feet above the grounds. By night every branch is picked out with electric lamps, and festoons of more lamps are draped from tree to tree. Among the gardens and trees are many rest stations. It is possible for 50,000 persons to be seated at one time.

The idea of the exposition was conceived by Godfrey Chealander, a pioneer of the Klondike. It has been carried out by a coterie of the most energetic business men of the Northwest.

Why Many Women Suffer From Constipation

The Natural Remedy

The delicate and intricate character of the physical system makes it most susceptible to irregularity, and it is most important that each part of the system should be kept in condition to perform its duties in a normal manner. With womankind there is a decided tendency to sluggishness. Nature then requires a gentle assistant. Not powerful and expensive remedies which are so drastic as to be injurious and do more harm than good, but a pure and harmless laxative, such as HUNYADI JANOS Water, the famous Natural Laxative. Half a tumblerful taken on arising will do the work in a natural manner. One bottle contains many doses and costs but a trifle.

At all Druggists—but look out for unscrupulous druggists who will substitute unless you ask for HUNYADI JANOS.

TAFT SENDS CONGRATULATIONS.

Mrs. Taft Watches Him Press the Key That Opens the Seattle Fair.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—President Taft this afternoon at 3:15 o'clock pressed a gold telegraph key studded with gold nuggets, and the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition in far-off Seattle was awhir. The spark released by the President set the machinery of the big fair in motion at exactly noon, Coast time. Following fast on the spark a message of congratulations was sent flying across the continent. It read:

> J. E. Chilberg, President of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, Seattle, Wash.:
>
> I congratulate you and your associates on this auspicious opening of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition and I congratulate the people of the great Northwest on the courage and enterprise they have shown in bringing it forth. The exposition, designed as it is to exploit the natural resources and marvelous wealth of Alaska and the development of trade and commerce on the Pacific Slope, should appeal not only to the people of the West, but to the people of the country at large.
>
> I trust it will fully meet the expectations of those to whose untiring energies it owes its birth, and that it will prove a source of instruction and education to its thousands of visitors. WILLIAM H. TAFT.

An answering message of thanks from the exposition officials was quickly received, after which Senator Piles, on behalf of the exposition authorities, made a brief speech.

Among those who saw the ceremony of opening the fair were many members of the Diplomatic Corps, Mrs. Taft, C. P. Taft, the Senators and Representatives in Congress from the State of Washington, the Delegates in Congress from Alaska, the Philippines, and Hawaii, and several members of the Cabinet.

URIU GUEST AT DINNER.

Japanese Admiral and United States Officials Tell of Friendly Feeling.

Baron Sotokichi Uriu, Vice Admiral of the Japanese Navy, and Rear Admiral Charles S. Sperry, U. S. N., were the guests of the Japan Society of New York at a dinner in the Hotel Astor last night. The sentiment of those present was that there is no danger of a break in the traditional friendship of Japan and the United States. Besides those of Admirals Uriu and Sperry speeches were made by Secretary of the Interior Ballinger, Rear Admiral Sigsbee, U. S. N., Gen. Horace Porter, Col. Robert M. Thompson, Assistant Secretary of State Huntington Wilson, and President Taylor of Vassar College.

Col. Robert M. Thompson, the President of the Naval Academy Alumni Association, introduced Admiral Uriu, who is one of the few officers in the Japanese Navy graduated from Annapolis.

"Uriu," said Col. Thompson, "is the man who with exquisite politeness asked the Russians to come out, fight, and be killed, and when they refused went in and got them.

"If you are unable to understand my English," said Admiral Uriu, "take it for Japanese. It is thirty-four years since I came to the United States as a boy to study in the great naval institution with the cadets, and my time there was very pleasant and also very hard. I have a great admiration for this great country. I am greatly honored in a great assemblage like this, especially when my old instructor, Admiral Sperry, is here. I am here to attend my class reunion at Annapolis, and to thank my Alma Mater for all that she has done for me.

"In some some respects, permit me to say, my country owes to your great country what I myself owe to it. You say that we have done a great deal in Japan. Yes, we have done something, but we have not yet reached the standard we hope to reach. The United States is far ahead of us in every respect, and we want to keep on improving until we reach the same high standard. We need your sympathy and assistance. I thank you for my wife as well as myself, for she is in many respects like me." (The Baroness is a graduate of Vassar.)

"It is a peculiarly grateful task," said Admiral Sperry, the next speaker, "to say a few words, first, because I sympathize with the work you are doing; and, secondly, because your guest is my brother officer, and, like me, a graduate of the Naval Academy."

Admiral Sperry then briefly alluded to the great reception accorded the officers and men of the Atlantic fleet by the Japanese, and said that the good understanding accomplished by that famous cruise will do good for generations to come.

Secretary of the Interior Ballinger spoke next.

"Until recent years, from my earliest childhood, I have heard the talk among our people of war with Great Britain. There is, fortunately, no longer any sane ground for this talk, and there is to my mind less sanity in the talk you may hear upon the street of war with our friends in Japan.

"It is the business of the countries bordering on the Pacific Ocean to load the waters of that ocean with ships bearing an interchanging commerce, and thus to promote the happiness of the millions of souls tributary to its ports by intensified industry and the wealth of cargoes flowing from that industry."

The other speakers spoke in similar strain to Admiral Sperry and Secretary Ballinger. Some of those present were Consul General and Mrs. Midzuno, Rear Admiral Stockton, U. S. N., and Mrs. Stockton; Capt. J. B. Murdock, U. S. N.; Col. Hugh L. Scott, U. S. A., and Mrs. Scott; Sir Robert and Lady Hadfield, Rear Admiral Kossuth Niles, U. S. N.; Lieut. Col. Henry C. Haines, U. S. A.; Hamilton Holt, Vice Consul K. Yamasaki, John D. Crimmins, Francis B. Loomis, Alton B. Parker, Mrs. Admiral Sperry, the Baroness Uriu, William Nelson Cromwell, William G. McAdoo, Herbert Parsons, Gen. and Mrs. Stewart L. Woodford, Col. John J. McCook, Commander K. Hirago, Japanese Navy; Mr. and Mrs. S. H. P. Pell, and Prof. and Mrs. E. R. A. Seligman.

FIVE CARS START IN SEATTLE CONTEST

ARRIVE AT POUGHKEEPSIE

First Night Control Reached Without Serious Mishap—Opposition to the Run.

Attended by a squad of bicycle policemen and a score or more of automobiles, five motor cars started from the City Hall yesterday afternoon in an endurance run to St. Louis and a race from that city to Seattle for the M. Robert Guggenheim Trophy and cash prizes. Mayor McClellan gave the signal to start by firing a gold-mounted revolver at the moment President Taft pressed a button in Washington officially opening the Seattle Alaska-Yukon Exposition in Seattle.

It was a picturesque setting for the start of the great transcontinental run. The five cars were lined up before the City Hall so that they faced the main entrance. The park was crowded with people. A telegraph instrument had been put in place under the façade of the marble building, to receive the signal from Washington the instant President Taft touched the button there.

Mayor McClellan, carrying the glittering revolver, walked down the City Hall steps a few minutes before 3 o'clock and awaited the word from Washington. The moment it came he raised the revolver above his head and pulled the trigger. There was a flash of flame and a report. Instantly the contestants turned their cars toward Broadway and followed the bicycle policemen out of the park. The cars went in the order of their numbers as follows:

No. 1—Fort runabout, 15 horse power; Frank Kulick, driver; H. B. Harper, relief.

No. 2—Ford runabout, 15 horse power; B. W. Scott, driver; C. J. Smith, relief.

No. 4—Acme, 50 horse power; George Salzman, driver; Jerry Price, Fay R. Sheets, and J. A. Hemstreet, reliefs.

No. 5—Shawmut, 40 horse power; F. A. Pettingill, driver; C. H. Chapin and R. H. Messer, reliefs.

No. 6—Itala, 45 horse power; Gus Lechleitner, driver; Albert Bellows and F. B. Whitteman, reliefs.

John H. Gerrie, in a six-cylinder Ford, driven by F. W. Tevis, represented the Automobile Club of America as pacemaker, and he will lead the cars as far as St. Louis. Broadway was lined with people as the racy looking autos sped northward. The cars kept on Broadway to 119th Street, where they turned over to Riverside Drive and passed Grant's Tomb.

Once outside the city the bicycle policemen left the cars, and with this restraint off the contestants made better time. Dobbs Ferry, Tarrytown, Ossining, Croton, Peekskill, Cold Spring, Fishkill Village, and Wappingers Falls were passed through on the way to Poughkeepsie. Poughkeepsie, the first control, was reached shortly after 7 o'clock, and the entire party rested at the Nelson House.

Among the cars to escort the contestants to Poughkeepsie was a big six-cylinder National, with W. G. Houck and William Poertner aboard. The National kept right along with the contestants to the night control, and then returned to New York. All of the cars were in perfect condition when they arrived at Poughkeepsie.

The parade continued in the same order that it left City Hall as far as Peekskill. Outside of Peekskill the Acme lost the lid of its tool chest, and in stopping for it got off the course, traveling ten additional miles before finding the route. The Ford, driven by Scott, also got off the route, and arrived at Poughkeepsie with the Acme, twenty minutes late.

The scheduled time for the arrival of the cars in Poughkeepsie had been 6 o'clock, but Pacemaker Gerrie found it impossible to follow the schedule without exceeding the speed limits, so he extended the running time to 7 o'clock. The drivers were all fresh upon arrival. The daily runs from now on will be more strenuous, however, and the drivers will be glad enough of the night controls, which compel twelve hours of rest. Syracuse will be the next night stop; then will come Buffalo, Toledo, Chicago, and St. Louis.

M. Robert Guggenheim, donor of the $2,000 trophy for which the cars are competing, will give $5,300 in cash prizes. The contest has met with bitter opposition from the Manufacturers' Contest Association, and Mr. Guggenheim feels that he has gained a great victory in getting five cars to start in the face of such powerful antagonism. The Manufacturers' Contest Association opposed the contest on the ground that it would in reality be a race and that the speed laws of the various States through which the cars will pass will be violated. It was also maintained that the contest would not be a true test of the cars, but would be purely a test of the endurance of drivers.

Recently those having the contest in charge announced that thirteen cars would start, but apparently the influence of the M. C. A. had some effect. A Stearns car was to have started yesterday as No. 3, but something went wrong with the machine, and at post time it was announced that the Stearns could not get away. It is said that the Stearns will start later, and endeavor to overhaul the contestants before they reach St. Louis. A number of automobile enthusiasts will follow the contestants by train, meeting them at various controls and checking stations.

Court Says So in Sentencing Man Who Killed Wife's Insulter.

Vito Damiano, who on Feb. 4, 1907, shot and killed Antonio Lombardo at 313 East 106th Street to avenge an insult to his wife, and pleaded guilty last week to manslaughter in the second degree, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions to serve not less than seven years nor more than fifteen years in Sing Sing.

Many letters from Roman Catholic priests were presented to the Court by Damiano's lawyer. In reply to these Judge Mulqueen said:

"Religion does not give a man the right to kill another and should not be brought into a case of this kind. This defendant killed his victim in cold blood. There is no unwritten law in this State, and the legal remedies provided by the statutes are so plain that he who runs may read."

Distinctive two-piece Suits
for Men, at $15 to $33

The two-piece Suit was devised for a special service. Failing in that particular feature, it becomes merely the suit of ordinary character—minus the waistcoat.

The two-piece Suit as created by us begins its claim for distinction with the cloths of which it is fashioned.

We select textiles of "tropical" weight and distinctive designs and colorings peculiarly suited for warm weather wear. The use of these materials is confined solely to the two-piece Suit; we duplicate none of them in other garments produced by us.

And, of course, the extreme lightness of the fabrics necessitates special treatment at the hands of our craftsmen. Shape-retention is secured—and ensured—by remarkably skilful modeling and finish.

EDITORS GAIN POINT IN PANAMA CASE

Judge Admits Evidence Showing Lack of Malice by Owners [illegible] Indianapolis News.

FIGHT REMOVAL TO CAPITAL

Court Thinks Proprietor Who Is Absent Is Civilly, but Not Criminally, Liable for Publications.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 1.—Delavan Smith and Charles R. Williams, owners of the Indianapolis News, were before Judge Anderson of the United States District Court to-day resisting removal to the District of Columbia for trial on indictments charging them with having committed criminal libel in publishing articles intimating that there was an enormous graft in the purchase by the United States of the Panama Canal zone. Smith and Williams were indicted by the Grand Jury of the District of Columbia jointly with the proprietors of the New York World.

Ferdinand Winter, attorney for the defendants, maintained to-day, and sought to prove his points by the evidence presented, that the defendants were not guilty of the malice necessary to complete criminal libel, that they had not committed an offense for which they could be removed from one district to another for trial, and that the indictment charging them with criminal libel was baseless.

The Government resisted the introduction of evidence at the hearing, Attorneys Stuart McNamara and C. W. Miller contending that it was not essential for a committing Magistrate to hear evidence.

Judge Anderson ruled against the Government's contention. He called attention to the necessity of proving express, not implied, malice in a prosecution for criminal libel, and said that it was his duty to determine this question by hearing evidence before he could decide whether the defendants should be removed for trial.

The defense then placed on the stand Ernest L. Lewis, a staff correspondent of The News, who denied that he had had any instructions from his employers as to handling the Panama Canal matter in his dispatches from the political headquarters at Chicago during the last Presidential campaign.

The Government renewed its objections to evidence, and Judge Anderson, in discussing the question, declared that malice in a civil action was different from malice in a criminal case.

"Of course," said Judge Anderson, "the owner of a newspaper might be held civilly for anything that appeared in his paper, because the men who put it there are his agents, but when it comes to a question of criminal liability for publication of an article, it is a very different thing. As, for example, if the proprietor of a newspaper in New York, (I could not cite this illustration for a Western paper, because, rich as they are, they are not rich enough to own their own yachts,) but suppose the proprietor of a New York paper should be off for six months cruising in his yacht. During his absence there was a vicious article appeared in his paper. Should he be held criminally? It does not occur to me that he could be held criminally liable.

"I am speaking about the ultimate facts. If the owner is not present, he actually knew nothing about the publication, and could not possibly be held guilty of the crime."

Questioning Charles R. Williams, editor in chief of The News, Mr. McNamara drew out that Mr. Williams had not written the editorials complained of, in which it was declared desirable that the part of C. P. Taft, Douglas Robinson, William Nelson Cromwell, and J. Pierpont Morgan in the Panama transfer should be investigated. He had, however, approved them. Mr. Williams said the publication of the editorials, he thought, was in the interest of public morality and integrity. He had made no inquiry on his own score, he said, but he had based his attitude on "knowledge" of the history of the Panama transaction from the start.

Louis Howland, who wrote the editorials and handed them to his chief, Mr. Williams, told the court on the witness stand that he wrote them because he thought the subject was "the biggest thing in the campaign," and he should not have discharged his duty if he had not discussed it. He made no personal investigation into the records of the Senate inquiry, and he did not know personally that C. P. Taft was interested in the Panama transfer. A newspaper did not have the time to enter upon such investigations, he said. He was suspicious, and he was yet suspicious, he said. He thought he had good reasons for everything he wrote.

"What did you mean when you wrote that The New York World might now be short on evidence, but it could be long on presentation?"

"I meant that possibly just now there was not sufficient proof to satisfy cross-examining lawyers," Mr. Howland replied.

Earlier in the afternoon Delavan Smith was on the witness stand. He said he had no personal knowledge of the editorials before they were published, as Mr. Williams had full charge of the editorial page.

Unless the Government decides to introduce evidence to-morrow, argument will begin then, and the case will probably be in Judge Anderson's hands by evening.

CANNIBALISM IS SCIENTIFIC.

English Authority Says Man Is the Best Food for Man.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 1.—A scientific justification for cannibalism was propounded by Dr. F. Gowland Hopkins in an address at the Royal Institution to-day.

"What would be the most efficient protein for men?" he asked. "Clearly, although not a point of practical dietetics, the most sensible person in this connection is the cannibal. In consuming his own kind he is eating exactly the right stuff.

"Though it may seem a gruesome experiment, a worker in Heidelberg has just lately tested the point. He found that a dog, when fed with dog, was able to do with a much smaller quantity of protein than when fed with any other protein whatever.

"There is a chemistry of species, and the nearer the two species of animals are together, the more nearly does the chemistry of their bodies agree."

ARTIST NAMED RUIZ DEAD.

May Be Basis for Report of Mrs. Antonio Ruiz's Death.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 1.—So far as I have been able to ascertain, the only person named Ruiz who has died in London recently was an artist who exhibited one picture each year at the Academy, and who has also been represented at other exhibitions.

Misapprehension may have arisen in connection with the death of this artist, creating the impression in New York that the death was that of Mrs. Antonio A. Ruiz, who was mentioned as a close friend of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt at the time of his divorce.

Anarchists Cause Wire-Cutting.

PARIS, June 1.—Several hundred telegraph and telephone wires leading out of Paris have been cut recently, and the police have ascertained that the outrages were committed in response to a circular issued by an Anarchist organization.

ZEPPELIN BALLOON CONTINUES FLIGHT

ANOTHER BERLIN TRIP SOON

Count Wires the Emperor That He Hopes to Report to Him with the Airship in Six Weeks.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, June 1.—After temporary repairs to enable it to continue its return flight to Friedrichshafen, the Zeppelin balloon, which was damaged at Göppingen yesterday, left there at 3:20 o'clock this afternoon. At 9 o'clock this evening a landing was made near Biberach, which is about forty miles from Friedrichshafen and fifty miles from Göppingen, as it was necessary to replenish the gas, a supply of which was shipped from here. The landing was effected without difficulty.

The balloonets were filled by midnight and the benzine tank was also replenished, as a considerable quantity of benzine had been thrown out during the trip in order to keep aloft.

The airship resumed its journey at 12:40 A. M., and is due in Manzell, on Lake Constance, before daylight.

Count Zeppelin, accompanied by a large number of military officers, followed the airship by automobile across the country, always keeping the craft in sight, to render assistance if needed.

Emperor William has sent a telegram to Count Zeppelin in which he regrets that the Count was not successful in reaching Berlin in the flight that began Saturday night, and expresses the keen disappointment of himself and the citizens of the capital.

"Thousands of soldiers missed their holiday waiting to assist you," his Majesty said, "and I trust that you will make up for the disappointment of the people of Berlin. I had hoped to see you a guest at my palace, where rooms had been prepared and a meal, with a loving cup, was ready for you in the officers' mess. I hope to see you soon in Berlin."

To this Count Zeppelin replied as follows:

"I never said I was coming to Berlin. Somebody sent a fraudulent dispatch to the balloon battalion's headquarters, demanding that preparations be made. I hope that an inquiry will be instituted to discover whence this message came.

"The reason for my non-appearance in Berlin was fear that the supply of benzine would not suffice to take me to Berlin and back to Friedrichshafen. I hope in six weeks to be able to report to you in Berlin with my repaired airship."

BERLIN, June 1.—Count Zeppelin has sent a telegram to the Reichstag saying that he regrets greatly that he must postpone his invitation for members to make ascensions in his new model airship, inasmuch as the complete restoration of the damaged parts will require six weeks.

ROOSEVELT TO VISIT MISSION.

Trip to Kijabe Will Probably Be Made Next Friday.

NAIROBI, June 1.—Theodore Roosevelt is going to Kijabe to visit the station of the Africa Inland Mission, an American organization. He will probably make the journey next Friday.

The Africa Inland Mission is independent and self-controlling in the field, though represented by home councils in Philadelphia and London. The purpose of the mission is the evangelization, so far as possible, of the tribes in the interior of Africa which have never heard the Gospel.

The headquarters are at Kijabe, where schools are conducted for missionaries' children and for the industrial training of natives.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

BERLIN, June 1.—Ambassador Hill and Secretaries Joseph C. Grew and Gustav Scholle left here to-day for Stettin, the guests of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, to sail on the trial trip of the George Washington. The vessel will leave Stettin to-morrow and arrive at Bremen Friday.

SHANGHAI, June 1.—Reports received here from the Provinces of Kiangsu, Anhwei, Kiangsi, Hohan, and Shantung, indicate a severe drought, which seriously threatens the crops. These same districts were affected four years ago and were then relieved by American contributions.

LEADING LAWYERS ENGAGED

The Woman in the Case Said to be the Original of Several Well-Known Pictures.

There will come up for trial before Supreme Court Justice Truax and a jury next Monday, a suit for divorce brought by Mrs. Marian Gossaboom Norton against James Norton. There are some remarkable features connected with the action.

The principals in the suit are James Norton, a boxmaker, employed in this city by the same firm for a number of years at a salary of $15 a week. His wife, around whom all the interest centres, is a woman many years his junior, and the mother of four children, one of whom is dead.

Mrs. Norton was married at Cambridge, Mass., on April 29, 1891, when she was 16 years old. She is now 34. At that time she was in domestic service.

Mrs. Norton comes from Nova Scotia, while her husband is from Montreal. Many years ago, it is said, Mrs. Norton was spending a vacation in Nova Scotia with her sister, when she became acquainted with Grenville S. Macfarland, then a student at Harvard. The acquaintance ended when Mrs. Norton returned to her home. About ten years elapsed before they met again, and then came a renewal of the friendship, which, according to Norton, has not since been broken, and is responsible for his domestic troubles to-day.

In the meantime Mr. Macfarland had become a prosperous lawyer, prominent in Massachusetts politics. According to the answer filed by Norton to his wife's complaint in the divorce suit, she left him on April 25, 1907, together with her three children, and went to Massachusetts. Since then, he says, she has never returned. After denying his wife's charges as set up in the complaint, Norton set forth counter charges against his wife.

Norton knows of no reason why his wife should wish to divorce him, and denies emphatically that she has any grounds. Despite this, although he cannot say where the funds have come from, a large amount has been spent in her behalf for the purpose of obtaining evidence on which to base the suit. Mrs. Norton has been represented, as attorney of record, by a lawyer connected with one of the most reputable legal firms in the city, besides which John B. Stanchfield has been retained as counsel to try the case for her.

In her complaint, Mrs. Norton made indefinite charges against her husband, but these were set out more fully when on May 19 last Justice Guy signed an order framing the issues to be tried, alleging several offenses, any of which, if proved, would entitle her to a decree.

It is likely that some interesting sidelights will be shown at the trial, as to the methods in which the necessary detail for the framing of these issues was obtained. Norton is said to have received close attention at the hands of several persons since his wife left him, which he has not altogether appreciated. His lawyer is William E. Weaver of 299 Broadway, who was reticent yesterday concerning the case when seen by a TIMES reporter. He refused to discuss it, saying it would all come out at the trial.

Mrs. Norton, who is living at Cambridge, Mass., which is also the home of Mr. Macfarland, is said to be the original of several well-known pictures. She was in court last Thursday when the case was called. Her three children, the eldest of whom is a girl 18 years old, are with her.

Another feature of the case is that Norton has a suit pending under which he is suing Mr. Macfarland to recover $50,000 for alienation of Mrs. Norton's affections.

Mr. Macfarland was seen by a TIMES reporter last night at the Hoffman House, where he is staying. He was much disturbed at learning that his connection with the Norton suit had become public. He denied emphatically that there was any truth in the charges made against him by Norton. He admitted being a friend of Mrs. Norton's, and said that he had known her for a good many years.

Mr. Macfarland said that in Norton's original answer to his wife's complaint he named, besides Macfarland, "one of the most prominent ministers in this city," and it was only after it had been proved to be so utterly ridiculous that he got leave to withdraw the answer, and file an amended one naming only Macfarland.

He added that Davies, Stone & Auerbach of 32 Nassau Street were his attorneys in this city. Mr. Macfarland was locked in the bathroom of his suite when the reporter called. He said when he came out it was a precaution he had taken to evade process servers.

Another man in the room was introduced as a Mr. Smith, a lawyer who had charge of the case "from beginning to end." He said that the greatest possible damage would be done to Mrs. Norton's case by the publication of the story, inasmuch as it would drive from the city "three prominent persons" who were to testify for Mrs. Norton but would not appear at the trial if anything was printed about the suit.

Mr. Smith said Mrs. Norton is now in this city.

Mr. Macfarland is an active worker in the Independence League.

Mrs. Gerald M. Eberman Gets Divorce.

A divorce from Gerald M. Eberman was granted yesterday to Mrs. Helen Eberman, who lives with her mother at the Hotel St. George, 123 West Forty-fourth Street, by Supreme Court Justice Gerard. The Ebermans were married on June 15, 1896, and have no children.

DEATH IN A MIMIC WAR.

Small Boy "Indian Chief" Mortally Burned at Peace Celebration.

"Big Chief Laughing Snake" lay dying last night in the arms of his sorrowing mother. He had been mortally burned early in the day following a battle with white men at Etna and Logan Streets, East New York. In the fight Chief Laughing Snake, known to his parents as Ledger Calvert, 4 years old, of 55 Richmond Street, and his followers reflected great credit on themselves for warlike prowess.

There was a truce with the white man—Daniel Boone, Davy Crockett and Buffalo Bill were all represented among the latter—and the pipe of peace, a long-stemmed affair adorned with a feather, was passed around so that each warrior, white and red, might take a whiff and forever be friends. In celebration of peace a large bonfire was lighted.

In endeavoring to relight the pipe with an ember from the fire Chief Laughing Snake stumbled and fell into the flames. Quickly the fire enveloped his body, the Indian costume made by his mother being of a light, inflammable fabric. Indians and whites, except Thomas Daly, fled from the child. Daly tried to aid him, and had his hands scorched for his heroism. Mrs. Augusta Fisher of 173 Euclid Avenue and Christian Kinitz of 559 Hamburg Avenue, Brooklyn, a street cleaner, rushed to the boy, and in tearing off his burning clothing the street sweeper was badly burned about the hands and face. A blanket bought by Mrs. Fisher was wrapped around the child. He was taken to the Bradford Street Hospital. The surgeons said he could not live through the night.

POLICE WITNESS FREED.

Ex-Secretary for Lawyer Rouss Released on Bail.

Miss Elizabeth C. Murphy, ex-secretary for Louis J. Grant of the law firm of Grant & Rouss of 99 Nassau Street, who was confined in the house of detention as an important witness when Jacob Rouss was indicted on the charge of falsifying police records to which Commissioner Bingham's signature was attached, is again at liberty. She was released yesterday in $1,000 bail furnished by W. Butler Duncan, Jr.

It was alleged against Mr. Rouss that, in appealing the case of a certain policeman client of his who had been found guilty by the Commissioner, he obtained the original minutes of the trial through the complicity of a police stenographer; that he had them altered in such a way as to appear more favorable to his client, and then obtained the Commissioner's signature, the latter believing he was signing an accurate transcript of them.

Miss Murphy was felt to be the most important witness for the prosecution, and on March 1 Assistant District Attorney Kindelberger recommended she be detained as a witness. During her two and a half months' stay in the house of detention she had a private room.

CARDINAL MARRIES ELOPERS.

Girl's Mother Pursued Them to Baltimore, Then Gave Consent.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, June 1.—Miss Mercedes Ruiz of Washington, daughter of the late Dr. Ricardo Ruiz, Cuban patriot, and James Tyrone Kelly, a New York newspaper man, figured in an elopement today which terminated happily with Cardinal Gibbons's blessing.

The couple had been sweethearts for years, but Mrs. Ruiz objected to the marriage at this time. The young people stole over to Baltimore to-day and, after obtaining a license, went to the Cardinal's mansion and requested that the ceremony be performed at once.

The Cardinal refused, and while they were parleying the young woman's mother telephoned him from the Hotel Belvedere. She had learned that the elopement had taken place, and with a younger sister of Miss Ruiz, Miss Gloria Ruiz, the mother had hurried to Baltimore. Her presence complicated matters, and Mr. Kelly hurried to the Belvedere, where she was waiting to hear from the Cardinal.

After an earnest argument in an automobile, while they were returning to the Cardinal's residence, the mother at last consented, and Cardinal Gibbons performed the ceremony in the presence of the mother and sister.

Accused Sculptor Gone, Bail Forfeited.

W. Powell Robbins, the architect and sculptor of 117 East Fifty-fourth Street, who had a studio at 132 East Twenty-third Street, failed to appear in Special Sessions yesterday to answer the charge of impairing the morals of fifteen-year-old Philip Kappes, and his cash bail of $1,000 was ordered forfeited. A bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

FOOD.

A REBELLION

Food Demanded.

The human body will stand a lot of abuse, but some time it will surely rebel and demand the proper food in place of the pasty, starchy, greasy stuffs on which it has been made sick.

Then is the time to feed Grape-Nuts, the most scientific and perfect food in the world.

A lady of Washington says: "Three years ago I was very ill with catarrh of the stomach and was given up to die by one doctor. I laid in bed four months, and my stomach was so weak that I could not keep down medicine or hardly any kind of food, and was so weak and emaciated after four months of this starvation that my daughter could easily lift me from bed and put me in my chair.

"But weak as my stomach was, it accepted and relished and digested Grape-Nuts without any difficulty the first time that wonderful food was tried.

"My doctor told me to eat Grape-Nuts, which were predigested, and although I felt certain I could not keep the food on my stomach, I made the trial, and it was a most complete success.

"I am now strong and in better health than for a great many years, and am gradually growing still stronger. I rely on Grape-Nuts for most of the nourishment that I get. The results have certainly been wonderful in my case, and prove that no stomach is so weak it will not digest Grape-Nuts.

"My baby got so fat from feeding on Grape-Nuts I was afraid I would have to stop giving the food to him, but I guess it is a healthy fat, for his health is just perfect."

PRINCE ENRAGED GOULD, SHE SAYS

Mrs. Bankhead Avers That Howard Was Madly Jealous of the Khedive's Brother.

MRS. GOULD TEMPERATE

Never Saw Her Drink Cocktails or Champagne to Excess; Neither Did Lieut. Bankhead.

With the trial fixed for next Monday before Supreme Court Justice Gerard, the separation suit brought by Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould against Howard Gould was advanced a step yesterday by the filing in the County Clerk's office of two more depositions to be used at the trial. They were those of Lieut. Henry Bankhead, U. S. A., now stationed at Fort McPherson, Ga., and his wife, Mrs. Alice Stickney Bankhead.

Mrs. Bankhead, who was then Miss Stickney, ward of Gen. Long, American Consul at Cairo, Egypt, formed one of a party in a trip made up the Nile in 1902 by the Howard Goulds when they were touring Egypt. It was on this trip that the Goulds were entertained by Prince Mohamed Ali and the Khédive. Others in the party were Bourke Cockran, Mr. and Mrs. William Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Fairfax Langstreet, Gen. Long, and Miss Stickney.

In an affidavit by Mrs. Gould, already on file, in telling of this trip, she relates how her husband became enraged at her one morning because, instead of joining the rest of the party in sightseeing, she preferred to remain on the native boat and shampoo her hair. She also asserted that Mr. Gould abused her for taking a drive with Prince Mohamed Ali. It was on these points that Mrs. Bankhead was questioned by Clarence J. Shearn, counsel for Mrs. Gould.

Mrs. Bankhead said that the reception of the Goulds by the Khédive was arranged by Gen. Long. On the way to the reception, and at the request of Prince Mohamed Ali, brother of the Khédive, Mrs. Gould drove with him to the palace, while Mr. Gould and the others followed in other carriages. Mrs. Bankhead said that Mr. Gould complained to her about his wife driving with the Prince, saying that it was the first time she had ridden with another man since their marriage.

Mrs. Bankhead said she was at a luncheon given to the Prince by Mrs. Gould, but she did not remember the names of the other guests. She said she was present also at a second visit made by the Goulds to the Khédive.

Asked as to the character of Mrs. Gould's conduct in general during the stay in Egypt, Mrs. Bankhead said it was always ladylike and above reproach.

"To what extent did Mrs. Gould drink, as you observed her?" was a question.

"I never saw Mrs. Gould drink more than one cocktail before luncheon or dinner," replied Mrs. Bankhead, who added that Mrs. Gould conducted herself "with the greatest propriety and dignity, and when people spoke of her it was in the most flattering terms."

"Did you notice that Mrs. Gould drank brandy and soda on the occasion of this trip?"

"I am certain she never drank brandy and soda to my knowledge."

Mrs. Bankhead told of a visit she paid the Goulds at Castle Gould, and how she heard Mrs. Gould correct the butler for making too much noise in the pantry. "But," she added, "it was not in any berating manner. Any good housekeeper would have done the same thing under similar circumstances."

Asked whether she had ever heard Mrs. Gould speak of Dustin Farnum, the actor, Mrs. Bankhead said on one occasion only, and then it was to say it was a perfect outrage that her name was being coupled with that of Farnum. "She never spoke of any friendship for Mr. Farnum," the witness added, "and only spoke to me of him because of a newspaper article."

After their marriage in 1903 Lieut. and Mrs. Bankhead visited the Goulds at the Waldorf-Astoria and the St. Regis, as well as at Castle Gould. Lieut. Bankhead made a deposition in which he declared that he had seen Mrs. Gould drink cocktails and champagne, but always in moderation.

BREWER'S WIFE A SUICIDE.

Anxiety Over a Grandchild Supposed to Have Made Mrs. Meyer Insane.

Mrs. Gessina Meyer, wife of Charles Meyer, Vice President of the Bernheimer & Schwartz Brewing Company, 128th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, committed suicide yesterday afternoon at her home, 220 West 137th Street, by inhaling illuminating gas. It is thought that anxiety over a grandchild unbalanced her mind and led her to commit the act.

Mrs. Meyer had two children, a son and a daughter, and the latter, Mrs. Lanning, wife of R. Leonard Lanning of 2,736 Broadway, lived with her at the above address. Recently Mrs. Lanning's baby had been ailing, and the grandmother spent many sleepless nights watching over the little one. It was in vain that her husband, noting her increasing melancholy, and foreseeing a nervous breakdown, sought to dissuade her from her self-imposed task, and likewise her daughter's assertions that the child's condition was temporary availed nothing. Mrs. Meyer was too wrapped up in the child to heed, and night after night insisted on watching beside its bed.

Mrs. Lanning went out for a walk yesterday afternoon, telling her mother that she would return shortly. Mrs. Meyer, who appeared perfectly rational at the time, told her maid Bertha that she would not need her, and the girl went to her room for a nap.

Returning a little later, Mrs. Lanning detected a strong odor of gas as soon as she opened the door. She hurried up stairs and on opening the door of her mother's room was horrified to see her lying on the floor with a rubber tube connected to a near-by gas jet in her mouth. With a scream Mrs. Lanning ran to the jet and turned off the gas and then, although almost overpowered by the fumes, staggered to her mother's side. She could find no signs of life, and escaping from the gas-filled room, summoned Dr. M. W. Wolff of 205 West 136th Street. He worked over Mrs. Meyer for an hour, but it availed nothing.

N. Y. CENTRAL BUYS LAND.

Said to Have Taken Winthrop Holdings for Grand Central Improvement.

The New York Central Railroad is said to have added to the property which will eventually be included in its big scheme of improvement at the Grand Central Station by buying the Winthrop estate holdings on the east side of Depew Place, from Forty-second to Forty-third Street. Definite confirmation of this report could not be had yesterday, although it was credited in quarters heretofore familiar with the New York Central's realty operations.

Henry Rogers Winthrop and J. Frederic Kernochan, trustee for some of the heirs, said that for the present they had nothing to say concerning the matter. The Winthrop property, now covered with old four and five story buildings, fronts 200 feet on Depew Place and 150 feet on Forty-second and Forty-third Streets.

Gossip concerning this transaction yesterday occasioned more or less talk as to the possibility that the railroad had also obtained the adjoining property at the northwest corner of Lexington Avenue and Forty-second Street, the site of the Hospital for Ruptured and Crippled Children. The latter parcel would round out the New York Central's holdings and give it control of everything on the west side of Lexington Avenue from Forty-second to Fiftieth Street. From an authoritative source it was learned that the railroad had made offers for the hospital property, but that it had not yet been sold.

STOPPED RUNAWAY'S WIND.

Policeman by Gripping His Nostrils Halted Horse Without a Bridle.

Lieut. Matthew McKeon of Harbor Squad B, sitting at the desk in the station house at 120th Street and the East River, just before noon yesterday, heard the cries of women and children in the street. He ran out of the station and saw a runaway horse attached to a delivery wagon owned by Max Schimmerman of 2 Houston Street, running toward the ferry house, at the foot of the street.

The animal, which had taken fright while feeding in front of 504 East 120th Street, and, consequently, had no bridle on, was coming at full speed. McKeon took the one chance open to him and grabbed the horse by the nostrils, but the animal fled on, kicking McKeon with its forefeet and dragging him over the ground. The policeman clung to the animal's nostrils, however, and finally shut off its wind, causing it to stop within a few feet of the end of the pier.

PAIR CAME FROM BOSTON

Husband Said He Was a Harvard Student with Rich Relatives—Bride Was a Waitress.

Ever since her husband, Herbert C. Reed, who told her he was a Harvard law student and the son of a wealthy St. Louis railroad magnate, left her at the Grand Union Hotel Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Reed, the 24-year-old bride, who says she was married to him three months ago, has been without the slightest news of him, and a general alarm for the missing man has been sent out from Police Headquarters.

The young wife, while she refuses as long as possible to believe the police theory that her husband has deserted her, is at a loss how otherwise to explain his disappearance. When he left her he told her he had about $250, besides $67 which she had turned over to him when they left Boston Saturday night for the purpose of joining the young man's rich relatives in St. Louis.

The money was all that was left of the young woman's earnings of several years as a waitress in a Boston restaurant, and now that she is practically without funds, having no friends or relatives in this city, she expresses her determination to turn to the first work that presents itself pending some tidings of her missing husband.

According to the young woman's story to the hotel detective, she first met Reed two years ago, while she was working as a waitress in a restaurant in Boston. He represented himself to her as a Harvard law student, she said, and they fell in love. During their courtship he repeatedly showed her letters purporting to come from his father, urging him to choose some respectable girl and to marry.

Feeling their difference in worldly station, however, she discouraged him until three months ago. Then, according to the young woman, after obtaining a marriage license at the City Hall, Reed brought to her room at 86 Wooster Street a man whom she believed to be a Methodist minister of a near-by church, and, in the presence of James Mathewson of 55 Springfield Street, a friend of the girl, and a young woman invited by the bridegroom, the marriage ceremony took place. The certificate, according to the young woman, was in Reed's trunk when they left Boston Saturday night. Reed, she said, told her that he, together with a sister in St. Louis, had inherited $50,000 from his grandfather, and it was to attend to this legacy that the two left for St. Louis. On the day before Reed told his wife he had received his degree from the university.

The two reached the Grand Union Hotel early Sunday morning and registered as Herbert C. Reed and wife of Rockland, Me. They brought only two suitcases and one small trunk, Reed's baggage having been checked through, he said, to St. Louis. At 3 o'clock that afternoon he left the hotel, telling his wife that he was going to meet an uncle in this city, who had acted as intermediary in forwarding checks to him during his college course. He did not mention the uncle's name, nor say where he lived, but declared that he would return to the hotel in the evening.

That was the last seen of him by the young wife. Early Monday morning the distress of the young woman as she wandered nervously about the hotel lobby attracted the interest and sympathy of the attendants, and Manager W. N. Tarbell questioned her. When she told her story Mr. Tarbell gave instructions that the young woman should be shown every kindness and courtesy as long as she might be obliged to stay at the hotel.

She insisted, however, upon moving from the large rooms which Reed had engaged to a single small one, and declared her intention of seeking work in this city at once, until she might hear news of him. She said that her husband had always treated her most kindly and affectionately, and she refused to believe that he would desert her.

Mrs. Reed is attractive in appearance, looking much younger than 24 years. She said her maiden name was Winifred Jener, and that she was a native of Aberdeen, Scotland, whence she had come to this country to earn her livelihood eleven years ago. Her parents live in Scotland, and she has no relatives here. Reed is described as 23 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall, very slim of build, smooth shaven, and with blue eyes. He wore a dark green striped sack suit, black derby hat, and red leather shoes.

The Harvard University catalogue shows no student named Herbert C. Reed, and commencement day, when degrees are conferred, is scheduled for June 30. Mrs. Reed says she does not know the name or address of her husband's father or any of his other relatives. A photograph of a man giving the name of Harold C. Reed, who was arrested in Chicago in 1903, on the complaint of a young woman there, and who was involved in the failure of a building and loan association, was shown to Mrs. Reed yesterday, but she said that the picture bore no resemblance to her husband.

The "guarantee" clause is adroitly accentuated.

They tell you to bring back the Hose, if the wear is not satisfactory, but notwithstanding this, it is counted that only a small percentage of the Hose will be returned, even if they do prove a disappointment.

Your indifference or carelessness is depended upon not to press your claim.

"What's the use bothering?" you say—and the manufacturer expects you to say that very thing.

Nine times out of twenty—you don't bother.

The selling policy of these makers is simply an "insurance" proposition. They offer a broad guarantee because the profit they realize on their Hose permits them to do so—and the percentage of "bring backs" in case of dissatisfaction is very trifling.

The customer who is dissatisfied with the wearing qualities of "guaranteed" Hose usually doesn't value the guarantee enough to ask for new Hose—but buys some other kind.

Our "Irontex" Hosiery holds those who buy it. That's the best evidence. People don't come back for anything that has proved unworthy.

"Irontex" Hosiery is worthy.

When we brought out "Irontex" Hosiery we brought out the old, long established Macy policy of providing the very best quality for the money. We did not take a stocking that usually sells for 12c., and by reinforcing it at soles, heels and toes with a few extra threads of cotton try to sell it for 25c. or 30c., with an offer to guarantee it for a certain period.

What we did do was to take the best 25c. stocking we could find and strengthen it at its vital points by splicing the soles, heels and toes with selected imported Irish linen yarn.

Our "Irontex" stocking is not guaranteed as the word "guarantee" is usually employed. That is, we will not give you a new pair of stockings if the pair you buy from us wears out within six months or a year. But every pair is sold subject to a broad and definite guarantee that for quality and price it is not excelled anywhere. This being true, as it must be, it naturally follows that our "Irontex" stocking will wear satisfactorily in every respect—so it would be quite a gratuitous thing and an unnecessary thing for us to make a play upon a guarantee of a more specific character.

The Stockings bearing the "Irontex" brand are, first of all, made on full-fashioned frames, which means that their shape is knitted into them. They are made of selected long staple cotton, and their soles, heels and toes are spliced, or reinforced, with imported Irish linen yarn. There you are! Fine cotton plus strong linen. That makes the "Irontex" Stockings soft where they should be soft and strong where the wear-strain is hardest.

Make comparisons. No person is too ignorant about fibre, and finish, and fineness, and form in Stockings not to see how much better the "Irontex" goods are than the one selling at a third more.

Many customers who have learned of the splendid wearing qualities of our "Irontex" Hosiery by buying the above quality have often asked why we did not enlarge the variety by adding better grades.

O'Neill Building—Basement.

Three sizes of the most economical Refrigerators made.

The Governor

Regular $14.25 size for $10.68 | Regular $16.98 size for $12.75
Regular $21.15 size for $15.86

This is the make we chose as our leading refrigerator, after testing it and two other makes with ice and a thermometer.

The Governor won by keeping a temperature of three to four degrees lower than the other two, and it had nearly five of its fifty pounds of ice left when the ice in the other two refrigerators was completely gone.

The parts can all be removed and cleaned—with a hose, if you like. The cabinet work is of well-seasoned brown ash, made by old-fashioned, pernickety cabinetmakers, who simply won't do poor work.

We believe them the best refrigerator made.

$4.25 Garden Hose, $3.25

This includes 25 feet of hose, complete at both ends, with one hard wood reel and one splendid brass nozzle.

It is the hose we sell regularly, and is warranted to give absolute satisfaction for a complete season. But though we warrant it for but one season, it ought to last five if any sort of care is taken of it at all.

SECRETARY DICKINSON AT GETTYSBURG.

It was an extraordinary spectacle that was presented at Gettysburg on Decoration Day, when the monument to the memory of the regulars who fell there was unveiled, and the presence and address of Mr. Secretary Dickinson were not the least significant feature of the occasion. One can imagine the spirit of Lincoln, contemplating the mighty changes since the racking days of suspense in Washington when the fate of the Nation hung on the outcome of the terrific contest, recalling his later heart-wringing appeal that the wounds of the Nation might be bound up, and beholding a Southern man, the official head of the Department of War, proclaiming: "At this day there are in the South few if any who would not turn swiftly with sentiments of abhorrence from any suggestion that it would have been better for the South if it had succeeded in establishing an independent Government." In that long and painful struggle the patient and far-seeing President was one of a very small number who cherished the hope that the Union could be restored on any such basis of lasting good-will as Mr. Dickinson's words disclose. And indeed, in the heat of the fiery passions aroused on both sides, the number was not very large of those who really desired this outcome. For the time conquest was in the hearts of the fighters of the North and desperate resistance to conquest in the hearts of those in the South. It is one of the elements of Lincoln's just claim to enduring fame that he, on whose shoulders rested the tremendous responsibility of the war, to whom defeat or failure was most galling, in whom resentment would be most natural and the sense of sheer triumph in victory most keen, was, of all the men of his time, most determined and immovable in his desire for and pursuit of ultimate union, unforced, intimate, strong, and lasting.

But if Mr. Lincoln was determined, he was not and could not be very hopeful. He was firmly resolved to do nothing to prevent or delay the consummation he so devoutly wished, but he was cut off before he could mature his plans for bringing it about. The manner of his death undoubtedly fanned to still more furious heat for a time the passions engendered by the war. The contention that ensued, in which was born the definite purpose of the political leaders of the Union to safeguard the supremacy of the Union by stripping the whites of the South of much of their political power and erecting a body of black voters to hold them in check, made the prospect of a union such as Lincoln planned seem even more remote than at the close of the war. How these formidable obstacles were overcome, how sentiment on either side was modified, how the gift for practical political action peculiar to the English-speaking races developed through the successive stages of the complex situation is one of the most interesting chapters in modern history. The full significance of it is still but imperfectly perceived even by the people who wrought the wonderful task.

The presence of Mr. Dickinson at Gettysburg on Monday, the post he occupies, the authority he exerts, are striking proofs, if one but stops to think about it, of the momentous change that has taken place. For what are they but evidences that between the purposes, the convictions, the spirit of the party represented by the President and those of the party with which Mr. Dickinson has been connected, there is, so far as concerns the essential interests and the destiny of the Nation, no important difference? As these two men, admirable examples, both, of the American character and the American mind, can work together, pursuing the same high aims with the same devotion and ability, what must be the real temper of the Nation made up of their fellow-citizens? What elements of division or discord, what forces of contention can prevail in a nation where such phenomena occur almost unnoted? Division and contention there will be, of course, along the lines of politics to which we have accustomed ourselves, and they will not lack interest or importance; but they will be transitory and not deep. They will be worked out and adjusted with no serious effect on the true union that has been reached.

THE TREASURY'S BANK DEPOSITS.

The Treasury statement in last Monday's Financial Supplement of The Times gives the total of the Treasury deposits in the National banks at $62,230,298. The concurrent statement of the New York Clearing House gives the deposits in the New York banks at $2,420,100. The total contrasts with $164,912,412 in 1908 and $183,810,573 on June 1, 1907. The contrast between the proportion held by New York banks in the earlier years and now is as suggestive as the comparison of the totals. Whether from necessity or choice, the fact is that the Treasury has drawn down its New York deposits disproportionately. The fact is suggestive because there is more drawing down to be done, and it cannot fall upon New York in similar degree. The Treasury's deficit must be met out of its deposits, and yet its depositaries should be left strong to facilitate the bond issues which are impending.

There is here a lesson regarding the entanglement of the Treasury with the money market analogous to the improper connection between the bond issues and the banknote circulation. A recent Secretary of the Treasury proposed to ease the world's finances if he had $100,000,000 of free money to use for that purpose. His successors had double that amount, but they have been the servants of the situation instead of its masters. The Treasury sopped up money like a sponge when the tax collections were large, and starved the money market in its need. Then when tax collections fell below expenditures the Treasury disbursed liberally upon a gorged money market and accentuated an unwholesome ease. Now there is work to be done ahead, and the Treasury is not master of its resources. The old cycle seems to be beginning again.

MR. HARRIMAN'S VIEWS.

"I know what I am talking about, because I went through it all." Those words of Mr. Harriman give the clue to the importance of his embarking interview. Before him the theorists had spoken, and there was an exceptional agreement among the highest of them in a diagnosis of the cause of our troubles in disagreement with what Mr. Harriman now tells us. The economists, who were mere observers, had agreed that the crisis of 1907 was caused by exhaustion of capital. Mr. Harriman dissents, as an actor in great events. There was capital enough, but there was so little confidence that the people would not use their money in the ordinary methods of enterprise. The theorists support their position by remarking upon the similarity of conditions throughout the world, and attributing the phenomena to the working of like causes everywhere. But it is a poor rule which will not work both ways. If the breakdown here had its roots in the same sort of trouble as that which embarrassed other countries, then other countries must have had the same troubles as ourselves. But everybody knows the contrary. No other country had an Executive like ours, nor a Judge so eccentric in his antagonism to capital as the one whom Mr. Harriman named. There can be no doubt that these causes of financial disturbance were specific to the United States. If they existed elsewhere it was in a minor degree, or if they existed in the same degree everywhere as here, then Mr. Harriman's theory of the troubles displaces the economists' as to all countries, instead of merely as to the United States.

It is worth while to get the diagnosis right, for the prescription depends upon it. And as it happens our affairs are responding happily to a treatment adapted to correct the troubles as Mr. Harriman describes them. There was nothing new in the antagonism to the trusts in the crisis of 1907; that was a twenty-year-old irritation. But there was a great deal which was new in the legislation affecting the railways. They were discriminated against more seriously than they had ever discriminated against their customers. There was an excess of new laws, and new teeth were put into old statutes. The consequence was that the railways suffered more seriously than any other section of the industrial community. The recuperation among the industrials is one of the wonders of the present moment. The recuperation of the banks is an almost forgotten wonder. It was only locally, and for local reasons, that depositors mistrusted the banks, whose record for endurance under trial challenges admiration. Elsewhere the banks were swollen with deposits and reserves which might have alleviated the Nation's trial at a time of alleged exhaustion of liquid capital if it had been available here, as freely as our resources were used for the relief of the "country" banks.

This narrows the field down to the railways, and it must be admitted both that they have lost ground to make up to regain conditions as good as their own two years ago, or as good as other undertakings now. The best hope of their catching up lies in the fact that they are likely to be allowed to do so. It is precisely the communities which were most savage in their attacks upon the railways which suffered most severely thereby and are now most repentant.

Mr. Harriman's optimism is therefore justified to those who agree with his prescription. His views regarding the crops are more in the nature of prophecy, but there is not the slightest present cause for discouragement on that head. We are making slow speed ahead, and are likely to gather headway with the progress of the season.

HOPE FOR A PURE HUDSON.

There are degrees of shame even among sewer builders, and the President of the association which was represented as desirous of draining the wastes of the Saw Mill River Valley into the Hudson rises to deny the aspersion. Mr. Gage, President of the Putnam Association, declares that it is open-minded regarding any future proposition, which will be dealt with upon its merits, but that it has not given any adhesion to the plan which was promptly dealt with upon its demerits by the defenders of the Hudson River.

How much better is the procedure of the Putnam Association than that of the Passaic and Bronx sewer builders. The Saw Mill River sewer builders earn praise for their perspicacity in abandoning a plan for which there was no thoroughfare, whereas the Passaic and Bronx people took the count in court. The latest report is that the Passaic sewer promoters are arguing that if their sewage must be so very pure to be admissible to New York Harbor it might as well be emptied into Newark Bay, as thereby a saving of some millions will be effected. That was the way it looked originally to other observers. The latest stage of the Bronx case is that yesterday a petition was filed by the Attorney General of the United States for a perpetual injunction, as in the Newark case, and it is safe to assume that a like decision will be reached.

CARUSO'S VOICE.

Either Caruso's voice is as good as ever or it is not. You may judge for yourself from the more or less authentic reports, or you may wait until the next opera season. He is either going to submit to a surgical operation to restore his voice, or he is not, as no such operation is needed, his voice being in a quite perfect condition. On the other hand there is a coherent tale that the operation has already been performed, with probable success, although the tenor of world renown must wait a week or two before using his voice.

We all know what that means, if we have seen "The Climax." We may be justified in fearing that some sentimental female physician, firmly believing that the stage is no place for Caruso, will use mental suggestion to make him believe the operation has failed and the voice with which he has been wont to charm the daughters of the rich has vanished. But in the play the benevolent villain is vanquished, while Caruso does not look like a suitable subject for mental suggestion.

The one thing we may be sure of about Caruso's voice is that everybody who goes to the opera in Paris, London, New York, Boston, Milan, or Monte Carlo is anxious to hear it again, and therefore its condition is a matter of large importance and general interest. Caruso's voice is a real thing. It was not actually manufactured by the press agents. It belongs to no school of art and is not exclusively associated with a temporary fad. The grave music critics may shake their heads over the Caruso-madness of the multitude, but they have the consolation of knowing that the quality of the voice and its volume justify a great deal of the enthusiasm. Nevertheless, we may be permitted to suspect that the voice of the resting tenor is now in the hands of the "publicity department" rather than under control of the surgeons and throat specialists. While he rests he is not to be forgotten a moment. While the Summer lasts rumors, and contradictions of rumors, alarms, surprises, and disputes about the voice of Caruso will be uppermost in the operatic news.

> President Gompers, Vice President Mitchell, and other officers of the American Federation of Labor agreed with Mr. Keefe, and said that if any of the Government departments was made an employment agency the parties who got employment would all write home and invite their friends to come, thus incurring the danger of encouraging immigration to an extent that would create disastrous competition for work.—From Delegate William A. Coakley's report on immigration to the Central Federated Union.

There are some 90,000,000 people in the United States. If 400,000,000 people were developing its resources, the country would support them more comfortably, more prosperously, than it can support the 90,000,000. Labor in this land grows by what it feeds on—more men. Messrs. Gompers and Mitchell should know this.

Quite likely President Roosevelt withdrew from the public domain indiscriminately and without due warrant certain lands not fitted for the development of water power. Secretary of the Interior Ballinger thinks so, after reading the special report of the Director of the Geological Survey. Mr. Ballinger has even approved the restricted list of withdrawals, aggregating some 236,365 acres, which constitute "all the more important water power sites" yet undisposed of. But he should scrutinize, too, the list of sites submitted as negligible and now restored to entry. When Mr. Roosevelt took hold the situation had become scandalous. The living of millions yet unborn is concerned in the way their fathers farm out franchises in the perpetual "white coal" supply.

Abolition of the death penalty has been mooted in many State Legislatures just adjourned, notably those of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Minnesota, and Illinois; yet the law remains on their statute books. Men of the future may think of the gallows tree as a surgical instrument used by a crude civilization in extirpating diseases that should properly be treated in a psychiatric clinic. Even then the law may be unrepealed, though forgotten, as the stocks and the whipping post are still sanctioned in parts of Great Britain. Men are not often nowadays legally done to death. But while the custom lapses nothing takes its place. The safety of the community is now and again menaced by compassionate juries setting free men who have slight control over their destructive impulses.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Few Words with Mr. H. S. Landor.

Now it is Henry Savage Landor, a man who has himself never shown aversion from such fame as came to him from his journeys into wild lands or any marked reluctance about bringing their details before the public, that has had to make some ill-natured and sneering remarks concerning the way ex-President Roosevelt has gone a-hunting in Africa. We think ourselves that Mr. Roosevelt might possibly have better employed his time and energies than by devoting a year to the killing of big game, but his right to do it is beyond question; he had earned a long vacation, and the talk about what Mr. Landor calls "the foolish advertising" of the little expedition is all a product either of dense ignorance or malignant mendacity.

Mr. Landor presumably indulges in it merely because he doesn't know the facts, but not a few other critics lack even that poor excuse. Certainly nobody connected with one of the larger American papers doubts the sincerity with which Mr. Roosevelt rejected offers and denied pleas which, if accepted or granted, would have given him a hundred times the "advertising" he is now getting, and of better quality. Dozens of them, so well convinced were they of the public's interest in everything Mr. Roosevelt does, were eager to send star reporters into the jungle with him, but he firmly refused to take along the representative of any paper, and it was with the utmost difficulty that he was persuaded to make the small concession he did to the demand for authentic news of his adventures. The argument to which he yielded at last was a warning that if he insisted on a plunge into utter silence, within a month some implacably enterprising journal would be sending out an expedition to discover and rescue him.

Never once, during the months of preparation, did Mr. Roosevelt say a word to justify the charge that he exaggerated the dangers of the trip or viewed it as a great thing. Again and again he laughed at its imaginary difficulties and mentioned all the facts which Mr. Landor now brings forward as new. As for the size and complexity of Mr. Roosevelt's outfit, he sought and doubtless took the advice of experienced African hunters. Mr. Landor forgets that it is one thing to shoot game for meat or sport, and quite another to preserve and prepare for transportation half way around the world the skins and skeletons of many big animals. And what should Mr. Roosevelt have worn on his long hunt except the Rough Rider costume, the good qualities of which for such purposes he had often tested? Can Mr. Landor suggest anything simpler or more fitting?

In very truth, the hunt has produced vastly more of foolish criticism than of foolish advertising. Mr. Landor has added to the aggregate of the former, but Mr. Roosevelt has left the latter entirely to others.

Two Homes Worse Than None.

Why should a Judge, when deciding that one of the two parties to a marriage contract has suffered such wrong at the hands of the other as to deserve freedom from an abhorrent bond, deliberately prolong an intolerable situation and increase its very worst effects by ordering that the custody of the children shall be divided between the offending and the offended parent?

Such was the plan followed in a recent case of international notoriety, where the evidence left as little of hope that the divorced man would be a good father as it left of doubt that he had been an outrageously bad husband. No great qualifications for wise motherhood were shown on the wife's part, to be sure, but her moral superiority to her mate was presumptively admitted, and why her children should pass half their time with their unworthy father, why he should have any voice in their education, or why he should even have a right to see them, was made comprehensible by nothing revealed at the trial in regard to his character or past conduct. And nothing could possibly be worse for children than frequently recurring migrations between two inevitably hostile guardians, each sure to lesson them as to the hate which the other deserved.

A similar, though much less notable, case has just been decided in the same way in this city. Here the grounds for divorce included brutality as well as infidelity, and still the unfortunate offspring are to oscillate from one parent to the other, at home nowhere, subjected to demoralizing influences at least half the time, and unhappy the whole year round because their minds will be confused and troubled by a divided and impossible allegiance.

It would seem to be common sense that the parent who wins the divorce should have the children as well, and have them wholly, but that doesn't seem to be judicial sense, and the difference is puzzling to the layman.

Dirigible and Aeroplane.

Flying machines of the heavier-than-air type have a "margin of safety" which is so small, considering the uncertainties of the air and its currents, as to justify some doubt of their ever becoming a common and really practicable means of transportation. They are, however, obviously more trustworthy in a dozen ways than big bubbles like the one in which Count Zeppelin has just made so long a journey, only to end in another of his many disasters. His flight, of course, was highly impressive as a spectacle, and it demonstrated, among other things, the possibility of crossing the Atlantic in an airship no better than his, but for one such success with the fragile monster there would almost certainly be a hundred failures, and each of them would be enormously expensive.

Wilbur Wright is kind and courteous enough to say that there is room for both dirigible balloons and aeroplanes, and that each, when brought to perfection, will serve purposes beyond the attainment of the other. That may be so, and he ought to know, but for any other than a few military uses the dirigible appeals much more to the imagination than to the intelligence, while the motor-driven plane has its scientific soundness demonstrated by every bird that flies. Its great merit, in comparison with its rival, is ease of control. It will not be anything like as much at the mercy of the winds, and human skill will count for more in the determination of its fate and destination. Then it costs much less, and that is no small superiority.

The aeroplane can already carry two passengers, and, while its capacity is more strictly limited than that of the dirigible, a whole fleet of the smaller machines can be made for what would have to be spent for one of its rivals.

THE PROFIT IN APPLES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent "W. H." from Yonkers asks how apples can be grown with profit at $1 a barrel in the city market. The result will stand as follows: One acre planted with thirty-five trees, the usual number, will produce on an average

100 barrels of apples selling for $1		$100.00
Cost of picking will be	$15.00
Cost of barrels will be	32.00
Cost of freight will be	25.00
Cost of cartage will be	5.00
Commission in selling	10.00	87.00

This, of course, must represent fruit rather inferior in quality, where no cultivation or spraying has been done or, perhaps, little or no pruning. This is a minimum of yield with a maximum of cost. However, the average hay or grain crops will not produce very much better net results per acre.

On "how to obtain prices which would compensate for the trouble and expense of cultivating a high-grade apple," I will give the following information: Start new orchards, planting upon an acre standard trees forty feet apart each way, and interplant at twenty feet again each way with early-bearing varieties, which will give 110 trees to an acre. After the trees come into liberal bearing, in from nine to ten years, they should yield from 125 to 150 barrels of apples, and thereafter steadily increase to 300 barrels per acre. As soon as these interplanted trees begin to crowd upon the permanent trees they should be taken out.

The soil should be thoroughly tilled from May to July, when red and crimson clover seed mixed, eighteen pounds per acre, should be sown for a "clover crop" to the land for the balance of the year, this to be plowed in, the following Spring. The trees should be sprayed to protect them from insects and disease and to obtain a large per cent. of high-grade apples. The fruit should be grown in sufficient quantity to ship in carload lots and at the much lower freight cost in car lot shipments. Under these methods the accounts should be as follows:

No. of barrels, 300, at $2		$600.00
Cost of plowing an acre	$2.00
Cost of harrowing five times	2.00
Spraying	30.00
Picking	45.00
Barrels	96.00
Freight	45.00
Cartage	15.00
Commission in selling	60.00

making a cost of $295, with a balance over and above cost of $305 for the acre. Where the apples are grown under this system and are of higher grade in quality, buyers are glad to pay the prices above named for them at the orchard, and frequently pay this for the fruit, the buyer paying all other expenses except the picking. For several years high-grade apples have brought from $2.50 to $3.50 per barrel free on board at the shipping station. Even higher prices have been paid in apple districts of Western New York.

The one great need in apple culture in New York State is in making it an industry of sufficient importance to warrant the introduction of modern methods of culture. The soil must be enriched, and clover culture is one of the best ways in which to do it.

Co-operation is another great need. A fruit-growing community should have a central storage and packing house at the railroad station, where apples may be held over a long season. In his Oregon competition, the New York farmer is "up against" the brightest men in our country, who are generally Eastern business men who have sought that section first for health, and, regaining it, have put their business energy and experience into the apple business, and nowhere in the world are better methods practiced, better grading and packing done, and more attractive and beautiful fruit put upon our markets. If the fruit-growers of New York will use the same methods they can produce equally beautiful fruit and of equal value.

GEORGE T. POWELL,
President the Agricultural Experts' Association.

New York, June 1, 1909.

A Hectic Protestor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The daily perusal of your editorials for many years had created in me a firm belief that even when your arguments might not in every respect appeal to all your readers, yet that you would always show due consideration for such allowable differences of opinion as compose the world.

But, Sir, on the subject of open cars on our street railways you have always been, and now proclaim yourself still to be, a Torquemada of bigotry, a Procrustes of cruelty, for you would sentence all, willy-nilly, to enjoy a state of purgatory by riding in closed cars when the balmy days of late Spring and early Autumn enchant the city wayfarer.

You do mention in a casual way that the windows of the "pas-as-you-enter" cars may be opened during the sizzling days of Summer, but that method of escaping asphyxiation had such lukewarm comment at your hand that you evidently bore in mind that they might be a fruitful source of stiff necks and chills. You do not state the alternative which would result in turning each of your bepraised vehicles into rolling miniatures of the Black Hole of Calcutta.

OPEN CAR.

Highwood, N. J., May 31, 1909.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Whether literally true or not, the story of Jean Naudin, the French inventor who, while working at a dollar a day, has originated a new and improved process for wireless telegraphy, a method of photographing wireless messages, and several devices for dirigible balloons, some of which are now in use, is a commentary on the competitive system. That M. Naudin "has several other important inventions to his credit" and is still working for a dollar a day and picking up broken bottles and other rubbish from which to make his models should rouse the intelligence of a socety grateful enough to its martyr dead to decorate their nameless graves. The poverty of inventors is proverbial. The genius that serves society by discoveries in the various fields of truth is not allied in the same mind with the genius that serves itself in the getting of wealth. The wonderful prudence and worldly wisdom of the Wright brothers is a rare exception. Ordinarily the inventor falls a victim to the financier and his children go hungry. Should the State ever come to "own all the industries," the inventor will be taken care of, as he should be, being excusably irresponsible in matters of self-interest.

Wants Substitute for Firecrackers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will some of your readers offer some suggestions through your newspaper what substitute in the way of appropriate amusement we can give our children if we take from them all noisy means of demonstrating their patriotic (?) ardor on the glorious Fourth and find it not feasible to make excursions with children on that day of crowds?

Ministers and Emmanuelism.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I agree with Dr. Aked that from this Emmanuel Movement scandals would surely arise within the Church. A minister of God should never lose the respect of his congregation, but by becoming identified with the Emmanuel Movement he most certainly will forfeit it.

New York, June 1, 1909. A WOMAN.

E. H. HARRIMAN SAILS.

Dispute Between Two Sisters Holds His Ship Twenty Minutes.

E. H. Harriman arrived on the North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm II with barely a moment to spare before the gangway was lowered at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, the hour for the liner to start for Bremen. It was said on the liner that he did this to spare the reporters and photographers, who were anxiously awaiting his arrival, the pain of a lingering farewell.

Mr. Harriman went at once to the suite engaged for him on the port side forward of the promenade deck. He wore a close-fitting suit of gray and a black derby hat. When asked how he felt Mr. Harriman smiled and replied: "Fairly well." It was his first trip abroad since 1904, he said. In reply to a question whether he had not feared to miss the boat by allowing so little time Mr. Harrimon said: "Oh, no. I would not have cared much if I had." Then he gazed in a bored, listless manner at the perspiring stewards struggling up the gangway with the small baggage that he had brought with him.

George Gould was on the pier to bid good-bye to Mrs. Kingdon, who also sailed on the Kaiser Wilhelm II, and George W. Perkins was among those who came to wish Mr. Harriman a "bon voyage" on his health seeking tour.

At the last moment two sisters, the Misses Georgia and Julia Carson, of Pittsburg, Penn., caused a delay of twenty minutes owing to some dispute between them, the cause of which was not made public. Miss Julia had her baggage taken off the liner except a trunk that was already stowed in the hold. When she found that it was impossible to get it she made peace with her sister and had her things brought back to the steamer.

OPPOSES UTILITIES BILL.

President Mellen Says It Would Be Injurious to New Haven Road.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 1.—President Charles S. Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad to-day submitted to the legislative committee in charge of the proposed Public Utilities bill a letter in which he calls attention to the fact that his company is already subject to many restrictive laws, and that it is now proposed that a political board shall have management of its finances. He says that such control would inevitably act injuriously, as all plans of the company would have to be prematurely revealed to the world at a public hearing, which would be seriously detrimental to the company, and much more so than in the case of private concerns.

Mr. Mellen says that under the bill a political board would dictate prices which the company must receive for its securities. He objects to the bill also on the ground of its artificial limitations on the borrowing power of the company, and the provision that it cannot issue bonds in excess of its nominal capital stock.

As applied the provision means that the corporation would be forbidden to issue bonds for more than one-third of the actual value of its property. Moreover the bill takes no account of the fact that it is often a measure of the soundest finance to issue bonds which will later be converted into stock. If the company had been forbidden to issue its convertible bonds it would have had to issue stock carrying 8 per cent. dividends and a heavy burden placed upon its earning power.

UPHOLDS COLLEGE ATHLETICS

President Lowell Wants Competition in Sports and Studies.

President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, delivering the annual Phi Beta Kappa address to Columbia students in Earl Hall yesterday afternoon, emphasized the need of competition in sports and in studies among the students in our American colleges.

He said that intercollegiate athletics, and more especially intercollegiate football, is beneficial, since it encourages healthy competition, and he drew the analogy between athletic sports and studies, expressing the hope that competition in the latter field would be increased in the near future.

The elective system, resulting in a great divergence in courses of study among college students, has stifled competition in scholarly attainments, said Dr. Lowell.

Not a Southern Issue.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In view of recent utterances at public meetings in regard to "the recent discrimination made against negro employes by the Southern labor unions," will The Times call attention to the fact—as generally published—that two men from Canada started the movement within the labor union in Georgia.

Also, no labor union anywhere in the United States admits to its membership negroes, Japanese, or other races other than its own.

Expresses Confidence in Jerome.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Not wholly inconsistent with his frankness and candor in past actions are Mr. Jerome's answers in this morning's Times. Not only has he confuted the charge of negligence preferred against him, but Mr. Jerome has strengthened the sentiment so often expressed of him as "the most vigilant District Attorney New York County has ever had."

F. J. BROWN.

New York, May 31, 1909.

THE GRADUATES.

SHE.

Now comes the gentle graduate
  To make her graceful bow,
To point our highest duties out
  And tell us why and how,
She clears all knotty points away
  Concerning state affairs—
Her pa is wondering how he'll pay

HE.

The graduate in glory stands,
  His college course complete,
His brilliant thesis in his hands,
  The whole world at his feet.
He little guesses as he lets
  Those words of wisdom fall,
He'll never see the time again
  When he will know it all.

COOPER UNION ART SHOWS EXCELLENCE

SOME FINE MINIATURES

The exhibition of the Cooper Union art classes this year is most encouraging to those who look beneath superficial brilliancy of execution to the tendencies displayed and the evidences of a high standard. In the color work in particular there are shown a sober taste and an appreciation of harmony that are unusual among students, and that have been helped if not altogether caused by the environment provided by the museums, with their original models immediately accessible.

One of the most interesting exhibits is that of copies made from the museum material, in which the spirit of the original has been kept to a surprising extent. In the case of Mrs. J. Woodward Haven's prizes of $50 each for the best decorative panels in the style of the seventeenth century, France, the work submitted was of so high a quality that the judges recommended that two additional awards be made. These were offered by Miss Hewitt.

The first and second prizes went to Evelyn M. Ewalt and Edna F. Harkt, respectively, and the additional prizes went to Kate Semmerdinger and Florence Kalkenberg. The same thing happened with the Ethel Cram Memorial Fund Prizes for the best decorative panels in the style of the latter half of the eighteenth century, France. The original prizes, three in number, were awarded to Ethel Williams, Esther A. Turner, and Augusta A. Ficken, and the two additional prizes went to F. M. Whittemore and E. J. Kennedy.

In both these instances the work was directly connected with the study of the museum models, and the result speaks for itself.

The miniature painting from life in the Woman's Art School also calls for special comment, although the exhibit is a small one. The work is not only careful in execution but spirited and interesting, bearing comparison with that seen in outside exhibitions. The silver medal was won by Florence H. Barkley and the bronze medal by Hattie Malbrunn. May Barker exhibits an expressive head of a woman in black, with an amber necklace about her throat, and R. C. Parramore shows a young man's head that is excellently characterized.

Edyth A. B. Johnson shows several examples of good work, the best the figure of a girl with dark hair in a yellow gown, which is simple in mass, lifelike, and painted without undue attention to detail. Another figure in a Greek dress by the same artist is charmingly delicate and skillful in execution.

The drawings of interiors are far better than the average work in this kind, and here again one traces the effect of study in the museum, as also in the class of decorative design, where the patterns have that quality rare enough in professional work and almost never found in the work of students, the quality of elegance.

To particularize the good work in all the classes would occupy much space, but it is safe to say that the average of work done is considerably higher than last year, and extremely encouraging to those who have the welfare of the institute at heart.

The silver medals for portraits in oil in the Woman's Art School were won by Florence Kalkenberg and Leonora Morton. The silver medal for a portrait head in charcoal was won by Ina Harvie, and the bronze medal by Tacie Nairn. The silver medal for still-life painting in oil went to Olga F. Heese, who also won the silver medal for a drawing for illustration and the bronze medal for composition in the illustration class.

Margaret D. Eddy won the silver medal for the best drawing from life, and Margaret L. White the silver medal for the best drawing from the antique. A silver medal for drawing for illustration was won by Sophie Dallen, for composition by Adele B. Conklin, and for decorative design, first year, by Genevieve Joy second year by Stella B. Dickinson, and third year by Ethel Williams.

In the clay-modeling classes the silver medal for the best portrait bust from life was won by Ethel D. Carpenter, and for a two-hour sketch from life by Rose Leichter, although Clara Klinge, whose sketch is hors concours, stands first on the list, and deservedly, as her work is not merely admirable but exquisite.

In the Men's Art School the architectural department has won much praise from the architects on the jury. The prizes went to Edward Doelzer, Arthur Eisemann, J. J. Connell, Frank Peters, Robert Nordin, J. T. Briggs, Hermann Rozian, Herbert Moss, H. I. Cornell, and W. C. G. Unold.

In the night classes in decorative design the prizes were won by F. Lamberti, Samuel Klinger, C. Schneider, and Frederick Bauer. The Wilson G. Hunt prizes were awarded to John Frank for mechanical drawing, to Jacob Heller for drawing from the antique, and to Andrew Oxhandler for drawing from ornamental forms. Joseph A. Vogelmann won the Cooper Union Alumni Association prize for the best work in the mechanical drawing class of the night course in general science.

In the night class in modeling in clay, Ulysses Ricci took both silver medals, one for a full-length figure from life and one for a bust, and Louis Beimann took both bronze medals; also John F. O'Rourke's prize for the best composition in relief, subject, "The Spirit of 1909." Anthony de Francisci took Miss Eleanor G. Hewitt's special prize of $15 for the best full-length figure from life, and also the Trustees' silver medal for the class composition on "War."

VACATION SCHOOLS FOR GIRLS

Aldermen Also Include Playgrounds in $105,000 Appropriation—No Autos.

The Aldermen appropriated $105,000 yesterday to the Board of Education to be used in establishing playgrounds and vacation schools for girls. Fifty thousand dollars is to be devoted to equipping public school yards and basements for playgrounds and the remaining $55,000 for two domestic and industrial training schools.

Controller Metz asked for $50,000 to establish the uniform system of accounting in all the city departments. The matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

The annual report of the Sinking Fund Commission was read. It showed an income during the last year of $19,766,953. From dock and slip rentals $3,500,000 was received during the year.

The request of the Street Cleaning Department for $8,500 for new automobiles was again voted down.

An application for an appropriation to pay for an automobile for the Street Opening Bureau of the Corporation Counsel's office was also denied.

COLUMBIA'S REFUNDING PLAN.

Fifth Avenue Blocks Pledged for $3,000,000 in Readjusting Loans.

Columbia University has mortgaged to the United States Trust Company, as trustee, in the sum of $3,000,000, two of its Fifth Avenue blocks, those on the west side, between Forty-ninth and Fifty-first Streets. The mortgage is to run for thirty years, and will bear 4 per cent. interest.

"This is not a new loan," said Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler last evening, in reply to an inquiry as to what the filing of the big mortgage meant.

"It is merely a refunding operation," Dr. Butler added, "and will result in the grouping as one loan of various outstanding debts of the university, most of which were created in connection with the removal to Morningside Heights.

"The new loan will be taken care of by a sinking fund, which provides for the cancellation of $100,000 of the total debt for each of the thirty years the mortgage has to run."

"THE NARROW PATH" STOPPED AS VULGAR

Henry B. Harris Ousts It from the Hackett as an Uplift for the Stage.

BRANDS IT A "NUISANCE"

Several Hundred Theatregoers Turned Away Last Night and All Advance Tickets Refunded.

The Hackett Theatre was dark last night, "The Narrow Path" having come to an abrupt end. It was to purify the stage of the Hackett, according to Al H. Woods, that the play was withdrawn after its one night's presentation.

Mr. Woods did not sit as censor on "The Narrow Path," but Henry B. Harris, owner of the theatre, did. As owner, Mr. Harris feels responsible for the moral tone of the plays produced at the Hackett playhouse, and he could not reconcile "The Narrow Path" with what he considered to be the proper standard for the Hackett's patrons. So he took an unusual step to get rid of it.

To understand thoroughly the circumstances that brought about the abrupt termination of the career of John Montague's play, for which a Summer run had been anticipated, it is necessary to explain that Mr. Harris is an exponent of the sort of shows that no Anthony Comstock could object to. He avers that he stands for the elevation of the stage. He will tell you that he has made his fortune only by adhering to the principle of highest morality.

To go into the technical details, Mr. Harris bought the Hackett Theatre from Oscar Hammerstein, and at the time of its purchase James K. Hackett held a five years' lease. This lease has two more years of life. While Mr. Harris has been receiving the rent money from Mr. Hackett he has had nothing to do with booking the plays. That has been entirely under Mr. Hackett's control, and he placed the responsibility upon his personal representative, William F. Muenster. At the end of the last Winter season Mr. Muenster gave over the booking privileges of the playhouse for the Summer to the Shuberts.

Mr. Woods's Part In It.

At this point Mr. Woods enters the plot. He had read the manuscript of Mr. Montague's play and thought it ought to fit in somewhere in the Shubert bookings. The Shuberts dickered with him, and the play was made ready for its initial production on Monday night, Mr. Woods having a contract to present it on a percentage basis as long as it drew good patronage.

In the theatre on Monday night was Mr. Harris, anxious to see what sort of a play "The Narrow Path" might be. He emerged from the playhouse after the last act convinced that the Hackett Theatre had been contaminated. He sat through every act, and said yesterday that he had never been more shocked in his life. The critics who witnessed the production seemed to agree, in varying measure, with him. Reaching his office in the morning he dictated this telegram to Mr. Hackett:

> I desire to give you notice that I consider the performance now being given at the Hackett Theatre a nuisance being maintained on my property in violation of the law. I want it stopped at once or I shall take steps to have it abated. I regret to be forced to serve such a notice, but decency and the preservation of the public morals demand it.

Mr. Hackett is out on the road in vaudeville, and the telegram was delivered to Mr. Muenster. He thought Mr. Harris must be having a playful joke with him. He called him up on the telephone and was informed that there was no jest about it.

"I'll not tolerate that kind of a play in my theatre," said Mr. Harris. "It's a disgrace. You must take it out."

Mr. Muenster was perplexed. Here was a show that had crowded the house on its first night, and already there was a string of people at the box office, buying seats for the next performance. While he was studying the situation, Mr. Woods called up on the telephone. He had heard Mr. Harris's edict.

Didn't Think It Vulgar.

Mr. Woods told Mr. Muenster that he was not in the habit of perpetrating public nuisances. He expressed the opinion that "The Narrow Path," with its portrayal of the vicissitudes of the seamy side of life, was not vulgar, but said he did not feel like going to court about it. He recalled court decisions that plays not up to the most approved moral standards may be declared nuisances and done away with.

"Guess we'd better call it off," said Mr. Woods. "I have other things to think of besides going to court."

So it was decided to nip the career of "The Narrow Path" in its budding and close the house. Before this decision was reached, an advance sale of nearly $400 had been made for the night, and the prospects were that the house would have been filled.

"It cost me $8,000 to get the show ready," said Mr. Woods to THE TIMES. "I intended to keep it on all Summer if the public wanted it. I couldn't see anything wrong about it, and I don't think there is anything the matter with my moral viewpoint. I withdrew it because I didn't want it said that Mr. Woods would put on any show that was not decent."

"The performance was certainly vulgar," said Mr. Harris. "It is just the sort of play that the public objected to last season when there was such an uproar over certain shows being produced on Broadway. If Mr. Woods had not decided to withdraw the play and Mr. Hackett's manager had insisted on putting it on, I certainly would have taken steps to have it declared a nuisance."

Lee Shubert said he had no concern about "The Narrow Path."

"I haven't read the manuscript and I didn't see the play," he said. "I'll look around for another play to put in the Hackett, and the theatre will open again inside of two weeks."

Many theatregoers that appeared at the theatre last night were turned away. Those who had bought seats in advance had their money refunded.

MRS. HENRY SIEGEL HOME.

Returns from Visit to Her Daughter, Countess Dentice di Frasso, in Rome.

Mrs. Henry Siegel arrived yesterday on the Kronprinz Wilhelm with her daughter, Miss Dorothy Wilde. She said she had been away two months in Europe, and had visited Rome and spent some time with her daughter, Countess Dentice di Frasso. Miss Wilde brought a canary which had been given to her by Prince Victor. The bird, in a Florentine carved wooden cage, was placed on the promenade deck as the liner came up the bay to get a view of the skyscrapers, but, possibly overawed by the altitude of the buildings, he refused to say a word.

Mrs. Fitzhugh Whitehouse arrived with her family on the Kronprinz Wilhelm, which brought also the body of her husband, Fitzhugh Whitehouse, who died recently in Paris.

Sir Charles Wyndham, the English actor, who will arrive to-day on the Cunard liner Caronia for two weeks' stay in this city, sent a wireless message yesterday to James O'Neill, Prompter of the Green Room Club, in answer to the wireless in which he was invited to be the guest of the club on Sunday, June 13. Sir Charles's message read:

> Grateful thanks for your kind welcome. Unable, alas! to accept dinner. All Sundays already engaged for what was intended short private visit. WYNDHAM.

CONEY TURNS OUT TO GREET THE LAMBS

GUESTS OF FRED THOMPSON

De Wolf Hopper, Digby Bell, and Other Lights of the Stage Turn Luna Park Into a Seaside Rialto.

The Lambs who took part in the week's "gambol" just finished had a little celebration of their own yesterday afternoon and last night. As the guests of Fred Thompson they went to Luna Park and cavorted until the management had to turn out the lights and beg them to go back to Broadway. At a late hour this morning De Wolf Hopper was reported to have been seen on top of Judy, the trained elephant, giving an all-star performance of "Wang."

It was nearly 8 o'clock last night before the real stars of the aggregation showed up at the Coney Island resort, and the fun did not get well under way until David Belasco and Abraham Erlanger appeared at the main gate. In the afternoon, however, about 500 Lambs, all wearing special red badges which entitled them to admittance to all of the shows inside the big inclosure swarmed down on Mr. Thompson and a score of special guides and demanded to be "shown." When he saw the crowd Mr. Thompson threw up his hands in despair and told them to roam where they would. Every concession in the place worked overtime. The visitors started in at one end of the park and took in every attraction in the place. When they had made the entire rounds they started in all over again.

The real gambolers were distinguished by their long gray parade coats and hats, and the ordinary patrons of the place apparently found more to interest them watching the stage celebrities than the attractions they had paid to see. Eddie Foy, for instance, had a gaping crowd at his heels everywhere he went, and William Collier, De Wolf Hopper, Digby Bell, Andrew Mack, William Harrigan, and Raymond Hitchcock were the centres of admiring crowds.

When Raymond Hitchcock appeared in his long coat he made straight for The Tickler. George V. Hobart climbed aboard the Virginia Reel and Tom Wise took up his station on the Helter Skelter. Mr. Wise explained that he wanted to find some place where he could lie down and rest. The others fell in behind, but when Wise, Augustus Thomas, Maclyn Arbuckle, and Wilton Lackaye, the heaviest members of the crowd, got in one of the cars on the Virginia Reel the machinery broke down, and a force of machinists had to be sent for. Everything was all right again, however, when Mr. Arbuckle stepped out.

There was some excitement when "Jack" Hazzard and Douglas Fairbanks collided in the Helter Skelter. Mr. Fairbanks turned a complete somersault and some one rang up the emergency hospital. A surgeon tied a bandage about the actor's knee just to show that his trip had not been in vain, but the dressing was not needed.

An event which pleased the crowd and furnished the best amusement of the evening was when Lew Fields and "Joe" Weber shot the chutes together.

"If we had put that on in our gambol instead of the pool table scene," Mr. Thomas remarked, "the Lambs would have made more money than they did."

Meyer Livingston, who was taken along, it was explained, to add dignity to the occasion, then led a merry party through the Dragon's Gorge.

"Look out, here comes the elephant," shouted a small boy during a commotion in the centre of the park.

The crowd gathered about Mr. Arbuckle, who pretended to great indignation over the remark and complained to Mr. Thompson.

When the excitement was at its height late in the evening a diversion was occasioned by the appearance of Wu-Ting Fang, the Chinese Ambassador to Washington, who had arrived with a party. Mr. Wu was dressed in his native costume, and for a time shared distinction with the Lambs. The Ambassador was persuaded to try shooting the chutes, and when he emerged from the lake he tried it over again, and remarked that they didn't have anything like it in China.

At midnight some one asked Mr. Thompson how he had enjoyed himself.

"Fine," replied the manager, "but I am going to take a week's vacation to recuperate. It looks as if the Lambs made me the goat."

NEW MUSICAL COMEDY COMING

McIntyre and Heath to be the Stars in One at the Circle.

Klaw & Erlanger announced yesterday that they will open the Circle Theatre about Aug. 30 with McIntyre and Heath in a new three-act musical comedy by John J. McNally, with lyrics by William Jerome and music by Jean Schwartz.

The production, it is said, will be the most pretentious in which these comedians have ever appeared. The cast will include, with chorus, more than a hundred persons. Julian Rose will have a leading part. During the Summer the theatre will be renovated, the stage rebuilt, and new dressing rooms added.

FILIPINOS WED BAREFOOTED.

Tu-Go-Dan and A'Lao Married by an Alderman at City Hall.

A Filipino marriage was performed yesterday at City Hall by Alderman Smith. The happy pair were Tu-Go-Dan and A'Lao of the Igorrote Village in Dreamland, Coney Island. Accompanied by the press agent, Capt. Ash of the constabulary in charge of the village, and Chief Chemingo, the medicine man of the tribe, the couple came to the City Clerk's office and obtained a license. The corridor "cupids" were then consulted and the marriage took place in the basement before a large and interested audience.

The Filipinos were all barefooted and dressed in native costume. The press agent declared that the bride had fortified herself on the trip up from the Island by smoking two long, black cigars.

FANNY WARD IN "EUNICE."

Emotional Drama Produced by Marc Klaw in London.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 1.—"Eunice" was produced by Marc Klaw at the Hicks Theatre to-night and proved to be full of strong emotional situations, giving Fanny Ward and a good supporting company an opportunity for very effective work which, with some slight qualifications, they made the most of.

The second act, bringing about the confrontation of the blackleg and villain, posing as the father of the heroine, with his divorced wife, who denounces the fraud; and the third act, in which there is a sharp transition from the joyful security of the young wife and mother to the terror of a renewed immoral relationship with her persecutor, developed excellent capabilities in the leading actress, with the results marred only by a slight tendency to transform dramatic emotion into hysteria.

The hardest test of the actress came in the last act, after Eunice had murdered her pretended father to save herself from returning to his embraces. The play, in this part, as well as in the first act, needs considerable condensation of the dialogue. Eunice's plea in justification of her crime is not convincing, because there was another escape, namely, confession to her husband of her past, to which in fact she finally resorts. The winning of the husband to condonation of her deception is a rather tedious piece of argumentation, delaying too long the fall of the curtain.

Miss Ward, however, got abundant applause and was recalled several times. Her reception by the first-night audience, while obviously critical, was at the same time cordially appreciative.

Obituary Notes.

HARRISON L. HOYT of Auburn, N. Y., a real estate and insurance man in Central New York, died at the Hospital of the Good Shepherd, in Syracuse, yesterday. He was prominent in the State work of the Prohibition Party, and was a candidate for State Controller in last Fall's election.

JOHN MURPHY, a Civil Engineer and Chemist, died yesterday at his home, 630 Bedford Avenue, Williamsburg, in his 86th year. He was born in Ireland, but his parents came to America when he was six years old and settled in Fall River, Mass., where Mr. Murphy was educated. Thirty years ago he settled in Brooklyn, and established a gutta percha works. He retired five years ago with a large fortune. He was a member of the Manufacturers' Association, the Hanover Club, and the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick. He leaves a widow and four daughters.

HENRY WOLFSOHN DIES OF PNEUMONIA

WAS ABOUT TO GO ABROAD

Had Arranged Tours for Next Season for Schumann-Heink, Kreisler, Ryder-Kelsey, Louise Homer, and Others.

Henry Wolfsohn, who established the first musical bureau in this country, died yesterday of pneumonia at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George Hammerschlag, 151 West Seventy-seventh Street. He had been ill only about four days. He leaves a widow, besides Mrs. Hammerschlag, his only child.

Mr. Wolfsohn was born in Germany sixty-seven years ago. He came to this country with his parents when nine years old and was graduated from the public schools of New York and the City College. After graduation he studied music under Theodore Thomas and Dr. William Mason, and established his musical bureau twenty-five years ago.

He soon became known throughout this country and in the musical capitals of Europe for his successful management of well-known vocalists and instrumentalists. Among the celebrated singers and instrumentalists that he managed were Mme. Schumann-Heink, Mritz Kreisler, Josef Hofmann, Mischa Elman, the violinist; Claud Cunningham, and Corrine Ryder-Kelsey.

Mr. Wolfsohn had planned a trip for this Summer, following the musical festival at Madison Square Garden on June 19 and 20, when he intended to visit all the principal musical centres of Europe. His musical engagements for the season of 1909-1910 included a tour of 100 concerts for Mme. Schumann-Heink, concert tours for Fritz Kreisler, Louise Homer, Corrine Ryder-Kelsey, Emilio de Gogorza, Herbert Witherspoon, and Claud Cunningham.

Among the celebrities whom he expected to bring back with him from abroad were Mlle. Mero, the Hungarian pianist, who was to make her first appearance in America, and Rachmaninoss, the Russian composer and celebrated pianist, who in October is scheduled to give five concerts with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Philadelphia Orchestra, and other musical organizations. He had engaged Mischa Elman, the violinist, to give a series of concerts next January with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

All of Mr. Wolfsohn's plans will be carried out and the business in the future will be under the direction of Mrs. Wolfsohn, who has been closely connected with it for years.

The funeral will be held on Thursday at his daughter's home, 151 West Seventy-seventh Street, and the burial will be in Greenwood.

REINHOLD VAN DER EMDE DEAD

He Founded the Yorkville Bank 16 Years Ago and Was Its President.

Reinhold Van Der Emde, President of the Yorkville Bank, 1,511 Third Avenue, ever since he founded it sixteen years ago, died suddenly of heart disease at his home, Bedford, in Westchester County, yesterday morning. He had been at his office on Saturday, and on Sunday and Monday seemed quite well.

Mr. Van Der Emde was born in Germany on March 17, 1842, in Mengenhausen Waldeck. He studied there, and then, in Lusanne, Switzerland, learned the drug business, and, coming here in 1869, got a position in Dietel's drug store. He was thrifty, and soon started a business of his own on the Bowery.

In 1893, with Richard H. Adams, ex-School Commissioner, he started the Yorkville Bank and took charge of it as President. The institution was successful from the first. Mr. Van Der Emde was also a Trustee of the German Savings Bank, Vice President of the German Society, Vice President of the Isabella Heimath, a member of the New York Athletic Club, and for many years a Trustee of the German Liederkranz.

Until a few years ago he had lived in this city. He leaves a widow.

The funeral will be held at his late residence on Thursday.

BROOKLYN WOBBLY; GIANTS WIN EASILY

New Yorks Earn Two Runs and McMillan Gives Them Three More on Errors.

AMES UNSTEADY AT TIMES

Pitcher Ineffective in Third Inning and Wild in Ninth, When Superbas Get Their Two Runs.

Though Brooklyn had in the box yesterday at the Polo Grounds Big Bell, the new-found wonder, the Giants took the game easily, the score being 5 to 2. The ease with which the McGraw men took the game, however, arose partly from three bankrupting errors of McMillan at shortstop, which contributed powerfully to just that many runs in the fifth inning. Murray did knock a clean home run, but it came at a time when there was no one on base. Another Giant run came from hitting.

Moreover, while Ames pitched with inconsistent effectiveness, he struck out seven Superbas; Bell struck out only three Giants. One of the Brooklyn runs was forced in by Ames giving free passes in the ninth inning.

Brooklyn began the game somewhat crippled. Jordan wasn't well enough to play first, and so Hummel was shifted from short to that position. McMillan took his place. On top of that Manager Lumley, in vainly attempting to catch a long fly by O'Hara in the sixth inning, hurt a finger, and so McElveen took his place in right.

The Giants worked hard for and got a run in the second inning. Murray singled to centre. O'Hara struck out. Murray stole second. Devlin's single to left sent him to third. Bridwell's single to left brought him home. Schlei flied out to Burch, and Bridwell was caught trying for second on the throw-in.

The Superbas tied the score in the third inning, putting the Giants in a dangerous position, out of which they helped themselves by a beautiful double play. Lumley, the first man up, drove the ball to Tenney, and beat out Tenney's toss to Ames, which was too high, anyway. Bergen singled to centre, and Lumley took third. Bell brought him home with a single to left.

Burch's drive to left sent the two runners ahead of him around one base each, and here were three men on bases with no one out. Doyle got under Hummel's pop fly. The same Doyle snatched up Alperman's grounder, caught Burch running to second on a toss to Bridwell, who caught Alperman at first, thus smothering Bergen's run home.

It was in the fifth that McMillan so gallantly assisted the enemy, placing the Giants, as one fan said, on "Easy Street." Devlin's drive was too hot for Alperman, who dropped it a sufficient number of times to allow him first. He was forced at second on Bridwell's grounder, Alperman to McMillan, but McMillan threw wild to first to catch Bridwell, the ball passing Hummel and going to the grand stand. Bridwell took second on the error.

McMillan threw Schlei's infield hit low to first. Hummel let it slip out of his hands on the ground at his feet, and while he walked leisurely around, as if to show his disgust at such throwing, Bridwell impolitely ran home. Schlei took second on the passing of Ames, Bell to Hummel. McMillan picked up Tenney's grounder, and once more threw wild to first. Schlei came home and Tenney took second. Doyle's single to right brought in Tenney. Doyle was caught stealing second.

To add to the horror of the fifth, Murray the next inning accomplished one of his favorite home runs. It may be said here, parenthetically, that if the men who are offering suits of clothes, shoes, and cigars for home runs do not withdraw their offers they deserve to be written down as thoroughbreds. With one out and the bases empty, Murray simply drove the ball to the upper left field fence and ran home in a canter.

In the same inning Lumley muffed O'Hara's long fly, injuring his damaged finger so that he had to retire, but O'Hara was caught stealing second and Devlin flied out. The Giants didn't come near a run after that.

In the ninth inning Ames got himself in a hole, and then pulled himself out of it. With one out, Alperman singled to left. Murray muffed McMillan's long fly, for which he had to run, and which curved distressingly as it moved up into the sky and down again. Ames gave Lennox his base, and the bases were all full. He struck out Kustus. He gave McElveen his base, forcing in a run. He caught Bergen's hot drive, which was bound for centre field, and the game was over. The score:

Manhattan Escapes a Shutout.

BURLINGTON, Vt., June 1.—The University of Vermont again defeated Manhattan College to-day, winning by the score of 3 to 1. The visitors were unable to get a man past first base until the eighth inning, when, with a single, two passes, and an error, one run was scored. Vermont won by bunching singles and doubles in the second and third innings. The score:

No man can prove that berries are better than pineapples, it all depends on your taste.

So with straw hats—the stiff straws, the soft Milans and Mackinaws, the Panamas, Leghorns and Bangkoks.

Each is best for the man who likes it best, and we've the best of each.

Both are cut on the same smart patterns, both are all wool and fast color.

Thousands of suits of each for you to choose from.

But we can say that Ramie is the most absorbent of textile fibres, and hence the Schlichten Ramie (pure linen) underwear is wonderfully comfortable and safe in warm weather.

YANKS AND SENATORS DIVIDE SHUT-OUTS

LIGHT BATTING ALL AROUND

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The Yankees and the Senators played two games here to-day, the Yankees shutting out the locals in the first game with the score of 4 to 0, the Senators shutting out the Yankees in the second game with the score of 2 to 0. Manning pitched an effective game for the visitors against Smith and Hughes; Groom pitched against the Yankee Warhop in the second game.

The Yankees were kept as far away from runs in the first game as they kept their enemies—except in the sixth. In that inning, with none out, Kleinow singled to right. Street was unable to pick up Manning's bunt and he was safe at first. Smith was equally unsuccessful in picking up Cree's hunt, and that small young man was also safe.

Here, then, were three men on bases, with none out, Browne made a thrilling one-hand catch of Engle's fly, but Kleinow came home in the midst of the applause. Elberfeld's single to right brought in Manning. Hemphill went out, McBride to Donohue, and then Chase brought home both Cree and Elberfeld with a single to right. Austin flied out to Browne.

In the second game the Senators took a run in the first inning and their second in the seventh. The first was quickly made. Browne drove the ball to the clubhouse in right field and took three bases on it. Engle caught Conroy's fly, but Browne came home on the throw-in. The second run was made thus: Milan walked, took third on Clymer's single to right, remained at third on Hemphill's catch of McBride's fly, but came home on Hemphill's catch of Street's fly. The scores:

Athletics and Red Sox Split Even.

PHILADELPHIA, June 1.—Philadelphia and Boston broke even in a double-header here this afternoon. Each team won a game by 1 to 0, Philadelphia beating Boston in the first game in eleven innings on a two-bagger by Ganley and Murphy's single.

Boston won the second contest in the eighth inning on a single by Niles, a wild throw by Baker, and Speaker's single. Superb pitching and fielding which bordered on the phenomenal featured the games. Ganley, Hooper, Speaker, Wagner, and French all made sensational plays. Scores:

Catcher Carrigan Has Blood Poisoning.

PHILADELPHIA, June 1.—Catcher Carrigan of the Boston American League team has been sent home by Manager Lake because of a serious case of blood-poisoning. Carrigan was injured about two weeks ago when an opposing player accidentally spiked him while sliding to the home plate. To-day gangrene developed and Carrigan's left leg and knee are swollen twice the normal size. It will be several weeks before Carrigan will be able to re-enter the game.

Pitcher Chappelle Sold to Rochester.

CINCINNATI, June 1.—Pitcher Chappelle, purchased from the Boston National League team by Cincinnati ten days ago, was sold to-day to the Rochester Club.

BROOKLYN FIELD READY.

Yesterday was trial day and the time for the winding up of training for the Brooklyn Handicap, to be run as the opening feature of the Gravesend meeting to-morrow, but, without exception, the horses that are expected to make up the field for the $5,000 contest omitted the usual trial gallops, and in about every case the trainers have stood on the recent races of their horses as their final trials.

The only two notables of the Brooklyn Handicap field that moved fast enough to even attract the attention of the horse watchers were S. C. Hildreth's King James and F. A. Forsythe's High Private, both of which raced in Toronto last Saturday, when King James handily won the Toronto Cup, with High Private unplaced. King James returned to New York Sunday, and was out for only a breezing canter yesterday. High Private got back to New York Monday, and yesterday looked as fresh and fit as he did before he was loaded into his car for the trip to Toronto Thursday. In the opinion of his owner he did not require any work to round out his training, and so he was sent but three furlongs as a test of his speed yesterday, and romped the distance against the bit in 0:37.

Every horse that is figured on by horsemen as among the runners for the Brooklyn has raced this Spring, and most of them so recently that the final gallops were dispensed with, except for the single instance of James R. Keene's Celt, the top weight and the present favorite for the race. Celt actually had a trial, and a fast and impressive one, Monday, when at Sheepshead Bay he was sent a mile and a quarter in 2:08. The work, following his easy victory in the Jockey Club weight-for-age race at Belmont Park last Thursday, has established Celt as about the strongest favorite that has ever figured in the Brooklyn Handicap two days before the race.

Wise Mason and Joe Madden, both engaged in the Brooklyn, are also in the $30,000 Belmont Stakes, to be run this afternoon, and to-day's race seems to be the choice for both of them. They were out yesterday, but their work then indicated that they are to run in the Belmont, as Joe Madden was sent a mile and three-quarters, finishing in 3:17, and Wise Mason, a winner recently at Belmont Park, worked an easy mile in 1:50. Jack Atkin, beaten in a sprint race Saturday; Fitzherbert, Half Sovereign, Berkeley, and Frank Gill are the other horses that are expected to figure in the Brooklyn field.

ENGLISH POLOISTS HARD HIT.

Buckmaster Will Not Play with Britons Against Meadow Brook.

LONDON, June 1.—Walter Buckmaster, who is acknowledged to be the best polo player in Great Britain, has declined to play for England in the games with the Meadow Brook (Long Island) team that begin here June 23 for the American Polo Cup.

It is explained officially that Mr. Buckmaster, who is a member of the Stock Exchange, bases his refusal on the ground that his present activities on the Exchange make it impossible for him to devote sufficient time for practice, but those behind the scenes attribute his action to resentment at the tardiness of the Selection Committee in asking him to play. Polo players have taken it for granted that Buckmaster would be a member of the British team, and they will be chagrined to learn that their favorite player was asked to participate only after the rest of the quartet had been selected. It appears that there has been a factional fight among the members of the Selection Committee; a small minority headed by Capt. Miller has been urging the choice of the Captain's brother, C. D. Miller.

Point Judith Poloists Beat Great Neck.

GREAT NECK, L. I., June 1.—With a total score of 7¾ goals to 3¼ the Point Judith polo team beat the Great Neck four in the second game for the second Great Neck Challenge Cup here to-day. The game was fast and furious throughout, and unmarked by accident. The Point Judith men played with even individual handicaps, and their combination work was remarkably good. J. P. Grace had the honor to make the only three goals scored by the Long Islands. The line-up:

Great Neck.—No. 1, W. R. Grace, 2; No. 2, J. P. Grace, 2; No. 3, G. Bacon, 1; back, H. B. Brown, 2.

Fairmont's Two Ten-Rounders.

Leach Cross hurt his hand in the ten-round bout with Young Erne last Friday night, so that he will be unable to keep the engagement with Young Corbett at the Fairmont Club on Friday. Corbett, however, will be accommodated, for the club has matched him with Sammy Smith, who has always showed well around the local clubs. In addition to the main bout, the club has rematched Jack Ladbury and Sonny Smith for a ten-round semi-final.

Morris H. S. Wins Championship.

Morris High School yesterday afternoon won the High School baseball championship of the Boroughs of Manhattan, Bronx, and Richmond by defeating the High School of Commerce team at American League Park by a score of 5 to 1. The victory gives the Morris boys the right to compete against the Commercial High School team, which recently won the championship of Brooklyn and Queens, for the city championship and the Public Schools Athletic League trophy.

The Morris team outclassed Commerce, the latter playing ragged ball; in fact, worse than has been seen since early in the season. Errors were plentiful, and those made by the Commerce boys contributed largely to the score of the Bronx lads.

In the pitching department, too, Morris had the better of the play, Yule showing to better advantage than Mellin. The poor support accorded Mellin in the field may have had something to do with his lack of effectiveness. Several poor decisions were made by the umpire, one of which robbed Morris of a run and another which put a quietus on a clever double play. The score:

7 X L RANCH, Wyo., June 1.—The gale, which was expected to subside with the setting sun last night, refused to do so, and I was forced again to change my plans for starting at midnight. This morning the wind was not so strong, but the cold rain which accompanied it made conditions hazardous. However, I got started at 6:25 A. M. to-day through the mountains, which will cut off about seven miles by not going into Cheyenne. I am short of time and have some miles to spare according to my schedule. I arrived at 7 X L Ranch at 9:05 A. M., a distance of nine miles, after passing through Lone Tree Creek, where I got my feet wet.

I climbed over fences which separate the sheep from the cattle pastures, and walked through cornfields, striking Fort Collins Road to this ranch, where I made a stop and was tendered hospitalities by Ashley L. Gleason, foreman, and William Acor, his assistant. This ranch is one of the many owned by Senator Warren of Wyoming. President Roosevelt was a guest here some time ago when making a tour of the West. Mr. Bitzer, an old employe of the Union Pacific Railroad, escorted me to this ranch. I intend crossing the country to Borie, where I will strike the Union Pacific main line. Until then I shall travel through the wilds of Wyoming.

It is still storming, but notwithstanding this I shall start at 1 P. M. and will get as near to Sherman as I can to-day. I am promised better weather by the natives after leaving the divide, and hope soon to get into my regular stride of four miles an hour, weather permitting.

My health and condition are perfect. I am only hoping for better walking conditions. EDWARD PAYSON WESTON.

BOWLING RECORD EQUALED.

The score by games was 246, 210, 243. In the last frame of his third game Thompson missed an excellent chance to make a new world's record. He failed by only one pin to get the third strike in his last frame, which would have given him a mark of 700. No. 10 pin wabbled badly, but failed to tumble.

Thompson's performance, which is likely to remain the top performance at the present tournament, surprised no one more than himself. He is practically a newcomer in tournament play, and has hitherto been content with an average of about 175. His best previous game was more than sixty pins beneath to-day's score.

The honors for the highest single game thus far in the tournament went yesterday afternoon to Fred Clinch of the Corinthian Club, New York, who made a mark of 268.

The leaders in the two-men championship shifted yesterday. Bowis and Windheim of Utica took first place in this event from Carl and Haller of Brooklyn by a score of 1,243, which surpasses the old mark for the tournament by 13 pins. Winheim did the better work of the two, his respective games being 221, 194, and 234. The best scores for individuals, two-men and five-men teams yesterday follow:

Individual; Three Games.—Edward Thompson, New York, 699; Charles Buonomo, Rochester, 671; Fred Hegeman, Brooklyn, 670; H. J. Miller, New York, 644; Paul Loetje, New York, 642; A. J. Geugenbach, Baltimore, 533.

Two Men; Three Games.—Bowes and Windheim, Buffalo, 1,243; Carl and Haller, Brooklyn, 1,230; Helitas and Cohn, Brooklyn, 1,215; Smith and Gebhard, Buffalo, 1,211; Edwards and Weissert, Buffalo, 1,210.

Five-Men Teams; Three Games.—Corinthian No. 8, New York, 2,899; Sunset, Brooklyn, 2,831; Ko Ko, New Yrk, 2,810; Jamaica, Jamaica, L. I., 2,809; Bronx Central, New York, 2,804; New York Inter-State, 2,800.

Strang Makes Clean Sweep.

DECATUR, Ill., June 1.—Lewis Strang made a clean sweep in the postponed Memorial Day auto races here to-day, using for the first time his Buick Cobe trophy racer. The mile track here is egg-shaped, but the daring driver won the $1,000 cash prize fifty-mile Derby in better than an hour's time. The summary:

Fifty Miles, Decatur Derby.—Won by Lewis Strang, (Buick 30.) Time—59:04 1-5. Dewitt, (Buick 22,) second; Cleveland, (Pope-Hartford,) third; Fowler, (Haynes,) fourth.

Five Miles, Free-for-All.—Won by Lewis Strang, (Buick 30.) Time—5:52 3-5. Dewitt, (Buick 22,) second; Hart, third.

Five-Mile Handicap.—Won by Lewis Strang, (Buick 30,) scratch; Dewitt, (Buick 22,) 5 seconds' handicap, second; Dunkle, 45 seconds' handicap, third. Strang's time—5:59 1-5.

Smith Beat Maloney on Points.

Howard Smith of Elizabeth, N. J., won in decided style from Tommy Maloney of New York in a ten-round bout that went the limit before the Brown Athletic Association, in West Twenty-third Street, last night, Smith having the better of the match on points through nine of the ten rounds. Maloney showed at his best in the first round, and had Smith busy trying to keep out of the way of his swings. In the succeeding rounds Smith went in, and with clean and effective work had Maloney going after the fifth round, in which Maloney, trying to get away from punishment, was warned repeatedly by Referee Brown for using his forearm and elbows. In the ninth round Maloney went to clinching to save himself.

A big crowd assembled before the Longacre Athletic Club clubhouse in West Twenty-ninth Street for the boxing show scheduled to be held there, but the doors were kept closed, and a half dozen policemen in uniform dispersed the gathering after Police Captain O'Reilly of the West Thirtieth Street Station gave warning that if any attempt to hold a boxing bout was made he would arrest all the participants.

Sheepshead Bay is becoming a central point for blackfish and seabass, with evidences of weakfish. Anglers have had good sport at the stone pile just outside of the bay, splendid catches of blackfish and seabass being recorded. "Brockie" Johnson of Brooklyn caught eight blackfish close to the Emmons Avenue bridge on Monday, while other linesmen hooked a number of seabass and a few weakfish.

Off the big pier at Ulmer Park fishermen are enjoying good results. On Sunday visitors picked up quite a number of porgies, while on the following day veteran watermen of Gravesend Bay were rewarded with nice messes of weakfish. The latter generally were small, but well worth keeping.

On the Taurus, off Seabright, yesterday, blackfish gave excellent sport. Catches of from twenty to thirty blackfish to one rod were numerous. Paul Frey and John Oberg, fishing together, caught sixty-five blackfish and two seabass. Five members of the Old Homestead Fishing Club caught 175 blackfish and 24 seabass.

MISS PAGE PLUCKY RIDER.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., June 1.—While riding her entry, Ramesis, in the jumping class at the Philadelphia Horse Show to-day Miss Mary Crozer Page was thrown heavily when the animal fell at the board fence jump. Although the horse rolled on her, Miss Page pluckily remounted and finished the round. She also gave a thrilling exhibition when riding her other entry, imported Tansy.

Lady Dilham, the brown mare exhibited by the Avondale Farm of Housatonic, Mass., received the decision in the class for harness horses not over 15 hands high.

JOHNSON AND KAUFMAN.

California Heavyweight and Big Black Agree to Fight Labor Day.

Jack Johnson and Al Kaufman were matched yesterday to fight on Labor Day with the following conditions:

Forty-five rounds or to a finish in England or France or the United States.

Twenty rounds if held in California.

Charley Harvey, acting on instruction from Billy Delaney, Kaufman's manager, met Johnson and his representatives in Baron Wilkens's in West Thirty-fifth Street, where Johnson lives when he is in New York, and Mr. Johnson stated his terms as above. The first condition, however, means that the club offering the best inducement gets the match. They cannot fight to a finish in England or the United States, so it's up to France to take this attraction if she wants a finish fight where one of the contestants will be a so-called champion.

Johnson has some grievance against the fair State of California, so he bars that State from bidding for more than a twenty-round go.

He has relegated Australia to the discard altogether because the Australians made more of Burns, the vanquished one in the Christmas fight, than they did of the black Texan.

Murphy Whips Matty Baldwin.

BOSTON, June 1.—Tommy Murphy of New York won the decision over Matty Baldwin of Boston in twelve rounds, at the Armory Athletic Association to-night in a fast and hard fight. Up to the seventh round it was about even, although Baldwin showed the effects of the New York boy's cross punches.

Johnny Glover and Wagner Matched.

Johnny Glover, the clever bantamweight of Boston, was matched last night to fight Joe Wagner of this city in a ten-round contest at the Olympic Athletic Club on next Monday night.

Touchard Defeats Hackett in Tennis.

In a match that was filled with surprises and whose outcome was nothing less than sensational, Gustave F. Touchard defeated Harold H. Hackett, the National doubles champion and former holder of the Felipe Challenge Cup, for the semi-final round bracket of the latter tournament event. Hackett is engaged in the playing through the tournament on the courts of the New York Lawn Tennis Club this year in the hopes of regaining for his personal property the cup upon which he has two legs, and which Theodore R. Pell captured a year ago. That his hopes have been dashed is evident from Touchard's score, 0—6, 7—5, and 7—5. The summary:

Third Round—Wylie C. Grant defeated Calhoun Cragin, 6—4, 13—11; Robert T. Bryan defeated Benjamin F. Phillips, 6—1, 6—4; G. M. Church defeated C. L. Johnson, 6—3, 6—4.

Fourth Round—Gustave F. Touchard defeated Harold H. Hackett, 0—6, 7—5, 7—5; G. L. Wyeth vs. L. M. Burt, 5—all, unfinished.

Manhattan Championship Doubles.—Second Round—Harold H. Hackett and Raymond D. Little defeated Dr. William Rosenbaum and Gustave F. Touchard, 6—4, 6—3; Theodore R. Pell and Wylie C. Grant defeated H. L. Ehrich and P. Foster, 6—1, 6—1.

TO RAISE $5,000,000 FOR A NEGRO UPLIFT

After a session lasting until midnight, and far from harmonious, with repeated hints that the colored man was suspicious of the motives of the whites, the conference on the status of the negro adopted resolutions before final adjournment last night providing for a permanent uplift movement to be conducted for the present under a temporary committee of forty. This committee was named by the Chairman of the conference, Charles Edward Russell, with the consent of the majority.

The statement was made by one of the leaders in the movement just after adjournment that it was the purpose of the Committee of Forty to raise a fund of $5,000,000 to be used in bettering the condition of the negro in all sections and to see that he received justice at the hands of State and Federal authorities.

At the very outset of last night's session, when Chairman Russell tried to hurry things along, the Rev. Dr. J. Milton Waldron, President of the National Negro American Political League, who spoke at least twice on every subject introduced, declared that "God Almighty was a million years making the world" and that he did not see why the conference could not take another day, if need be, to complete its work.

Chairman Russell read what he said was a declaration of principles for the conference, which might be a basis for the permanent organization. This paper, which was finally referred to the Committee of Forty, sets forth that there is a widespread tendency to abandon the struggle for equal rights for the negro, and commits the conference to a union of the races in the public schools as against segregation of the negroes as is now the case in the South.

Resolutions demanding the enforcement of the Fourteenth Amendment, the accordance of equal educational advantages to all, and that the negro should no longer be deprived of the ballot as guaranteed under the Fifteenth Amendment, were adopted. William Monroe Trotter, a negro, of Boston, son of Recorder of Deeds for the District of Columbia under Cleveland, added a resolution condemning President Taft's attitude toward the appointment of negroes to office. After a long debate this also was adopted.

William E. Walling, Prof. W. E. B. Du Bois, John E. Milholland, Moorfield Storey, Bishop Alexander Walters, Albert E. Pillsbury, the Rev. Francis Grimke, Samuel Bowles, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Prof. W. L. Bulkley, Dr. Henry Moskowitz, Miss M. W. Ovington, Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, Miss Lillian D. Wald, Mrs. Celia Parker Wooley, the Rev. W. H. Brooks, Miss Jane Addams, Judge Wendell P. Stafford, Oswald G. Villard, Charles Edward Russell, Leslie Pinckney Hill, President Charles F. Thwing, the Rev. J. H. Holmes, Prof. John Dewey, Jacob W. Mack, Miss Susan A. Wharton, Dr. C. E. Bentley, Miss Maria Baldwin, R. R. Wright, Jr., Dr. [illegible] M. Waller, L. M. Hershaw, Miss Leonora [illegible] Scarborough, Jacob H. Schiff, and Joseph Fels.

Mr. Schiff is in Europe, and it is not certain that he will accept a place on the committee.

Attack on the President.

President Taft and the leadership of Southern white men were the chief objects of attack at the morning and afternoon sessions of the conference. The President was assailed for his determination, as expressed in his inaugural address, not to appoint negroes to office where the whites protested. This doctrine was branded by William A. Sinclair, a negro of Philadelphia, who became known some years ago by his book, "The Aftermath of Slavery," "rankest heresy and a shameful surrender to Southern arrogance."

A noteworthy feature of the attack on the whites of the South—that is, the leading element of the South—which is blamed for the alleged disfranchisement of the negro, was that the chief figures in it were William English Walling, the Socialist, and Joseph C. Manning, both natives of Southern States.

While the complexion of the conference was about the same as on the opening day—that is, half and half white and negro—the attendance was much smaller. Among the best-known white persons present were Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Charles Edward Russell, the magazine writer; John E. Milholland, and Oswald Garrison Villard, grandson of William Lloyd Garrison.

At the morning session, with Bishop Alexander Walters of the African Methodist Church presiding, the principal speakers were Mrs. Ida Wells Barnett of Chicago, Chairman of the Anti-Lynching Bureau, who discussed "Lynching, Our National Crime," and ex-Attorney General Albert E. Pillsbury of Massachusetts. The latter rebuked the country for permitting the negroes to be "disfranchised in the South." Mrs. Barnett said that from the first manifestation of the mob spirit in 1882, when fifty-two persons were lynched, down to the present, mob murder, as she termed it, had increased year by year, with a grand total of 3,284 men, women, and children as its victims in a quarter of a century. Within the last ten years, she said, 966 persons, 109 white and 857 black, had been lynched.

"No other nation, civilized or savage," said she, "burns its criminals. Only under the Stars and Stripes is the human holocaust possible. Twenty-eight human beings burned at the stake, one of them a woman and two of them children, is the awful indictment against American civilization—the grewsome tribute which the Nation pays to the color line."

The Lynching Problem.

In her discussion of lynching Mrs. Barnett made no attempt to spare the North and her own State. Of the causes leading up to the double lynching at Springfield, Ill., she said that the mob was led by a foreigner, who had been in the city but a short time, rioting continuing for two days.

Mrs. Barnett ridiculed the contention of some that lynching was resorted to that womanhood might be protected. She declared that none of the white women who went South to teach the negroes had ever been attacked by the blacks.

Ex-Attorney General Pillsbury said that at least ten Southern States, by fraud or intimidation, had actually or practically disfranchised the negro, 1,500,000 blacks, representing a population of 7,500,000, losing their right to vote.

"These ten States, however, elect the full number of eighty-two Representatives in Congress, based upon their whole population," he said, "and the same number of Presidential Electors, who represent 2,383,720 white voters, an average of 27,301 voters to each Representative and each Elector. In the other thirty-six States of the Union 17,122,940 voters elect 309 representatives and Presidential Electors, an average of 55,414 voters to each representative and Elector.

"This is more than double the number exercising the same power in the disfranchising States. A white vote in these States outweighs, in the Federal Government, two votes of any color in the other States of the Union. A white voter in these States goes to the polls with somewhat more than double the Federal power of any voter in the other States."

$25,000,000 Niagara Power Bonds.

The stockholders of the Niagara Falls Power Company, according to advices received in Wall Street from Buffalo yesterday, have authorized a $25,000,000 mortgage to secure an issue of 6 per cent. refunding bonds. The total amount to be refunded is $9,096,000, of which $3,000,000 is in 6 per cent. debentures due in 1910 and the balance in four issues of Canadian debenture 6s. The mortgage will become a first lien on the Canadian property after the present issues are retired, and a second mortgage on the American properties. The first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds of the company, of which there are $10,000,000 outstanding, are not affected.

Selected as Third Voting Trustee for Morgan Syndicate Holdings.

E. H. Harriman is to be one of the voting trustees who will vote the stock of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton for the next seven years, or until the stock in the road now held by the Morgan Syndicate is purchased by the Baltimore & Ohio under the plan of reorganization which was submitted at the close of last week to the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton security holders.

The terms of the agreement, it was learned yesterday, provided that the Morgan interests should name one trustee, the Baltimore & Ohio another in the person of its president, and these two were to agree on a third. J. P. Morgan was named by the Morgan syndicate, and he and President Murray agreed upon Mr. Harriman as the third trustee.

The complexion of the voting trusteeship thus reflects most strongly the Baltimore & Ohio for Mr. Harriman is a director in that road and through the Union Pacific is very largely interested in the stock. Mr. Harriman, some of his friends said yesterday, was largely responsible for the carrying forward of the Dayton agreement reorganization.

Mr. Harriman, besides his interest in the Baltimore & Ohio, is also very largely interested in the Erie Railroad and in some of the Eastern Gould lines, including the Wheeling & Lake Erie, and these interests supplied added reasons for his selection as the third trustee.

Under the plan of reorganization $12,500,000 first and refunding 4 per cent. bonds of the Dayton road to be guaranteed principal and interest by the Baltimore & Ohio, are to be sold to provide the cash needed to carry out the plan. It was reported yesterday that arrangements had been closed for the sale of these bonds to J. P. Morgan & Co., but at the end of the day it was said that no arrangements for their sale had yet been definitely made.

TREASURY DEFICIT FALLS OFF.

$97,858,102 for Eleven Months Regarded as a Favorable Showing.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The Treasury deficit for the month of May is shown by to-day's statement to have been $5,453,955, and for the eleven months of the current fiscal year a deficit of $97,858,102 is indicated.

The available cash balance was $118,979,764, and the working balance was $40,329,000. The total receipts for May were $53,332,310, and the disbursements $58,786,265.

This showing is much more favorable than was expected by the officials as late as three months ago, and indicates that the deficit for the full fiscal year will fall short of the official estimate of $112,000,000. The working balance is not, however, regarded as fully adequate to the probable needs of the Treasury for any great length of time, and while the necessity for additional cash is not pressing, it is believed that the officials will take advantage of the present easy money conditions throughout the country by calling on the National depositary banks for the return to the Treasury of a considerable part of their holdings.

These banks now have deposits subject to Treasury check aggregating about $62,774,000, and it is believed that the Government interest would not suffer by a withdrawal of at least $20,000,000 of this sum.

The May receipts from customs were $27,872,095, an increase as compared with May, 1908, of over $8,000,000, but a decrease of over $8,000,000 as compared with last month. The receipts from internal revenue aggregated $19,295,029, an increase of over $1,000,000, as compared with the corresponding month last year, and a slight increase over last month.

The disbursements for May were a little over $4,000,000 in excess of those for May last year. There was a decrease in the civil and miscellaneous expenditures for May of $2,700,000, as compared with April this year, and an increase of about $1,000,000 on account of the navy. Pensions also increased about $3,000,000, and public works $3,500,000.

NEWHOUSE REORGANIZATION.

New Stock to be Issued Under the Plan for a Foreclosure.

The reorganization plan for the Newhouse Mines and Smelters Company, prepared by the Morse Committee, was officially announced yesterday. As previously told in THE TIMES the present holders of the $6,000,000 common stock, which has a par value of $10, are allowed to subscribe for the new $5 par stock, share for share, by paying $1 per share. The company has an indebtedness of $200,000, partly past due, and has no funds to meet the July interest on its $1,300,000 issue of needed about that date to take care of sinking fund requirements.

The new plan involves the formation of a new corporation, which will acquire the property under foreclosure. It will have, according to the announcement made yesterday, $1,300,000 6 per cent. 20-year first mortgage bonds, nor the $100,000 also come bonds convertible into stock at par, $5 per share, and 600,000 shares of common stock. The holders of the present $1,300,000 first mortgage bonds will exchange them, par for par, for the new income bonds, and the present holders of the 600,000 shares of common stock, of a par value of $10, will receive a share of stock of the new company, par value $5, for each share of the old upon subscribing and paying $1 per share. Of the new stock 260,000 shares will be held for the conversion of the bonds. The cash requirements of this plan have been underwritten.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Government Decides Not to Accept Lower Duty on Cinematograph Films.

The Government has decided not to accept a recent ruling made by the Board of United States General Appraisers regarding the classification for dutiable purposes of cinematograph films. An appeal has been taken to the United States Circuit Court, and it is possible that the issue may be heard by that tribunal before the Summer vacation begins in July.

The films in question are a species of pictures made by the action of light in a photographic camera on sheets of sensitized celluloid. The Government has taken the position that the articles are dutiable at 65 cents per pound and 25 per cent. ad valorem, as articles of which collodion or any compound of pyroxylin is the component of chief value.

When the case came before the Board of Appraisers last March General Appraiser Fischer wrote a decision for the board sustaining the contention of J. A. Berst and others that the films are entitled to enter this country under the provision in the tariff for "photographs" with a tax of 25 per cent. This rate is unsatisfactory to the Government, and for that reason it has been decided to thrash out the question in the Federal courts.

Pennsylvania Directors Re-elected.

PITTSBURG, June 1.—The annual meeting of stockholders of the Pennsylvania Company was held here to-day. The old Board of Directors was re-elected. A meeting of the Board of Directors for the election of officers will be held in Philadelphia at a later date.

Tracy & Co. Partners to be Examined.

An order has been issued for the examination of the partners in the failed Stock Exchange firm of Tracy & Co. before United States Commissioner in Bankruptcy Alexander. All three partners, W. W. Tracy, R. D. Covington, and Frederick W. Parker, are in town, but Ralph Wolf, counsel for the receiver, said yesterday that he would not go on with the examination until the expert accountants had finished going over the books.

Southern Steel Injunction Refused.

An injunction to restrain the Organization Committee of the Southern Steel Company from going on with the organization of the Southern Iron and Steel Company was refused and the order to show cause obtained by Harrison H. Schuler dismissed by Vice Chancellor Garrison in Jersey City yesterday.

Gary Plant Not to be Mortgaged.

A report from Boston yesterday that the advisability of placing a $50,000,000 mortgage on the Gary plant of the United States Steel Corporation had received consideration was denied at the company's office. Chairman Gary said the matter had not been considered or even brought up for consideration.

BETTER RAILWAY EARNINGS.

Large Gains Reported Generally by Many Roads.

Reports for April made yesterday by railroads operating in many parts of the country showed large gains in both gross and net earnings. The uniformity of the increases shown for that month was pointed to as satisfactory evidence of general improvement in business.

The Pennsylvania showed an increase of $1,353,500 in gross and $397,000 in net, the Southern Pacific an increase of $788,176 in gross and $656,895 in net, the Atlantic Coast Line a gain of $886,302 in gross and $421,274 in net, and the Southern Railway a gain of $441,926 in gross and $188,817 in net.

A number of other roads also showed corresponding improvement in gross and net.

FAILURES SLIGHTLY LARGER.

Defaulted Indebtedness $14,383,000 in May and Number of Failures 1,028.

Commercial failures during May, according to the statistics compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., were slightly larger than in the same month last year, though smaller than in April. The total amount of defaulted indebtedness was $14,383,750 and the number of failures 1,028. Dun's says:

The manufacturing failures numbered 231, having total liabilities of $7,156,140, comparing with $6,988,988 in 1908 and $4,758,725 in 1907. The trading failures numbered 766, with liabilities of $4,974,233, as compared with $5,570,684 in 1908 and $4,035,245 in 1907.

The defaults in the class of brokers and transporters numbered 31, with total liabilities of $2,253,377, as compared with 22 such defaults in 1908, having liabilities of $1,083,709. There were only two small banking defaults. The total commercial failures during the five months ended May 31 aggregated in liabilities $75,670,026, as compared with $109,666,040 in 1908, $53,123,097 in 1907, $54,813,563 in 1906, $47,126,672 in 1905, and $71,021,407 in 1904. The liabilities of the last five months have, therefore, been the largest in six years, with the exception of 1908, and they were $7,000,000 in excess of the yearly average of the five preceding years.

Dry Goods Subscriptions Closed.

J. P. Morgan & Co. closed yesterday the subscription lists to the $10,000,000 preferred stock of the United Dry Goods Companies which the bankers offered at 110. The bankers' temporary certificates for the stock were placed in the unlisted department of the Stock Exchange.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

MONADNOCK SHOE COMPANY.—Deputy Sheriff Rinn has received an attachment against the Monadnock Shoe Company of Keene, N. H., for $5,000 in favor of Florence B. Hudnall of Washington, D. C., on an assigned claim of Edward Hudnall for commissions on the sale of $100,000 worth of shoes to Frazin & Oppenheim, and the attachment was served on Payson Merrill, receiver of that firm. The Monadnock Shoe Company is a creditor of Frazin & Oppenheim for $15,422.

YULES & LANDA.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against John L. Yules and Simon Landa, composing the firm of Yules & Landa, merchant tailors, at 1,027 Halsey Street, Brooklyn, who live at 50 Ridge Street, Manhattan, by these creditors: Jacob Schindeer & Co., $109; Elias Goodman, $110; Lehrer Brothers, $214, and Charles Perman, $411. It was alleged that they are insolvent, made preferential payments of $1,000, and transferred merchandise and accounts of $500. They have been in business about four years. Judge Hand appointed J. Waring Parks receiver.

FRAZIN & OPPENHEIM.—The application of Frazin & Oppenheim, dealers in cloaks and suits, to confirm a composition with creditors at 75 cents on the dollar, payable 35 cents cash and 40 cents in trust certificates of stock in a new company, and to continue the business, came up yesterday before Judge Hand in the United States District Court. Seven creditors, whose claims aggregate $85,000, namely, Second National Bank of New York, $40,000; American Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, $19,761; Julian & Kokenge Company, Cincinnati, $16,033; Banner Rubber Company, Frankel Display Fixture Company, Rosenshine Brothers, and Isaac Rothschild, appeared by attorneys in opposition to the composition. William Lesser of Lesser Brothers, representing over $250,000 of creditors, spoke in support of the composition. Judge Hand adjourned the matter for two weeks, and allowed creditors ten days within which to file their specifications of objections.

EUGENE J. BEALES.—The application for a discharge from bankruptcy made by Eugene J. Beales of 100 West Sixty-ninth Street, formerly an investment broker, and grandson of the late Eugene Kelly, banker, is opposed by Charles M. Dunn, a creditor, and his attorneys, Olcott, Gruber, Bonynge & McManus, have filed specifications of objections. It is alleged that he destroyed books of account from which his true financial condition might be ascertained, and transferred his interest, worth $19,000, in the estate of his brother, John Charles Beales, to J. R. Steers in 1906 or 1907 while insolvent, and had unsatisfied judgments against him. Mr. Beales inherited $150,000 from his mother's estate about ten years ago and he has been recently examined in the bankruptcy proceedings regarding the disposition of the money. He stated that he lost about $90,000 in the slump in stocks when 16 to 1 was the political issue and McKinley was elected, as the brokers sold him out, and sank $45,000 in a limestone quarry near Kingston, N. Y. Mr. Beales filed a petition in bankruptcy on Nov. 24 last, with liabilities of $49,856 and no assets.

STEEL'S NEW HIGH RECORD

Wall Street came to business yesterday, following its holiday, in a cheerful frame of mind, prepared, seemingly, to buy securities upon the various favorable developments over the market recess. Traders and professional speculators naturally pinned their faith to the optimistic utterances of Mr. Harriman in the long interview accorded by him to newspaper men previous to his departure for an extended sojourn in Europe, while other folks, who believed long before Mr. Harriman said it that the continuation of the present expansion in business depended almost exclusively upon good crops, based their commitments upon the excellent weather conditions throughout the West and such other matters as an unusual number of favorable railroad earnings statements, additional receipts of substantial orders by big equipment and other industrial concerns, and rising prices for all the basic materials of trade. Union Pacific received direct attention from those most deeply impressed by Mr. Harriman's talk, and at the close of the day had advanced above 2 points upon a relatively heavy volume of business. This rise and the resumption of activity, and the forward movement in United States Steel common, which touched another new high record at 65⅝, served to lift the entire market and to sustain its advance until very near the close of business, when profit taking depressed prices in one or two directions, notably in Reading. No better index to the rising tide of business the country over could be desired than that furnished by the various earnings statements for the month of April turned in by widely separate roads yesterday. Included were the Pennsylvania, which increased gross $1,353,000; the Southern Pacific, which gained $788,000; the Union Pacific $276,000, the Chesapeake & Ohio $464,000, the St. Louis & San Francisco $336,000, and the Rock Island $480,000. Grain markets were strong again, with prices for the July option in Chicago up 2 cents. In the money market, where the June disbursements were expected to have some little effect upon quotations, nothing of the sort happened, rates averaging as low as at any time last week. The heavy surplus reported by the Clearing House banks promises continued ease and contributes materially, of course, to the success of such offerings of securities as those of the Corn Products Company and the new dry goods combine, the bonds of the one and the shares of the other having already been sold. An interesting occurrence was the purchase by the Bank of England of practically all the gold reaching London from South Africa on Monday, only a small portion of the $5,000,000 or so laid down going to Austria. Foreign exchange rates were here nominally lower.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 1.—There was a large accumulation of out-of-town buying orders at the opening this morning, and early prices in the local market were higher all around. Stocks were rather freely supplied, however, and when this demand had been filled traders attempted to bring about a reaction. The market closed firm and with but little stock pressing for sale.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Outside Orders.

Commission houses reported plenty of orders from outside yesterday morning, as might have been expected following the strong wind-up of the market prior to the holidays. This in itself was sufficient inducement to many people to send in orders to buy at the opening of the next session, but some brokers thought that a very significant feature of a large proportion of the orders was that they were not "at the market," but limited, in some cases, to half a point below Friday's closing and in others to as much as 2 points under current quotations. This was construed as meaning that either the public was looking for a reaction and hoping to scoop stocks in on the decline or else was disposed to buy only at its own figures instead of following up the advances. The limits placed on such commissions prevented a large percentage of them from being executed. With most people, however, who really want to buy stocks, the matter of a point or two usually does not stand in the way more than temporarily, and if the market continues to advance, after making a few futile attempts to get stocks at concessions, they usually pile in and buy them at whatever price they can.

Widening Steel's Market.

Announcement made during the recess of an application to list United States Steel common on the Paris Bourse seemed to help that stock, as apparently nearly everybody expected it would, for right at the opening within a small fraction of the highest price of the day was recorded. Initial transactions totaling 15,000 shares were made between 65⅛ and 65¼, following which the stock was inclined to sag, and held around 65 during the greater part of the day. Toward the end of the session, however, some big buying orders came in, which lifted the quotation ⅛ above the opening high level, to 65⅝. Bulls on the stock professed to find a good deal of significance in the Paris application, aside from a widening of the market for the security, and some thought that higher dividends were to follow. They argued that at its present price it could not hope to find a very extensive foreign following as a 2 per cent. dividend payer.

Jump in Union Pacific.

The departure of Mr. Harriman for Europe was signalized by an advance of more than 2 points in Union Pacific to the highest figure reached since the famous bull movement of 1906 subsequent to the advance in the Union Pacific dividend to 10 per cent. Those who had maintained that Union had been kept down for some weeks on account of liquidation of some of Mr. Harriman's personal holdings prior to his prolonged absence from business, reasoned that there was nothing further now to stand in the way of a rise in the stock, which has been a notable laggard. Others used their ingenuity to twist into a bull tip Mr. Harriman's statement regarding a prospective lower return on capital as the years go by. Such an inference was purely gratuitous on the part of the traders themselves, who argued that if capital was going to command a lower price they might just as well begin right away to put the theory into practice on Union Pacific and send the price up so as to reduce the income yield. Still others disposed to look at the prosaic side of affairs thought that Mr. Harriman's rather optimistic utterances on general conditions were sufficient to justify purchases of the stock.

"Disappointment" in Reading.

Although it left off with only a slight net decline, Reading was rather heavy during most of the day. It was again time to be "disappointed" because the Reading plan was not announced. The annual stockholders' election was held in Philadelphia, an occasion which, of course, could not be allowed to pass without indulging in hopes that the Reading plan, concerning which there has been so much talk, would be revealed. Those who have been in Wall Street for any length of time, however, have come to know pretty well that announcements of this sort are not made, except in rare instances, at stockholders' meetings. The Directors attend to such affairs and the stockholders are officially notified through the medium of complicated legal verbiage some time afterward. Speculators in Reading have become quite accustomed to disappointments, and probably will not take this one seriously.

Resumed Activity in St. Paul.

St. Paul, which in the last week or so had been allowed to sink into the background, was again taken up yesterday by a group of professional operators who seemed to find little difficulty in sending the price up nearly 2 points. Curiously enough, the rise was not accompanied by rumors or far-fetched explanations. One of the brokers most active on the buying side said it went up simply because there were more buyers than sellers, usually a pretty sound reason to account for the advance in any stock. In addition, it was said that St. Paul stock had become rather scarce in the market, a good deal of it having been absorbed by investors, since it became pretty generally realized that the Pacific Coast extension would be a paying proposition, and not likely to endanger the dividend returns.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT—Strength of July contracts was the leading factor yesterday. Receipts continued light, the interior only getting 345,000 bushels, compared with 952,000 bushels last year, both being for two days. The domestic visible decreased 2,643,000 bushels, which, with 800,000 bushels decrease in the Canadian visible, made a total reduction for the week in supplies of 3,443,000 bushels, compared with 1,254,000 bushels decrease last year. With Liverpool closed, the most notable feature of foreign news was a 3-cent advance in Buenos Ayres, emphasizing the drought situation in the Argentine. The market showed very few weak spots at any time, notwithstanding a favorable weather outlook. Cash wheat in New York closed firm, No. 2 red $1.47 in elevator and $1.47 nominal, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth $1.41⅛ and No. 2 hard Winter $1.42⅝, free on board, afloat, both nominal.

CORN—Corn showed great strength in this market also yesterday. It was contended that farmers were not selling reserves freely, although the movement was more than the estimate, while Chicago expected 477 cars on Wednesday, or 100 more than it received on Tuesday. There was an increase in the visible of 1,349,000 bushels. Cash corn in New York was firm, although still nominal, No. 2 86c elevator and 82c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white 84½c and No. 2 yellow 84½c, free on board, afloat.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Sensitive and Irregular—Closes Unchanged to 6 Points Down.

Cotton was nervous and unsettled yesterday, owing apparently to apprehensions as to the Government's initial crop report, due at noon Friday. The market at one time showed a net decline of 8@11 points, later recovering part of the loss. The close was steady, net unchanged to 6 points lower.

The market opened steady at a decline of 3 points to an advance of 3 points, and shortly after the call sold 4@6 points net higher. The rally later seemed due chiefly to buying by Memphis.

UNITED STATES TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK

TRUSTEE

Redeemable at par at the option of the Company, on and after October 1st, 1916, upon any interest day, after not less than 60 days' nor more than 90 days' notice by advertisement, and entitled to the benefits of a Sinking Fund commencing April 1st, 1912, calculated to redeem the bonds at par on or before maturity, by half-yearly drawings on April 1st and October 1st in each year, according to the Amortization Table endorsed on the bonds. Coupon Bonds in denominations of $1,000, $500, and $100 or equivalent in English, French, German and Dutch currencies.

These bonds are part of a series of $5,000,000 of principal, of which $1,000,000 have been previously sold, and are the direct obligation of The Mortgage-Bond Company of New York, incorporated under the Banking Laws of the State of New York.

CAPITAL.............. $2,000,000
SURPLUS.............. $400,000

The Trust Agreement dated 1st October, 1906, securing these Bonds, and to which reference is made for the precise terms thereof and copies of which can be obtained at our office, among other things provides for the issue of Series II, limited to $5,000,000. Further issues of Bonds may be made under said Trust Agreement to an amount not to exceed, together with all other indebtedness of the Company, FIFTEEN TIMES THE CAPITAL STOCK OF THE COMPANY OUTSTANDING AT THE TIME OF ISSUE.

RICHARD M. HURD, ESQ., PRESIDENT OF THE MORTGAGE-BOND COMPANY OF NEW YORK, IN A LETTER DATED MAY 15, 1909, WRITES IN PART AS FOLLOWS:

The Company is organized under Article VII. of the Banking Law of the State of New York as a Mortgage Loan and Investment Corporation, with a Share Capital of $2,000,000, the incorporation being completed on April 16th, 1905, and in accordance with that law the Company is subject to periodical inspection by the Banking Department of the State of New York.

"The Company owns first mortgages in eighteen cities, amounting to $4,192,814 on property valued at $10,487,582.

The Bonds outstanding must be secured at all times by deposit with the Trustee of First Mortgages equal in face value to the face value of the Bonds outstanding on improved real estate in Cities of the United States having a population of not less than 40,000, as defined in the Trust Agreement, subject to the right of the Company temporarily to deposit Cash, United States Government Bonds or Bonds or Stock of the City of New York at a valuation 5% below the market value thereof.

All Mortgages used as security are limited to one-half of the value of the mortgaged property as appraised for the Company, except that in Cities having a population of 300,000 or over such mortgages may be for an amount not exceeding three-fifths of the value of the property, as appraised for the Company, and in New York City not exceeding two-thirds of the value of the property as appraised for the Company.

No loans are to be made by the Company on farm property, unimproved property, undivided interests, representing less than the entire ownership of the property, leaseholds, churches, factories, clubs or theatres.

The appraised value taken as basis for the mortgage loans is not to exceed the selling value determined by the Company by careful investigation. In arriving at this value only the established utility of the property and the earning power under systematic management is to be considered.

The appraised value of properties securing mortgages deposited under the Trust Agreement in all cases is to be based on two appraisals, one of which is to be made by the Company's appraiser in the City where the property is located and the other is to be made by a representative of the Company in the home office, who shall have personal knowledge of values in all the Cities in which he makes appraisals. In case any mortgage amounts to $100,000 or over a third appraisal is to be obtained, made by an additional appraiser selected by the Company.

No real estate is to be acquired, except to avoid losses under foreclosure, or to provide offices for the Company's own use. All real estate acquired under foreclosure is to be promptly sold."

The legal proceedings for the creation of this issue of bonds have been taken under the supervision of Mr. David B. Ogden, Counsel for The Mortgage-Bond Company of New York, and have been approved on our behalf by Messrs. Underwood, Van Vorst & Hoyt.

Application will be made to list these bonds on the New York, London and Amsterdam Stock Exchanges.

A simultaneous offering will be made in London by Messrs. Coutts & Co. and in Amsterdam by Administratiekantoor Broes & Gosman, C. S.

For further particulars regarding the company and the issue of these bonds reference is made to the letter referred to above of Mr. Richard M. Hurd, President, as well as to the Trust Agreement, which are on file at our office.

HAVING SOLD A LARGE AMOUNT OF THE ABOVE BONDS, WE OFFER THE BALANCE, SUBJECT TO PREVIOUS SALE OR ADVANCE IN PRICE, AT 90 AND ACCRUED INTEREST.

INDUSTRIAL BONDS

Many bonds, not issued by railroads, are loosely classed together as "industrial" bonds. They are well worth studying, because even the best of them can be bought at a price to yield a much larger return on the investment than that of any high-grade railroad bond.

We have prepared a circular containing brief descriptions of several of the more active listed bonds, together with our reasons for believing that the investor who selects carefully can find among bonds of this class profitable investments without undue risk.

Copies will be gladly furnished on application.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

HEINZE STOCK IS HIT

Curb stocks were fairly active yesterday, but price movements showed no marked tendency in either direction. Cumberland-Ely became markedly active and strong, reporting sales of 11,000 from 8⅝ up to 8 11-16. Miami gained ⅛ on transactions of 3,100. Ray Central reported transactions of 12,000 between 3 9-16 and 3¼. Greene-Cananea closed even, with opening prices at 10¾, and Nevada Consolidated, after selling 3,000, closed ⅛ above the opening. Considerable interest developed in United Copper, which reflected the troubles of its President, F. A. Heinze, by selling down from 11½ to 10¼. Before the close the price recovered to 10½. International Smelting shares appeared for the first time, selling 400 at 126 and 126½.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Trading Reopens Cheerful and Active on the London Exchange.

LONDON, June 1.—Money was more plentiful and in good demand on the market to-day, and discounts were steady. Austria secured about one-third and the Bank of England the remainder of the $5,000,000 gold available.

Trading on the Stock Exchange reopened cheerful and active. Kaffirs were buoyant, the leading shares rising sharply on vigorous buying. Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk jumped sharply on April earnings, but foreign bonds scarcely moved. Consols, in which the settlement has been concluded, hardened a fraction, but home rails were weak on the labor troubles.

American securities opened quiet. United States Steel common advanced 2⅝ points, but the rest of the list showed very little change from Friday's closing. The market improved gradually, and at noon was steady, with prices from ¼ to 1½ above parity. Steel and the Harriman issues continued active in the afternoon, but New York sold the former at ¾ from the best, and the market closed irregular.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 1½@1 9-16 per cent.; for three months' bills, 1½@1 9-16 per cent.

PARIS, June 1.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were firm.

Exchange on London, 25f 17c for checks.

BERLIN, June 1.—Prices on the Boerse to-day were firm, but the trading was inactive.

Bank of Germany.

DOMINION COPPER STATEMENT

Protective Committee Corrects Assertions as to the Vancouver Bid.

The Protective Committee of the Dominion Copper Company, of which B. W. Lincoln is Chairman, issued a statement yesterday, correcting assertions made in an advertisement printed on Sunday and Monday that the British Columbia Copper Company was the only bidder when the company's property was put up at auction in Vancouver, B. C., on May 28. Here is the statement:

> The Protective Committee of the Dominion Copper Company received a telegram from its representative in Vancouver on the day of the sale stating that the only bid was $155,000, made by the British Columbia Copper Company. It was unable to get this telegram confirmed or denied at the office of the counsel for the Hayden Committee. It appears that the bid was made by one Weinman, and there was nothing to indicate that he represented the Hayden committee. The Protective Committee accepts the statement of Mr. Untermyer that this bid was made for the Hayden-Untermyer committee, but it is manifest that until Mr. Weinman declared himself as a representative of that organization after the advertisement of the Protective Committee had been made, our representatives had no reason to believe this to be the case.
>
> The important object of this committee is to prevent any attempt to bring about a sacrifice of the property. The committee has extended the time for deposit with the Empire Trust Company, 42 Broadway, New York City, until June 16, 1909, but is urging every one to deposit their securities on or before June 4, that our counsel in Vancouver may show the court on that date the strength of our position.
>
> The committee would call attention to the fact that the Hayden committee has on a previous occasion made an erroneous statement in which they advertised in all the leading papers the date of the sale of the property as being set for May 17, whereas the correct date was May 28.

NEWHOUSE MINES & SMELTERS

To the Bondholders and Stockholders:

Owing to the recent depression in business generally, and in the copper industries especially, and also owing to numerous unfortunate caves and mishaps at the mines of your company located at Newhouse, in the State of Utah, your company finds itself with an indebtedness of nearly $200,000, partly past due, on which suit is threatened, and with no funds with which to meet the semi-annual interest that will fall due on July 1st, 1909, on its $1,300,000 par value of outstanding First Mortgage bonds, and the $100,000 required also on July 1st, 1909, for sinking fund purposes.

The Company is unable to meet these obligations and requires substantial further working capital for the development of its mines, the alteration of its mill, and to pay its creditors. To that end a prompt reorganization is imperative. The undersigned, who own and control large amounts of the securities of the Company, have, at the request of Bondholders and Stockholders, consented to act as a Reorganization Committee. As the result of their investigations they present the following facts:

PRESENT FINANCIAL CONDITION

Principal on outstanding Bonds	$1,300,000
Interest due on July 1st, 1909	39,000
Floating debt largely represented by notes (approximately)	200,000
Present outstanding share capital, 600,000 shares, par value $10 each	6,000,000
Total	$7,629,000

To this must be added the legal and other expenses incident to the foreclosure of the mortgage and the organization of a new company.

PLAN OF REORGANIZATION

6 per cent. 20-year income bonds, convertible into stock at par	$1,300,000
600,000 shares of common stock of the par value of $5 per share	3,000,000
Total securities of the new company	$4,300,000

The New Company will enter into appropriate covenants against the creation of any mortgage upon the property to rank prior to the Income Bonds, except with the consent of three-fourths in amount of the then outstanding Income Bonds, and that the then holders of Income Bonds shall have the right to exchange their bonds at par for the bonds that may be issued secured by any such mortgage.

The interest on the bonds will be payable annually, but only if and when earned and from and out of the net profits of the year. The Bonds may be retired at par by setting apart and applying annually 20% of the net earnings for that purpose, subject to the right of the Bondholders at any time within ten years to convert their Bonds into stock at par.

In order to furnish necessary working capital for development, payment of debts, expenses of foreclosure, reorganization and underwriting, the Stockholders will be required to subscribe to the capital stock of the new Company and to pay One Dollar for every share so subscribed. Every Stockholder so subscribing will receive one share of common stock of the New Company for each share now held by him.

One share of present stock of the par value of $10, upon subscribing and paying One Dollar, will receive a share of stock of the New Company of the par value of $5.

Each holder of $1000 par value of the present bonds will receive for the bonds and accrued interest $1000 par value of bonds of the New Company.

APPORTIONMENT OF NEW SECURITIES

	Par Value Bonds.	Shares Par $5.
TO THE PRESENT BONDHOLDERS:
20-year Income Bonds of the New Company, convertible into stock at par, of the par value of	$1,300,000
TO THE PRESENT STOCKHOLDERS:
To the holders of the 600,000 shares of the present stock (or the Underwriters) who shall subscribe for stock in the New Company, and pay therefor at the rate of $1.00 per share.		600,000
To be held in the Treasury for the conversion of Bonds		260,000
	$1,300,000	860,000

Security holders who desire to participate in this plan are required to deposit their securities with the Hungarian American Bank, No. 32 Broadway, New York City, not later than the first day of July, 1909.

Certificates of stock, in order to be entitled to deposit, must be indorsed in blank, and must be accompanied by the payment of the first installment on account of the stock of the New Company. The payments by the Stockholders are to be made in two installments, as follows:

50 cents per share at the time of deposit of the present stock, not later than the 1st day of July, 1909; and the balance of

Negotiable temporary receipts will be issued for the securities deposited.

All depositors will be deemed to have assented to the terms of the plan and agreement, copies of which may be had on application to the Hungarian American Bank or to the Chairman of the Committee.

Holders of a majority of the bonds and a large amount of the stock have already approved the above plan.

DOMINION COPPER CO.

To Stockholders and Bondholders:

The Protective Committee is informed that the bid reported to it as that of the British Columbia Copper Company was made by a representative of the office of the counsel for the Hayden Committee, for that committee.

The important point is that an attempt was made to sacrifice the property and the Protective Committee can prevent this only by your unqualified support.

Deposits will be received by the EMPIRE TRUST COMPANY, 42 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY, until June 15th, 1909, but it is of the greatest importance to your interest that every deposit possible be made before June 4th, that we may be in a position to prevent a sacrifice of the property.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Corner Sold at Broadway and Fourth Street—Sixteen-Story Building to be Erected by New Owners—Other Dealings.

Frederick Fox & Co. have sold for the Mason estate the property at 692 and 694 Broadway, southeast corner of Fourth Street, having frontages of 45 feet on Broadway, 275 feet on Fourth Street, and 74 feet on Lafayette Street. The buyer is an out-of-town client, who has arranged with Architects Clinton & Russell to prepare plans for a sixteen-story building, which will be erected on the site by the Thompson-Starrett Company. Building operations will be started by Feb. 1, 1910. The entire amount involved in this project will be about $2,000,000.

The buildings which are to be demolished are now occupied by the Northern Bank and the Whiting Manufacturing Company. Forty or fifty years ago they were used by the city for the Normal College, and afterward by the State as an armory. The smaller building, on Lafayette Street, was formerly the old family homestead of the Masons, and the original parquet floors can still be seen. The present building has the further distinction of being the first of its kind on Broadway to be construed with a subbasement. The property was recently bid in by the heirs at public auction in a partition suit at $600,000. The new building is to be named the Mason Building, in honor of Henry Mason, the founder of the Chemical National Bank.

Lost and Found.

The law tells finders that they must try to restore lost property to losers, and common sense tells losers that they must make a prompt effort to recover their property.

The New York Times is known throughout the city as the recognized medium for Lost and Found advertisements, and its weekly bulletin, sent without charge to all pawnshops, police stations, and centres of transportation, keeps your advertisement alive long after publication.

By advertising in The New York Times you can mark your lost property as something a dishonest finder cannot safely try to pawn or sell, and his only hope of making any money is to claim the reward you offer. Telephone 1000 Bryant.—Adv.

QUEENS—FOR SALE OR TO LET.

THIS IS HOW YOU CAN LIVE RENT FREE
Six years ago I was building and selling Queen Anne detached 8 to 11 room houses in Flatbush at prices ranging from $4,500 to $6,000 each.
These same houses are to-day selling at prices ranging from $7,000 to $10,000 each. The owners have lived rent free and with a comfortable margin of profit besides.
I am now offering homes and home sites at Kissena Park, a much more accessible, more highly improved, and more promising location than was Flatbush, as here we have sewers, streets paved, curbed, and guttered; churches, schools, stores, etc., all established and near at hand. None of these were provided for the Flatbush territory until after the section was populated.
KISSENA PARK adjoins KISSENA LAKE PARK
One of the city's most delightful park purchases, and the property, which comprises over 4,000 lots, is laid out and ornamented with flowering shrubs and shade trees in such manner as to place it in direct harmony with this beautiful City Park.

SCARSDALE ESTATES
THE HOMELAND IN THE HILLS

The Family Man Our appeal is to the family man. To the man with children growing up, who need the benefits of life in the country, no less than the advantages of the city.

Scarsdale Estates is a home community in the country with city advantages. It is a community of individual homes—not a succession of streets chiselled out of cold stone and brick, where even common daylight is at a premium and the air is germ laden and heavy with dust.

His Home For the sake of the children and for your own sake, leave the city's cares and snares and step over the threshold into the pure, healthful, free life of the Westchester hills. Come to Scarsdale Estates and live in a REAL home of your own. Don't dream about it and "wish" it were true, but MAKE it true. We have a neat booklet which tells all about this property. A request by mail will place it in your hands. Send for it now.

Anticipation

is a word of such significance that many of our oldest and most popular proverbs are based upon its use. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." "A stitch in time saves nine." "There is no use in locking the stable door after the horse is stolen."

Apply anticipation to the offices of the Times Building. Every year adds to instead of subtracts from their desirability. More hotels, more clubs, more theatres, and more business concentrate about Times Square daily and almost hourly. Situated midway between Grand Central Station and the new Pennsylvania Terminal, it will also be the very centre of New York's transportation system. Think of what this will mean in the future, and to use another quotation, "Take time by the forelock."

THREE BIDS SOON FOR NEW SUBWAYS

SHONTS-WILLCOX CONFAB

Interborough Plans More Extensive Than Former Ones—Indeterminate Franchise Now No Obstacle.

The new subway situation took one more step along the road to actual results yesterday. President Theodore P. Shonts of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company had a conference with Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission, in which he discussed the details of the plans which the Interborough's engineers and lawyers have worked out governing a bid under the recent amendments to the rapid transit law permitting the construction of subways by private capital. He confirmed the reports published previously that the company will have something ready to submit soon, and added that the plans will be somewhat more extensive than the former ones.

The Interborough, so Mr. Shonts told Mr. Willcox yesterday, is still grieved over the embodiment of the indeterminate franchise feature in the rapid transit law, but the company thinks it can get the necessary capital nevertheless. In this view it is now in agreement with the other bidders for the construction of subways, the Bradley-Gaffney-Steers Company, the Amsterdam Corporation, and the Schmidt Continuous Transit Securities Company, all of which are preparing bids.

It is thought the Interborough's plans will include the construction of a four-track subway down the west side from Times Square to the Battery, instead of a two-track line as originally contemplated. It is believed also that the Interborough will offer to build four tracks on the extension of its present Subway up Lexington Avenue to the Bronx. This is the extension which conflicts with the Bradley-Gaffney-Steers plan to build the Broadway-Lexington Avenue route substantially on the lines laid out by the Public Service Commission. The Interborough is particularly anxious to get its own plan through, for the reason that it would shut out the chance of a competing east side subway from Grand Central downtown, which the Broadway-Lexington Avenue route would afford.

Arthur D. Baldwin, counsel for the Bradley-Gaffney-Steers combination, also called on Chairman Willcox yesterday, to say that the combination of contractors would have its plans at hand very soon. The commission received a letter from Max Schmidt, President of the Continuous Transit Securities Company, embodying three alternative propositions to build moving sidewalks under the law as it now stands.

One of the Schmidt plans contemplates a moving sidewalk starting at Fourth Avenue and Fourteenth Street and running north under Broadway to the vicinity of Times Square, with an arcade along the side affording entrances into the stores along the way. As an alternative route, Mr. Schmidt suggests a moving sidewalk beginning at the Brooklyn Plaza of the Williamsburg Bridge, crossing that bridge on an elevated structure, and then entering the bridge loop subway, which the city has nearly completed. The bridge loop subway would take the moving sidewalk to the Brooklyn Bridge, and from that point Mr. Schmidt proposes to build a private subway under Nassau Street to Broad, down Broad to Beaver Street, and thence to the present Subway station at Bowling Green.

The third of the Schmidt routes contemplates a crosstown subway in Thirty-fourth Street from Second to Ninth Avenue. These were in general the three propositions submitted to the commission by the Continuous Transit Securities Company early last Winter, contingent upon the amendment of the Public Service Commission law. At that time the Schmidt concern talked of building all three if allowed. Its proposal now is to build whichever one of the three the Public Service Commission may favor.

McADOO AGREES TO TERMS.

Will Not Interfere with a Second Subway in Forty-second Street.

The Public Service Commission disposed yesterday of the last objection raised by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company against the construction of the McAdoo Subway through Forty-second Street by going on record that under no circumstances would the station at Fifth Avenue be allowed to interfere with the construction of another tube through Forty-second Street.

This was the obstacle which Controller Metz raised in a letter to the commission, after the Interborough officers had appeared before the Board of Estimate to urge it upon that body as a reason why the McAdoo franchise should be held up.

William G. McAdoo, President of the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad at once sent a letter to the Public Service Commission saying that it had not been the plan to construct a station at Fifth Avenue north of the medial line of Forty-second Street so as to interfere with another subway, and offering to have a specific statement to that effect incorporated in the franchise.

Chairman William R. Willcox of the Public Service Commission, in his letter of yesterday, said that when the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad came to the commission with its detailed plans for approval, it would be insisted that the Fifth Avenue Station should not conflict with any other subway line.

It is probable that the petition of Mr. McAdoo's company for permission to extend its tunnels from the present terminus at Thirty-third Street and Sixth Avenue to the Grand Central Station will be approved by the Board of Estimate at its meeting on Friday. The special committee appointed by the board to consider the matter will meet again to-day.

SHOT HIS RIVAL TWICE.

Girl Factory Employes Fled in a Panic When Men Workers Fought.

Luigi Luppo, 39 years old, was shot twice in the stomach in the Empire Button Company factory at 509 to 515 Broome Street last night while attacking Felix Elbetero of 219 Mulberry Street, as the latter sat at his bench in the button factory on the third floor of the Broome Street building.

Several hundred girls are employed in the button factory, and they fled in every direction. In the excitement the man who did the shooting escaped. Although severely wounded Luppo will probably recover.

Policeman Decker of the Macdougal Street Station, who ran in on the alarm being given, sent the wounded man to St. Vincent's Hospital.

The police believe the two buttonmakers became enamoured of some girl in the factory and that her preference for one of them may have caused the shooting.

FIRE DRILL SAVES CHILDREN.

DETROIT, Mich., June 1.—All of the pupils of St. Casimir parochial school, at Twenty-third and Myrtle Streets, escaped in safety this morning when fire started on the second floor of the school.

There were nearly 900 pupils in the school when the fire was discovered. Fire drills had been frequent, and when the alarm was spread through the building the teachers marshaled the little ones into orderly lines and conducted them down the stairs and fire escapes to the street without panic and without injury to any of them.

Hundreds of excited Polish fathers and mothers, frightened almost to frenzy by the news of the fire, rushed to the scene from all over the parish to rejoice when they found their children safe in the street.

The fire was discovered in a room on the second floor. It is supposed that greasy rags or waste generated it, but it is also reported that an explosion was heard shortly before the flames were first seen. Father Gutowski of the parish declares that he believes an effort was made deliberately to burn the building. The loss is about $5,000.

RECKLESS ATHLETE KILLED.

Trolley Pole Knocked Him from a Car While He Was Skylarking.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, June 1.—Thomas Johnson, an eighteen-year-old crack runner of Yonkers, who took part in the Memorial Day Westchester County Athletic Association meet on the White Plains Fair Grounds, was mortally hurt while skylarking on a White Plains trolley car late last night. He was with a party of High School boys bound for Yonkers. He was hanging too far out from an open car and his head struck a trolley pole. Conductor Pope had warned the boys to keep their heads in the car, but Johnson ignored him. When struck he fell to the roadway and his skull was fractured and one leg and an arm were broken. He died early this morning in the White Plains Hospital.

OPEN CATSKILL WATER BIDS.

Pittsburg Company Lowest Bidders for Five-Mile Section.

Bids on 5 3-10 more miles of the Catskill Aqueduct were opened by the Board of Water Supply yesterday. This section is in the towns of Montgomery, Newburg, and New Windsor, Orange County. The Pittsburg Contracting Company was the lowest bidder of the eleven who presented estimates on the contract, at $1,675,290. The highest bidder was the Scott, Smith & White Company, at $2,346,120.

Bids on the Moodna Siphon, under the Moodna River, will be opened by the board to-morrow. The siphon will be in seven shafts 25,000 feet long. It is estimated that this contract will cost something like $4,000,000.

HELD FOR REGESTER MURDER.

Man Arrested in Los Angeles Had Bracelet of Dead Girl.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 1.—Charles A. Barr, who says he is a bricklayer, was arrested to-night on suspicion of having strangled to death Laura Regester, 26 years old, in Providence, R. I., on May 10.

Barr was trying to sell a bracelet to a pawnbroker to obtain money to attend a prize fight when arrested.

It is said by the officers that the bracelet has been identified as one worn by Miss Regester when she was murdered.

Ex-Sugar Employes Must Stand Trial.

Judge Hough, in the United States Circuit Court, handed down a decision yesterday dismissing the demurrers filed to the indictments found some weeks ago against five men who were employes of the American Sugar Refining Company until they were indicted, and then were dismissed by the company. The indictments charge conspiracy in connection with the sugar-weighing fraud cases, in which the Government has forced the Sugar Trust to pay $2,000,000 in back duties and penalties. Judge Hough declares that the acts charged constitute a crime, and that the elements of conspiracy are present in the Government's allegations.

Hearst Buys ex-President Arthur's Home.

William Randolph Hearst took title yesterday to the two four-story basement brick buildings at 119 and 123 Lexington Avenue. Mr. Hearst purchased the house at 119 from Abram Sebring and 123 Lexington Avenue from Miss Susan Murray. Miss Murray is understood to have inherited the house from the late President of the United States, Chester A. Arthur. In that house on Sept. 20, 1881, President Arthur took the oath of office. The purchase price was nominal in both deeds.

Transfer Stock Tax Receipts Grow.

ALBANY, June 1.—State Controller Gaus announced to-day that the transfer stock tax receipts for May were $391,540, as against $240,835 for the corresponding month last year. The Prudential Insurance Company to-day paid to the Controller $327,107, the amount of the franchise tax on gross premiums.

TO KEEP SEWAGE FROM NEW YORK BAY

DR. PORTER APPROVES MOVE

WASHINGTON, June 1.—On behalf of the Government of the United States the Attorney General to-day presented in the Supreme Court of the United States a petition for a perpetual injunction against the Bronx River Sewer Commission of New York prohibiting it from permitting the discharge of the sewage of the Bronx River Valley sewage district into the waters of the Hudson River. The bill is similar to that filed by the State of New York against the State of New Jersey in the case of the Passaic Valley sewerage district.

In his complaint the Attorney General calls attention to the already badly polluted condition of New York Bay, and says that "any further contamination, especially in such bulk and to be discharged in one place, as contemplated and planned will render conditions more intolerable and tend to prevent the ready assimilation of the sewage already entering those waters."

The Attorney General also declares that "in the light of modern sanitary science and engineering methods there are other better and more advanced methods for the disposal of sewage than those proposed by the Bronx River Valley Sewer Commissioners, so that the methods adopted for such sewage disposal, to the manifest and continued injury of commerce and navigation, the public health of the port, and the property of the United States, were not necessary."

Permission to file the voluminous bill was granted, and it is now the turn of the State of New York and the Sewer Commissioners to show cause why the writ of injunction should not be issued.

The motion for the injunction to prevent the pollution of New York Harbor was made by Special Assistant Attorney General Hugh Gordon Miller. The petition recites that the Bronx Valley sewer, as authorized by the State of New York, contemplates the discharge of the sewage of a region which, in a short time, is expected to have a population of about 850,000, into the Hudson River "untreated and without screening, clarification, or sedimentation."

The proposal has already the condemnation of the Merchants' Association of New York City, the Maritime Association, the Produce Exchange, the Board of Trade and Transportation, the American Steamship Association, and the West End Association, who object to the further pollution and obstruction of the Harbor of New York and its connecting navigable waters.

In the Passaic Valley sewer case the State of New York was the original plaintiff and the State of New Jersey the defendant, the United States intervening as an interested party to help New York.

While the State of New York is the actual defendant in this suit to prevent the discharge of the Bronx Valley sewage into the Hudson River, its own Commissioner of Health, Dr. Eugene H. Porter, wrote on April 22 last that he does not approve of this sewer project.

"The policy which I have maintained, and shall continue to maintain while State Commissioner of Health, is that the discharge of raw sewage into the waters of the State must cease. I do not mean by this that elaborate and expensive plants shall be constructed in the case of every sewerage system of the State. Local conditions govern the requirements for degree of purification in every case. With the water around and immediately tributary to New York Harbor I believe, however, that the time has come when all sewage should receive some treatment before being discharged into them, and that until further scientific light is furnished by future investigation I feel safe in the opinion that at this time a clarification of all sewage should at least be secured by adequate screening or settling devices before being discharged into these waters."

The Government charges, on the authority of the New York Metropolitan Sewerage Commission—an agent of the people of the State of New York—and other expert scientific sources, that typhoid germs have been shown to travel 80 miles by water; that there is at all times—compared with cities having modern sanitary sewage disposal works—an unusual amount of typhoid fever in the vicinity of New York City and on the line of this proposed sewer.

To Elmira for $7,500 Fur Theft.

Thomas S. Mullin of 516 East Eighteenth Street, who stole Russian sables valued at $7,500 from Revillon Frères last October pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Foster in General Sessions and was sentenced to the Elmira Reformatory. Mullin, it is charged, sold the furs for $4.

ADVANCE RACE NEWS LEGAL.

Sheets Sold at Tracks Not Gambling Devices, Says the Court.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 1.—The Court of Appeals to-day handed down a decision which, in effect, holds that the dispensing of advance racing information on the Brighton Beach track last July was not a violation of the anti-race track gambling laws.

The court unanimously and without an opinion affirmed the decision of the lower court, sustaining the demurrer interposed by William Engeman, Christopher Fitzgerald, the President of the Brighton Beach Association, and John C. Cavanagh, who, it was contended, were responsible for the issuance of the advance sheets.

They were indicted as "common gamblers," but demurred on the grounds that the acts complained of did not constitute a crime. The question before the court was whether the advance information sheet is a device and apparatus for gambling within the terms of Section 347 of the Penal Code.

Under the title of the Bureau of Advance Information, and managed by John Cavanagh, the news slips, the legality of which is now upheld by the Court of Appeals, were sold at the race course. They were slips of tissue paper giving the names of the horses announced as starters and the names of the jockeys. The only value of the service was that the information concerning horses and riders who would actually compete in races was thus obtainable from ten to fifteen minutes before the same information could be posted on the official notice boards at the track.

A uniform rate of $2 a race was charged for the news, and the bookmakers and the men with a desire to bet were the chief patrons of the news bureau, as the earlier service gave them more time in which to make their estimates of the possibilities of the races. When the question of whether the advance news slips were a device for gambling or bookmaking was raised the Bureau of Advance Information stopped the sale of the slips, but continued to issue the information in the usual style and distributed the slips gratis to all who wished them.

As a result of the decision that the business is not illegal, the sale of the news slips is to be resumed, but it is said that there will be a modification in the price of the service.

SHIPBUILDING SUIT AGAIN.

Action at Saratoga Against Belmont, Gould, and Others to Recover Losses.

SARATOGA, N. Y., June 1.—An interesting suit in which several prominent New York financiers will play a part came up for trial to-day before Justice Van Kirk in the Supreme Court, and the evidence is expected to throw further light on the methods of financing the United States Shipbuilding Company and the causes which led to its collapse.

The suit is brought by Charles H. Kavanaugh against all the former directors of the Trust Company of the Republic now living in and about New York, except Daniel LeRoy Dresser, and demands an accounting to show how much money was lost to the trust company because of the financing of the shipbuilding company and to compel the directors to restore the money. Mr. Dresser is expected to be a witness for the plaintiff. Some time ago Mr. Dresser won a legal fight to recover some of his losses in the Shipbuilding Company transaction.

Stuyvesant Fish, Perry Belmont, George C. Bolt, and George J. Gould are among the defendants in the present case. A distinguished array of counsel was present when the case was called. Samuel Untermyer of New York, representing Perry Belmont, asked for adjournment and pleaded an important engagement in the United States Circuit Court. Mr. Belmont, he said, was abroad, but was ready to return as soon as cabled to do so. Justice Van Kirk decided to go on with the case, at least for a day.

Hiram C. Todd of counsel for Mr. Kavanaugh then outlined the allegations which he said the plaintiff expected to prove. He told of the organization of the Trust Company of the Republic and of its dealings with the United States Shipbuilding Company, charging that in financing the shipbuilding company the trust company had suffered losses of upward of $1,000,000, due to the alleged negligence of its directors. He charged that the trust company had falsified its accounts in its first semi-annual report to the State Superintendent of Banks to the extent of $1,000,000; that capital, surplus, and deposits of the trust company had been used in the shipbuilding enterprise; that there had been "padded cash acmounts" and "padded loans," and that excessive loans, both secured and unsecured, had been made to officers and directors.

Mr. Todd said that in one day loans aggregating $2,622,187 had been made to Lewis Nixon, while the company's capital was but $1,000,000.

The case was then adjourned until Monday, June 21.

ROW OVER TAXICAB STOCK.

Edward T. Noblett of 225 Fifth Avenue was arrested yesterday by Central Office detectives on the complaint of John V. Levy of the St. Andrew's Hotel, who says that he, as manager of the new Gotham Taxicab Company, which is to start business here in August, gave Noblett $1,000 in connection with the sale of the stock of the new company.

Mr. Levy says that Noblett did not fulfill his contract. Ex-Magistrate Sweetser, counsel for Noblett, says that every agreement was fulfilled by his client, who is being persecuted simply on his past record. The police say that Noblett has been arrested upward of fifty times and convicted in 1901 of grand larceny.

BROOKLYN HOSPITAL PHYSICIANS RESIGN

CARE OF CHILDREN CAUSE

The entire staff of physicians attached to the Brooklyn Home for Consumptives at 704 Kingston Avenue, near Sterling Place, Brooklyn, as well as the Superintendent and her assistant, severed their connection with that institution yesterday as the result of a clash with the President of the Board of Managers, Mrs. Franklin W. Hopkins, over the treatment of patients.

The trouble between the staff and Mrs. Hopkins arose some time ago, when several children, supposed to be afflicted with pulmonary tuberculosis, were sent to the home from the Department of Health Dispensary in Jay Street. All of the children were examined by the staff physicians and were found to be free from tuberculosis infection. The children were discharged, as it was thought dangerous for them to stay in the same ward with others who were afflicted with the advanced stages of the disease.

Mrs. Hopkins is the daughter of S. V. White, whose family has been connected with the philanthropic work of the Home for Consumptives in Brooklyn for twenty-five years. When the children who were examined by the staff physicians were discharged as being free from the disease, a protest was sent to Mrs. Hopkins from outside sources. Mrs. Hopkins sided against the staff physicians. Since then there have been frequent differences over the management of the institution, and the staff physicians decided to quit in a body. Their decision was reached last Friday and they handed in their resignations to take effect yesterday. The Board of Managers accepted the resignations.

The members of the medical staff of the home whose resignations went into effect yesterday have been connected with the institutions from one to sixteen years. They are Dr. Walter S. Rink of 124 McDonough Street, who has been the longest in service at the home; Dr. Albert C. Allen, 304 Clermont Avenue; Dr. Walter S. Grant, 340 Stuyvesant Avenue; Dr. Roy Upham, 300 McDonough Street; Dr. John J. Dooling, 31 Van Buren Street; Dr. John F. Ranken, 852 Park Place; Dr. A. Bornmann, 229 Madison Street; Dr. F. J. Bruce, 286 Sixth Avenue; Dr. William C. Durrin, 462 Greene Avenue, and Dr. William Pfeiffer, 313 Stuyvesant Avenue. Besides the physicians, the Superintendent of the home, Miss Elise P. Smith, who has held her place for four years, and her assistant, Miss Ada P. Herdman, also resigned.

Mrs. Hopkins could not be seen yesterday. It was said at the home that she was out of town. The physicians who resigned were reluctant to talk. Sufficient information was obtained yesterday from an authoritative source that the trouble between Mrs. Hopkins and the staff physicians was over the treatment of the children sent to the home. It was intimated that the feeling between the President and the medical staff was aggravated when the proposal was made to the Board of Managers to employ a specialist to treat the children. The physicians wanted separate wards for the children who were slightly ill, but it was said that Mrs. Hopkins opposed this plan.

N. Y. UNIVERSITY EXERCISES.

Senior Class Day Observed on Battery Hill.

New York University's class of 1909 terminated its undergraduate career yesterday afternoon, when the classday exercises were held on Battery Hill at University Heights.

Dr. Henry M. MacCracken, Cancellor of the university, opened the exercises by an invocation. James Gillespie Dale, President of the class, made an address of welcome and then introduced in turn the other speakers. The class history was read by John C. Brodsky, who dievoked wild applause whe he reviewed in setting forth the defeats as well as the victories of the class. Mr. Brodsky evoked wild applause when he reviewed the students' strike of April, 1908, and the important part that the graduating class played in it.

The great feature of the day was the awarding of the bun. This is an old baker's loaf preserved in a silver case, and is held by the most popular class in college until it graduates. The class of 1885 instituted the bun tradition, and it has been handed down to the present senior class, who got it from 1907. George Hawkins, custodian of the bun, after reviewing the histories of the three under classes, gave it on behalf of the seniors to the present sophomore class.

Many Methods of Losing, and One Method of Finding.

A list of all the ways in which things are lost would fill this column, but there is one best way to find them—an advertisement in The New York Times.

Pawnbrokers and the police not only watch its Lost and Found columns, but keep a permanent record of all losses advertised in The New York Times. A weekly bulletin, compiled from these advertisements, is posted in pawnshops, police stations, and centres of transportation, and if your lost property has worked into some chink where it is not found for months, an advertisement in The New York Times, repeated in the bulletin, which is filed for future reference, goes on working for you.
